U.S., Soviets hush talks on combat unit in Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union began Monday what U.S. state department officials say might be a protracted series of negotiations over Soviet combat troops in Cuba.

State Secretary Cyrus Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin conferred for nearly two hours in their opening session. Afterwards, the state department refused to discuss the meeting, declining even to offer the normal diplomatic characterization of meetings, such as "useful" or "candid."

Department spokesman Tom Reston said the two men would meet again today or Wednesday.

The talks began after Vance and Stansfield Turner, director of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, had met in a closed-door session with members of the U.S. Senate armed services committee.

The U. S. said Monday night that a Soviet denial that it has combat troops in Cuba was "not a helpful contribution to the resolution of this problem."

A terse statement by the U.S. state department commented on an editorial in the Soviet Communist party daily Pravda which said Soviet military personnel were merely training Cubans how to use Soviet equipment.

The exchanges followed the Vance-Dobrynin meeting.

Earlier a state department spokesman commented that the United States held by its view that Soviet combat troops were in Cuba and that the fact a further meeting was scheduled indicates the matter is not resolved.

"The question of the Soviet unit in Cuba is under discussion in diplomatic channels and we will make no comment on the content of these discussions," the department statement said. "As to the editorial in Pravda, it is not a helpful contribution to the resolution of the problem."

The Soviet Communist party newspaper said that for 17 years—dating back to the Cuban missile crisis of 1962—there had been a training centre in Cuba at which Soviet troops taught Cuban forces how to use Soviet-supplied military equipment.

The newspaper gave no figure for the number of Soviet troops on the island, but added: "It is absolutely clear that neither by its size nor by its functions does or can the Soviet military personnel in Cuba present any threat to the United States or to other states."

Pravda said the Carter administration knew the true facts about the Soviet presence in Cuba but had avoided explaining it, choosing instead to make statements "calculated to add fuel to the fire."

Moscow Radio said the Soviet Union "emphatically rejected the story that Soviet combat units have appeared in Cuba."

The broadcast added: "Neither the numerical strength nor the functions of the Soviet personnel have changed all these years. All the claims about the arrival of organized Soviet combat units in Cuba are utterly without foundation."

British Leyland orders cutback

LONDON (Reuter) — British Leyland, the country's ailing motor giant, announced plans Monday to close 13 plants and axe 25,000 jobs in a drive to improve efficiency.

Leyland chairman Sir Michael Edwardes told union leaders representing the state-owned company's 165,000 workers that the future of 36 other plants was also being considered.

He said he was taking the steps because of a general worsening in the firm's trading outlook. The closures, which will be spread over two years, come on top of a reduction in the workforce of almost 18,000 since January.

LEYLAND WAS SAVED from collapse in 1975 by a massive injection of money by the government.

Persistent labor problems and low productivity have led to calls from both management and government for drastic streamlining of the company.

The first plant to close will be the Titan bus factory in London with the loss of 650 jobs. Twelve other car, bus or engine assembly plants face part or total closure.

Last April, Edwardes announced that in 1978 Leyland lost $1 billion in sales and trading profits through industrial disputes and production stoppages.

INITIAL UNION reaction to the closure announcement was one of shock and anger.

Derek Robinson, a senior union organizer at one of Leyland's Birmingham plants, said the plan was "disastrous for British Leyland and for the British motor industry in general."

Ferry workers refuse overtime

By DON COLLINS
Colonist reporter

Ferry workers have been instructed by their union to refuse overtime work during crucial contract talks, a move that is said to have cancelled at least one late night sailing.

An extra sailing scheduled to leave Swartz Bay for Tsawwassen at 11 p.m. Sunday was reported to have been cancelled because of this.

Informants said Monday that some cars were already aboard the ferry when the decision was made, and had to be driven off. Others were reportedly waiting in line to board the vessel.

Under terms of the last contract, the ferry workers have the right to refuse overtime work except in cases of emergency.

"But what they seem to be doing now is forbidding extra sailings," said one source from the corporation's inner circle.

"The ferry corporation is in business to transport people, not for the convenience of the work force."

Said one ferry union official: "It's ridiculous. They know this is the position we are taking. So, the situation shouldn't have been allowed to develop. The cars should never have been allowed past the ticket booths."

The stand is being taken at a time when negotiators from the B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union and B.C. Ferry Corp. are meeting under a blanket of secrecy with industrial inquiry commissioner Clive McKee.

McKee was appointed last week by Labor Minister Allan Williams in the latest effort to avert a strike by the 2,600-member union.

He was given 14 working days—longer if necessary — to try to work out a settlement through non-binding recommendations. His first meeting with negotiators was Friday and talks have continued through the weekend and Monday. Those involved have been respecting McKee's decision to place a news blackout on the meetings.

The union would have been in a legal position to strike after Williams reported late Thursday that mediator Fred Geddes had withdrawn, but decided to withhold such action—at least until it was able to ascertain if any progress could be made through meetings with McKee.

A half-day strike Thursday between Nanaimo, Horseshoe Bay and the Gulf Islands was not sanctioned by the union.

It has been blamed on rank-and-file radicals from the political left. However, politics are also said to be involved in an internal struggle that reaches all the way up to the union's leadership.

The last contract expired July 31. Wages, sick leave and use of casual labor were listed as the major issues when talks broke off.

U.S. reassures NATO nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, trying to calm Western European fears stirred by former U.S. state secretary Henry Kissinger, on Monday reaffirmed its commitment to the defence of Europe.

In a statement ordered by the White House and issued under the name of State Secretary Cyrus Vance, the administration said it is determined "not only to maintain the strategic balance but also to hold a capacity for flexible response . . . to any attack, at any level of intensity, against us or our allies."

Kissinger, in a conference in Brussels, Belgium, last week, suggested that the U.S. commitment to defend Europe was becoming questionable because of expanding Soviet military power.

He said the only retaliatory option the United States might have in some crises would be to incinerate Soviet cities in an all-out nuclear exchange that would also be the end of U.S. civilization.

His statement caused a stir in Western Europe and prompted the administration's reply, officials said.

BRABOURNE SURVIVORS BACK IN U.K.

LONDON (Reuter) — Lord and Lady Brabourne, survivors of the terrorist bomb explosion that killed Earl Mountbatten, left hospital in the Irish republic on Monday and were flown to Britain.

Lady Brabourne, Mountbatten's daughter, has been admitted to a London hospital for treatment of an eye injury and a broken leg.

Lord Brabourne, a film and television producer, is in another London hospital in satisfactory condition.

The Dowager Lady Brabourne, Timothy's twin brother Nicholas and a 15-year-old Irish youth Paul Maxwell, died with Mountbatten in the explosion of his fishing boat off the County Sligo coast. The provisional Irish Republican Army has admitted responsibility for the blast.

It's a miracle, says scientist

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The 16th century painting of the Virgin of Guadalupe, revered by millions of Latin American Catholics, may indeed be of miraculous origin, a University of Florida biophysicist said Monday.

In the U.S. Guadalupan Project Report soon to be sent to Mexican authorities, Philip Callahan, one of two scientists who analyzed the painting in Mexico City, said he could find no scientific explanation for it.

"The whole gist of the story as far as I am concerned is the original painting is miraculous," Callahan said.

According to tradition, the Virgin Mary appeared to a poor Indian named Juan Diego on Dec. 9, 1531, told him to go to the bishop of Mexico City and ask that he build a shrine to her on a hill just north of the city.

The bishop balked and Mary, who appeared again, had Juan Diego deliver flowers to the bishop. The Indian wrapped the flowers in a tilma, an Indian cloak made from cactus fibers and tied around one shoulder.

When the bishop unravelled the tilma, according to the story, the image of the Virgin Mary was on the tilma. It is preserved to this day in a bullet-proof glass case in a shrine in north Mexico City.

"The tilma should have rotted 20 years after it was painted," he said.

Rhodesia: Price is blood

LONDON (AP) — Black nationalist guerrilla leaders faced officials of the Zimbabwe Rhodesian government Monday at the opening of British-sponsored constitutional talks widely billed as a last chance to avert widespread war in southern Africa.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington urged both sides in the Zimbabwe Rhodesia struggle to reach a compromise, saying "the price of failure would be further prolonged bloodshed."

Carrington asked them to focus on a new constitution for Zimbabwe Rhodesia that will decrease the power given to the white minority, which accounts for 230,000 persons out of a population of 7.2 million.

"I believe the people assembled in this room have it in their power to end the war," said Carrington, serving as conference chairman. "I do not believe the people of Rhodesia will readily forgive any party which deprives them of this opportunity to settle their future by peaceful means."

The conference, called by Britain, brought together Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo of the guerrilla Patriotic Front alliance with members of Zimbabwe Rhodesia's government, led by Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the breakaway British colony's first black prime minister, and including Ian Smith, his white predecessor.

Nkomo and Mugabe have waged a seven-year guerrilla war against the Salisbury regime from bases in Zambia and Mozambique. More than 18,000 persons have died in the fighting.

The talks opened on schedule, but there was an immediate squabble over seating arrangements and a refusal by guerrilla leaders to attend a British welcoming reception for the two sides.

"We felt we could not at this time distinguish the color of the tea we might have tonight from the blood of women and children which the puppet regime of Muzorewa and Smith are shedding at this very moment," said Edison Zvobgo, a spokesman for the Patriotic Front.

$3.05 tax bill leaves family without home

QUINCY, Fla. (UPI) — Because her husband failed to pay a $3.05 tax bill in 1975, Hattie Mae Kenon has lost the frame house the couple built with earnings from years of toil in the tobacco fields.

"I cried some and I prayed some," the 63-year-old black woman said when she learned that John Barrow, a Callahan real estate broker, had bought the tax certificate, making him the owner of the home where she had raised seven children and looked after her mentally disabled husband.

"This is the onliest place we have and it really hurt to know we were going to lose everything we had," she said. Mrs. Kenon expressed a fear that eviction would mean her husband will have to go back to the state mental hospital where he has been treated off-and-on for 20 years.

Barrow took advantage of a state law that lets an individual buy another person's property from the county tax collector, if the taxes on the property are not paid within two years of when they were due.

Barrow bought the tax certificate by paying the $3.05 in taxes one month after the original April 1976 deadline for payment passed.

He waited three years, one more than the minimum two years prescribed by law, and in July 1979, bought the tax deed making him the legal owner of the house. It cost him a total of $107, representing back taxes, plus county expenses.

Refugee tide on rise again

HONG KONG (UPI) — Jammed with 604 Vietnamese refugees, a motorized junk chugged into Hong Kong late Monday, despite Hanoi's two-month-old pledge to end the mass exodus of boat people.

They followed by only a few hours another group of 289 Vietnamese boat people, including 124 children, to bring the day's total to at least 893.

Hanoi promised at the July 20-21 Geneva conference on Indochina refugees to close off the mass exodus of its citizens and the flow of boat people was noticeably reduced for several weeks.

But in recent weeks, U.S. Navy ships and planes and merchant vessels operating in the South China Sea have rescued an increasing number of Vietnamese and more and more boat people have arrived safely in Southeast Asian ports.

The single group of 604 refugees was by far the largest known to have fled from Vietnam since the Hanoi government promised to stem the flow.

Hong Kong officials ordered the junk to halt outside the colony's main harbor while authorities began an investigation on the circumstances under which it left Vietnam.

System claims flu forecast

ATLANTA (UPI) — U.S. health officials say they have found a system of forecasting flu epidemics that could allow active medical intervention before an outbreak strikes.

The National Centre for Disease Control reported Monday the system may forecast flu epidemics two or more weeks before they occur with the aim of blunting such outbreaks and possibly saving lives.

The system, described in detail to a group of flu experts at the CDC, is based on statistical analysis of pneumonia-influenza during the past 17 years. The CDC said the system was tested alongside the old system during this winter's flu season and officials think it may replace the one that has been in use for the past 20 years.

Dr. Keewhan Choi of the CDC's bureau of epidemiology said the system "would be able to detect outbreaks two weeks before pneumonia and influenza deaths reach the epidemic level." He said it was hoped that future statistical research would improve on the two-week warning period.

Dr. Philip Brachman, director of the epidemiology bureau, said two weeks advance warning of an impending influenza outbreak would allow time for medical intervention to save lives through anti-viral drugs.

With immediate intervention, influenza vaccines, which take about two weeks to build up a person's immunity, also possibly could be used.

The present system of reporting influenza activity is based on pneumonia-influenza mortality statistics, but indicate epidemic levels of influenza two weeks after the event.

Dr. Alexander Langmuir of Chilmark, Mass., former director of the CDC's bureau of epidemiology but now retired, challenged the accuracy of the proposed new system. Langmuir, who played a leading role in developing the CDC's present flu-reporting method, said that in the 20 years it had been used it had never been inaccurate in showing the level of flu activity and in pinpointing the occurrence of an epidemic.

Firemen carry passenger from train

Passengers flee smoky subway

NEW YORK (UPI) — Heavy smoke caused three subway trains to halt in a mile-long Manhatten tunnel Monday and forced the evacuation of more than 2,000 passengers.

A Transit Authority police spokesman said the incident began when one of the three trains was forced to stop 3,000 feet north of a Manhattan subway station.

The spokesman said that the train stopped either because its motor overheated and filled the subway tunnel with smoke, or because of a fire on the tracks.

The smoke forced the two other trains to stop in the one-mile long tunnel between the two subway stations, 14 blocks apart. The tunnel is one of the longest in the city's extensive subway system.

More than 2,000 passengers were evacuated through sidewalk exits. At least a dozen people were treated at the scene for smoke inhalation and cuts and bruises.

HAVE YOU WRITTEN A BOOK?

A publisher's editorial representative will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication by Carlton Press, Inc., well-known New York subsidy publishing firm. All subjects will be considered including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, drama, religion, philosophy, etc.

He will be in Victoria in late October.

If you have completed a book-length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately describing your work. State which part of the day (a.m. or p.m.) you would prefer for an appointment and kindly mention your phone number. You will receive a confirmation by mail for a definite time and place.

Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to the address below for a free reading and evaluation. Authors whose literary works are still in progress may also write.

Chilled pipe Arctic hope

BUCHAREST (CP) — Delegates from 70 countries listened raptly Monday to an account of how Canadians are planning to put a refrigerated pipeline on the Arctic seabed.

President Charles Hetherington of Panarctic Oils Ltd. told the World Petroleum Congress that Canadians have demonstrated, with such techniques, the feasibility of subsea natural gas wells in the hostile Arctic.

Hetherington explained that the novel approach of chilling a pipeline in an already-frigid region was tried in an experiment to increase resistance to moving ice.

"The method selected was to fit the buried pipe with a refrigerated jacket which would extract heat from the surrounding soil to build an artificial layer of permafrost around the pipe," he said.

By using an outer pipe and circulating a chilled methanol-water mixture between it and the inner pipe, a frozen zone three metres in diameter was created around the underwater pipe.

A refrigerating plant on shore kept the methanol-water mixture at minus 32 degrees celsius and substantially improved the survivability of the pipeline, he said.

Hetherington also explained that in water depths of 20 metres or less "a high frequency of bottom scouring by ice keels was anticipated" but the soft seabed limits how deep the pipeline can be buried.

The Panarctic president also described how experiments showed that teams of divers can rig cables under the ice over long distances so that pipe can be laid by being inserted under the ice and pulled across the seabed.

To precisely measure horizontal ice movement that might cause trouble for drilling rigs, electronic devices were set up that measured movement by communicating with passing satellites.

The goal of all this effort, Hetherington said, is the planned $6.1-billion Polar Gas pipeline, measured in 1976 dollars, that would bring 60 million cubic metres of gas south daily.

He said, however, that such a project is still some time away.

"Gas reserves required to support the pipeline project are of the order of 420 to 507 billion cubic metres," he said. "Presently discovered reserves are 360 billion cubic metres. Continued exploration will be necessary to develop the reserves necessary for support of the pipeline project."

taxes, plus county expenses.

One of the Kenon sons, Jessie, said he contacted Barrow to see if he would sell the property back to his parents. He said Barrow offered to take $12,950 for it and then came down to $10,000.

The property is appraised on the tax rolls at $5,200.

When Kenon told Barrow that $10,000 was too much for his parents to pay, he said, Barrow threatened to have the Kenons evicted.

Barrow told a reporter, "The law will tell you that ignorance is no excuse. Everybody in this world, if they profit any, profit to the disadvantage of other folks and that's the way the world is built."

Mrs. Kenon said she does not know why her husband did not pay the 1975 taxes on the house they built in 1961. He paid the taxes every year before and after 1975, the local tax office said.

Her husband, who can neither read or write, was sent two notices of the delinquent taxes and his name was published on the public list of delinquent taxpayers, the tax office said.

"If I had known it, I sure would have paid that money," Mrs. Kenon said.

The couple lives on $438 in monthly social security benefits, supplemented by vegetables from their garden and small earnings from minor repair work done by her husband on neighbors' cars.

It's kind of a drag

At speeds where mechanical brakes just can't do the job, drag chutes are the only answer. So at the annual Big Brothers soapbox derby trials in Mississauga, Ont., Michael Morrison had things under control. Trouble was, he couldn't use it in competition because it might interfere with other racers.

Hunger strikes spread in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — A series of hunger strikes in Chile that began a week ago spread Monday on the eve of the sixth anniversary of the military regime led by Gen. Augusto Pinochet.

The fasts began Sept. 3 in Catholic churches in three cities to pressure the government to reveal the fates of arrested persons who disappeared following the violent Sept. 11, 1973 military coup that overthrew President Salvador Allende.

Among the strikers are 13 youngsters—nine girls and four boys ranging in age from 12 to 22 years—who occupied the Danish embassy in Santiago a week ago.

In Santiago, 34 other persons, the majority of them women, were fasting in four churches. They were accompanied by 11 others in the industrial city of Concepcion, five in the seaside resort of Vina del Mar, and three more in a church in the northern city of Antofagasta.

All of the strikers, including the youths, say they are relatives of some of the 650 persons estimated to be missing by the Catholic Church.

More than 100 Catholic priests and nuns of various nationalities declared a 48-hour solidarity fast in a downtown church on Sunday night. A priest in the group said they totaled 108 persons but Carabineros police put the number at 130 priests, nuns and laymen.

Around 50 students from the Catholic University were on a 24-hour solidarity hunger strike Monday which they said "could be extended." Sixty Chilean intellectuals and artists were also on a 24-hour abstention in still another church on Monday.

The government announced Monday that it was studying legal action to take against 35 persons who were arrested for staging a solidarity march with the strikers on Saturday night.

Among those arrested was an American resident in Chile, Helen Hughes O'Brien, who works as an ABC Radio correspondent and for a local Catholic Church refugee organization.

Foreign ministry sources said there had been no answer from the Danish government to an official protest the military government filed in Copenhagen last Friday. In the note, Denmark was accused of "interfering in the internal affairs of Chile" by allowing the strike inside the embassy.

A news dispatch from Copenhagen published Sunday in Santiago said the Danish government would seek the mediation of United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim to stop the strike inside the embassy.

Stakeout nets 13 guerrillas

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Police in Saragossa and Barcelona arrested 13 of Spain's most wanted urban guerrillas Monday in a major roundup of left-wing leaders, the interior ministry said.

The ministry said the arrests were "the hardest blow struck" at the Oct. 1 Anti-Fascist Resistance Groups and its political arm, the Reconstituted Spanish Communist party.

GRAPO has claimed responsibility for 28 of Spain's 105 political assassinations this year. Its victims included a supreme court judge, a general, eight people killed in the bombing of a Madrid cafe and 16 police and civil guards.

Among the guerrillas arrested were half of the 12-member Political Commission—the top leadership of the party—and seven of the 12 members of its central committee, the ministry said.

The ministry said the arrests, the result of extensive investigation, stakeouts and shadowings of the suspects, marked the biggest roundup ever of GRAPO leaders.

The ministry said investigators found 10 hideouts used by the organization—one in Barcelona, two in Saragossa and seven in Madrid.

Journalist shot, wounded after parley with criminal

PARIS (AP) — A journalist with the Paris daily Minute was shot and wounded Monday after keeping an appointment with Jacques Mesrine, France's most wanted criminal, police said.

Jacques Tillier, 32, said he met Mesrine and an associate in a Paris bar and went with them in a car to a woods near Creil outside the city.

The gangster and his accomplice then stopped the car, beat up the journalist, yelled insults at him, took his clothes off and shot him three times with a pistol, Tillier told police.

Although orginal reports said Tillier's wounds caused him to slip into a coma, police later reported he was only slightly injured in the nape of the neck, the cheek and shoulder.

Police believe the attack was meant as a warning to the publisher of Minute, which has been developing a story on the criminal.

Mesrine is wanted in Canada in connection with the 1973 slaying of two game wardens and for escaping from prison. He is also wanted in France for escaping from prison, several armed robberies—including a raid on the Deauville gambling casino—and a kidnapping.

Arms talks rated flop by ex-aide to Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former Carter administration disarmament aide, Leslie Gelb, said Monday that three decades of arms control negotiation with the Soviet Union had "essentially failed."

In an article published by Foreign Policy magazine, Gelb offered his own prescription for revamping the American arms control coalition, emphasizing small but achievable steps in arms control, rather than dramatic efforts.

"Arms control has essentially failed," said Gelb, one of the Carter administration's most articulate arms-control advocates. "Three decades of U.S.-Soviet negotiations have done little more than to codify the arms race.

"To be sure, some agreements have been good or useful—such as the anti-ballistic missile treaty, S.A.L.T. II, and the limited test ban treaty—but even they rest on tender supports."

Gelb's article was prepared for the quarterly magazine long before the current crisis over Soviet troops in Cuba threatened to delay the Senate debate on ratifying the S.A.L.T. treaty with Russia.

Gelb headed the state department's bureau of political-military affairs from 1977-1979. He told UPI he decided to resign because of physical exhaustion and frustration.

Gelb was frequently included in U.S. delegations which accompanied Secretary Cyrus Vance on his S.A.L.T. negotiating missions with Soviet leaders in Moscow and Geneva.

"In this stage of Soviet-American relations," Gelb said, "it may be wise to think of arms control negotiations essentially as confidence- and stability-building exercises.

"They cannot be overplayed, overloaded or overextended. They should be conceived and carried out as an integral part of U.S. foreign and defence policy, tailored to fit the over-all state of the political relationship with Moscow."

Gelb said arms control proposals should "not get far ahead" of the general state of U.S.-Soviet relations. Proposals should "be fashioned to move in small steps" which could be achieved promptly. Talks should aim at finding an over-all balance in the arsenals of the superpowers, and negotiations should stress arms stability and prevention of unpleasant surprises in the weapons the other side develops.

"For example," Gelb said, "the idea of the MX, a land-based mobile intercontinental ballistic missile system, should not be completely dismissed by arms controllers, especially if it can be shown that this would in fact increase the survivability of ICBMS and not just lead to instability through increased Soviet and American war-fighting capabilities."

"It might also be shown how the MX could aid rather impede further efforts to achieve stability."

Frederic flexes growing muscle

MIAMI (UPI) — Frederic became a hurricane for the second time Monday and promptly began picking up muscle as it moved into the Gulf of Mexico. Forecasters said they were uncertain where the storm was headed.

An air force hurricane hunter plane located Frederic's centre 240 kilometres west-southwest of Key West, Fla. In slightly more than four hours, its sustained winds increased from 120 to 130 kilometres an hour.

"Further intensification is expected," the National Hurricane Centre said.

Frederic was moving northwest at eight kmh and was expected to maintain that course and direction through the night.

But forecaster Miles Lawrence said, "Slow moving storms imply that steering currents are weak and such storms are subject to erratic motions. Frederic is no exception. . ."

On freedom to be enterprising

AS THE NATIONAL argument rages on between the partisan forces of our country regarding the government's stated intention to return part of Petro-Can to the open market, it might be worthwhile recalling Sir Winston Churchill's views on free enterprise as opposed to government ownership.

Ousted by the socialists in 1945, he wrote:

"I do not believe in the power of the state to plan and enforce. No matter how numerous are the committees they set up or the ever-growing hordes of officials they employ or the severity of punishments they inflict or threaten, they can't approach the high level of internal economic production achieved under free enterprise.

"Personal initiative, competitive selection, the profit motive, corrected by failure and the infinite processes of good housekeeping and personal ingenuity, these constitute the life of a free society. It is this vital creative impulse that I deeply fear the doctrines and policies of the socialist government have destroyed.

"Nothing they can plan and order and rush around enforcing will take its place. They have broken the mainspring, and until we get a new one, the watch will not go. Set the people free — get out of the way and let them make the best of themselves.

"I am sure this policy of equalizing misery and organizing scarcity instead of allowing diligence, self-interest and ingenuity to produce abundance has only to be prolonged to kill this British island stone dead."

Bolstering this view, but at a later date and with a more specific target in mind, American economist Milton Friedman had this to say: "We've always had a finite amount of energy. . . .We had finite supplies of wood in the early pioneer days. How did we make the transition from using wood to using coal, from using coal to using oil, from using oil to using natural gas? How in God's name did we make that transition without a Federal Energy Agency?"

Freeze-dried?

STRANGE THING about Brazil and its weather. Ten or more years ago the rest of the world hardly ever heard how the Brazilians were faring, meteorologically speaking. We presumed their weather must have been pretty good most of the time, to allow them to grow such an awful lot of coffee.

But then came the 1970s and — pow, kersplat — suddenly things went all to pieces. Those poor Brazilian coffee growers suffered one darned frost after another, as their country seemed to have been plunged into another Ice Age. Production declined, of course, and prices went up. And up. And up . . . until by 1977 retail prices had topped $7 a pound.

In that year the North American coffee market began to experience the first twitchings of consumer resistance. It never became a full-blown boycott but it was enough to cause a surplus and bring prices down somewhat. Brazil seemed to be enjoying a nice warm spell once again.

Alas, not for long. The latest word is that frost damage last May reduced Brazil's expected 1980-81 coffee harvest by 23 per cent. And we all know what that means, don't we?

But at least when coffee prices go through the roof this time we'll know enough to blame the Brazilian weather, rather than crop burning, OPEC-style price fixing cartels by the world's coffee producers and all those other sneaky "price stabilization" tactics.

Freshen your cup, ma'am?

COMMENT/BACKGROUND

Five down — here's five more to go

Gwynne Dyer

LONDON — Governments are the great murderers and torturers of our time: in the killing and maiming of human beings, private enterprise will never compete with state bureaucracy. But just recently we have been losing the worst mass-murderers at an astonishing and very gratifying rate.

If someone had held an unpopularity poll last January to determine which five murderous rulers the world would benefit most by losing, Pol Pot's regime in Cambodia, the Shah of Iran, Idi Amin of Uganda, General Somoza of Nicaragua and Macias Nguema of Equatorial Guinea would probably have topped the poll. Only eight months have passed since then, and they are all gone.

On the assumption that there may be some kind of sympathetic magic at work, perhaps we should make another list, of the five worst surviving tyrants and murderers. It will be a much more difficult list to agree on, however. To get any agreement at all, we must firmly exclude regimes which are unpleasant or downright evil, but which do not actually employ murder and torture as a major part of their system of control.

You may regard the government of the Soviet Union or of Chile as a scandalous blot on the human escutcheon (depending on your ideological preferences), and they certainly both murdered large numbers of people in the past. But though they are still tyrannies, they have now given up murder as a regular habit.

Nor can we fairly include governments like Colonel Gadaffi's in Libya or Enver Hoxha's in Albania. Political executions are commonplace there, but the victims are usually themselves members of the regime, and in a sense have volunteered themselves for the firing squad. Vietnam gets off the hook as it lets the sea do the killing of the refugees.

No, what we want in our list are governments, of any ideological colour or none, which consciously and habitually murder citizens who might be a threat to them as a matter of policy. On that simple basis, here is my list: Jean-Claude Duvalier of Haiti, Siddan Hussein of Iraq, Jorge Videla of Argentina, Mengistu Haile Mariam of Ethiopia, and Nur Muhammad Tarakki of Afghanistan.

Other regimes like Rwanda, Burundi, Guinea, El Salvador, South Yemen and the Central African Empire would all fit quite comfortably in the short list. But they are much less habitual murderers: Emperor Jean-Bedel Bokassa of the CAE may have personally taken part in murdering about a hundred school children in jail recently, but he does that sort of thing comparatively rarely.

Bokassa's novel method of improving the teacher-pupil ratio in his school system is a mere peccadillo, however, compared to the systematic murder of school children by the agents of the Ethiopian Derg in order to keep parents of "undesirable" political opinions under control.

The tools of torture in Guinean jails are Stone-Age technlogy compared to the gleaming instruments that wait for dissident Kurds, Shiites and Communists, together with anyone else who poses a threat to Siddam Hussein's total power, in Baghdad's Qasr an-Nihayet (Palace of the End).

About Afghanistan's beleaguered and terrified regime, which is working its way through Kabul's non-Communist educated classes at the rate of about 20 or 30 executions a night, and Haiti's primitive but highly effective system of government by terror, the less said the better. These are regimes which do not deserve to survive.

Some of them will not survive, for the common denominator that explains their depraved brutality — although it in no way excuses it — is that they all live in mortal fear of being overthrown by their subjects. They are regimes which are loathed by the majority of the people they rule, and every savagery they indulge in only makes the hatred deeper.

Perhaps by this time next year they will be gone as well, and we can make another list. It would be progress of a sort. Last January's list included regimes that murdered in the hundreds of thousands (Uganda) and even in the millions (Cambodia). The present list takes us down to five-figure murderers. With a lot of luck the next list might contain only petty criminals who murder in mere thousands.

"Gimme those BCRIC shares back!"

First we cripple the defences, then we moan over terrorism

Lubor Zink

OTTAWA — Every time terrorists murder some particularly prominent public figure or slaughter a large number of people there are anguished cries for effective measures against political violence. The irony of it is that the most indignant do-something noises come from groups and individuals who are largely responsible for pressures that are rendering the few defences we have impotent.

This morbid rigamarole has been going on for some time. In the past few years the lib-left "elites" have concentrated on paralyzing the few competent intelligence-gathering organizations the Western world had, on crippling police forces, and on removing every deterrent (notably capital punishment) to human destructive impulses and barbarism.

The sad fact is that even without this crazy smashing of our scant defences, the remaining democracies are terribly vulnerable to internationally-orchestrated and well-armed political violence. The terrorists know it and make the most of the opportunities the remaining free societies provide. They know that measures which would put them out of business are incompatible with our basic tenets.

While this makes the terrorists feel safe to use virtually any means for spreading fear and chaos, their perverse aim at the same time is to push violence beyond endurable limits and force Western governments to use repressive measures, therby "proving" that the democratic system does not work. Depriving ourselves of the few effective tools the rule of law provides is in these circumstances sheer suicideal madness. Yet that's what the lib-left crippling of the CIA, FBI, RCMP, MI-5 and 6, and the rest of our scant defences is doing. The imbecility of it all — including the pathetic do-something cries after last month's particularly rich terrorists harvest — is staggering.

Since terrorism is the most primitive tool of politics, how come civilized man hasn't found a way to stamp it out long before now? The reason is the same as the reason for failure to eliminate "ordinary" crimes: irrationality and emotional instability of human nature. If anything, it's easier to cope with conventional criminals than with terrorists. A political fanatic is essentially a utopian idealist who considers killing and destruction to be messianic services to a noble cause. A suitably brainwashed public may be bamboozled into accepting such nonsense as "progressive views."

This wasn't always so. Until the first quarter of this century terrorism in the allegedly civilized parts of the world was, by and large, the preserve of individual anarchists. They were considered weird odd balls and their destructive impulses were rejected and condemned. In short, terrorism, while endemic throughout history, was not a serious political and social problem. It assumed menacing proportions only when the emerging totalitarian states began marshalling scattered nihilistic terrorists into their termite columns within the democracies they sought to destroy. Financed, fanned and furnished with modern weapons by the totalitarian powers, terrorism gradually mushroomed into the raging social demolition menace of today's glamorized "liberation movements" and "guerrilla" killer gangs.

Unlike our lib-left lemmings, the totalitarians do not admire nihilistic anarchism. They make sure that no revolutionary anarchist could survive in their own domain. But they do not hesitate to use any terrorist group for undermining the last of the open societies that still stand in the way of Brezhnev's goal of "world victory of socialism."

The fact that a true Marxist scorns anarchist terrorism does not, therefore, offer any comfort. To foster internal collapse of the target countries (particularly in Western Europe and North America which are the only remaining real obstacles of unhindered totalitarian expansion) the Kremlin will finance, train and arm any terrorist group. All it demands in return is spectacular violence and destruction capable of scaring people into believing that their own governments are unable to protect them. If at the same time the terrorists force the threatened governments to curb some "progressive" abuse of democratic liberties, that's a welcome bonus.

What it all boils down to is steady erosion and disintegration of what remains of the Western world. Much of the damage, I am sorry to say, is self-inflicted by our suicidal lib-left "elites."

1922 — The British mandate was proclaimed in Palestine.

Some of London's locals have had enough of tourists

Sherri Barron
The Canadian Press

LONDON — Fashionable London T-shirts read "I'm no tourist, I live here," but the flippant shirts could soon be outmoded as Britain's $3 billion industry takes a nosedive.

London natives are feeling cramped and the "we hate tourists" trend may be prompting visitors to take their cameras and their pocketbooks to more charitable territory.

London newspapers liken tourists to backache, describe them as human pigeon droppings spilling over the city from jumbo jets and print headlines declaring: "Insult them, they might go away."

Are Britons turning nasty on the geese that lay the golden eggs?

After 20 years of almost uninterrupted growth in foreign visitors to Britain, this year the country has been hit by a 10-per-cent slump described by some Britons as a "blessing in disguise."

Strong sterling, climbing inflation, taxes and the age-old scapegoat known as the London rain have taken the blame but perhaps tourists are merely beginning to react to the anti-tourist sentiment.

The number of Canadian tourists visiting Britain has dropped six per cent so far this year. The low value of the Canadian dollar in relation to the pound is a factor.

More Canadians are vacationing at home, says Glen Moore, vice-president for the Visitors and Convention Bureau in Ottawa. He says the fragile dollar is scaring Canadians away from foreign travel.

But the present slump now puncturing the tourist industry's balloon is a pause which Britons should take advantage of, says the Daily Mail.

Britons should have the right to come to London, says Daily Mail reporter Richard Bourne, without the trip proving a "test of endurance."

In an article dubbed "Why we must learn to love tourists," the Daily Mail says "tourists swarm into Britain every summer to clog up the capital and every other place of interest."

"They crowd restaurants, hotels, buses and trains. Like backache, tourists to many people are an inconvenience they have to put up with."

But these "backaches" do pour much-needed foreign exchange into Britain's coffers even if they do mean a jam-packed capital.

More than 12 million tourists visited London last year and 1.8 million have been recorded for the first quarter this year.

"Insult them and they might go away," says John Osbourne, writing for The Evening Standard in a story encouraging Britons to "be grateful for these human pigeon droppings scattered by jumbo jets."

Like bees, tourists are everywhere, screams The Daily Mail: ". . . Outside the palace, in droves, laying siege to the tower, standing on the wrong side of the tube escalators."

"I'm not saying we should have fewer tourists," clarifies one London journalist. "The economic benefits are considerable — just that the load should be shared more equally."

Leading tourist consultant Melvyn Greene says he wants to develop a marketing strategy to lure tourists away from London to explore other parts of England.

British sea-side resorts expect a financially hard winter. Tourist declines have reduced town incomes and councils around the coast are planning massive reductions in entertainment facilities in line with public expenditure cuts.

Intolerance here could have costly repercussions.

In Spain King Juan Carlos is bringing democracy closer

Virgil Pinkley

MADRID — Spain, like many nations, is confronted with the monsters of inflation, crime and growing addiction to drugs.

But the country is also making steady progress toward developing a democratic form of government and demonstrating to the people the advantages of a democracy over a dictatorship. It can't be done overnight but no one should lose sight of the progress made thus far.

King Juan Carlos I has been steadily turning more and more power over to the people.

Since he was hand-picked by the late dictator Francisco Franco, who ruled the country fo 40 years, it is surprising to note the attitudes and outlook of the young king.

When he first came to power in November of 1975, he was the butt of many jokes and uncomplimentary statements. Some said that his kingship should be short-lived and that he would be thrust aside. One joke told in the music halls of Spain was that "Juan Carlos is definitely a deep thinker — when he's in a submarine."

Not only is the king modest and humble, but he is proving to have great patience and to be an extremely clever politician.

For years, Spain's 35 million people have been demanding democratic reforms and Juan Carlos is seeing to it that they get them.

The first time Juan Carlos arrived in Spain was in 1948 when he was 10 years old. Within a reasonable length of time he acquired fluency in English, French and Portuguese, to go along with his Italian and Spanish. He graduated from the Saragossa Military Academy, third in his class of 271, in 1957. He then spent a year in each of the naval and air force academies, in addition to receiving an officer's commission from the army.

In 1962 he was married to Princess Sofia of Greece. They have three children.

Juan Carlos displayed his astuteness by selecting Adolfo Suarez, an unknown minister, in the first cabinet after Franco's death and making him the president of Cortes, Spain's parliament.

Foreign capital was attracted, and Spain embarked on an impressive economic and social revolution. New factories were opened all over the country and foreign visitors came by the millions to enjoy the beaches, resorts and cultural spots of Spain.

During the 1960s and the early 1970s, the Spanish economy grew at more than 7 per cent a year in real terms. The nation became the world's 10th ranking industrial power. The king and Suarez abolished censorship of the press, political prisoners were freed and assembly was again permitted.

For the first time in years, a really tough income tax law has been adopted and enforced. Previously, wealthy Spaniards could evade income and virtually all other taxes. If they were caught, they only paid a minor fine. Now violators receive criminal penalties as well as substantial fines.

When the people of Spain were asked whether they wanted to elect their own new Cortes, 94 per cent replied "yes."

When elections were held shortly thereafter, it was the first time that anyone under 62 had ever voted in a free Spanish election.

Suarez' middle-of-the-road party polled 34.3 per cent of the popular vote. The Socialist Workers Party, also quite moderate in outlook, won 24.5 per cent. The Communists received only 9 per cent of the vote.

Mountbatten was 'last hero'

In your Sept. 6 Colonist and in your editorial under the caption The 'last hero', I take umbrage with your criticism of British newspapers in referring to the late Earl Mountbatten as such.

I also even take issue with Jack Webster, who as a fellow Scot, says that all of us who fought for our countries were heros which to those of us who were in the thick of things, is a lot of nonsense.

As a buck private in the Canadian Army at Vimy Ridge we were involved in some hand to hand fighting with the Germans and then at Hill 70 the fighting was among the ruins of miner's cottages and that was where I got my comeuppance from a Gerry machine gun and did I feel like a hero? anything but.

Canada has its share of VC's of which we are very proud, but they are still with us, whereas the one who deserves the appellation of a hero was brutally murdered which brought to an end a life devoted to the service of his country.

Not only did he have his ship shot from under him in the Royal Navy, but went out to the east where with the troops under his command, British and American, the Japanese were chased out of Burma.

And so considering his long service why deny him the privilege of being called the last hero?

No doubt in the years of Nelson and Wellington they too were called the last of the heroes and so why deny the British press using this caption which I am sure many of us oldtimers will agree with.

There's Frankenstein created at B.C. Buildings Corporation

The federal Conservatives have promised a 60,000 employee decrease in the civil service over the next three years, and it appears that the "sleight-of-hand" method of creating crown corporations will be used.

Federal Treasury Board leader, Sinclair Stevens is not the only politician playing the "shell game" of moving employees from the public service and "privatizing" them into crown corporations. The B.C. Government Employees' Union has had lots of experience with the "privatization" of our own members right here in B.C.

Crown corporations abound in B.C. There's B.C. Buildings Corporation, B.C. Systems Corporation, B.C. Ferry Authority, Urban Transit Authority, the Community Colleges and Institutes, and on and on.

The popular myth is that because a crown corporation is not in the government it will be more efficient and will cost the taxpayer less money. The strange policies of at least one of these corporations, namely B.C. Buildings Corporation makes efficiency almost impossible and stupidity and waste inevitable.

A union staff person has reported an example of a crown corporation in action which I'd like to pass on to your readers. A government office was moving to the second floor of a modern office building. The staff involved had envisaged that the 3,000 square feet of floor space would be taken up with office, storage and open spaces, which would have provided for a pleasant and effectively utilized work area.

The problem with the staff plan was that they utilized the window space for everyone in the office, and the policy of BCBC is only bosses get windows. This posed a problem for BCBC planners as the office had windows on three sides.

Undaunted, BCBC planners met the challenge by huddling the workers in small offices along the back wall, and gave the boss a large corner office. They created a 15 foot wide, but unusable hallway along the remainder of the windows.

The result: an inefficient use of office space resulting in an expenditure by the ministry for hundreds of square feet of unused and unusable space; and the construction of a dismal office, rather than an attractive efficient one.

There is a hidden "cost" involved in this type of policy, not the up front cost in dollars and cents to the ministries, but an incalculable cost to the taxpayer in employee efficiency and morale.

If this is the best BCBC can do after two year's operation, maybe the government should take a good long look at the Frankenstein they have created.

There are many unsung heroes

Re the editorial in the Sept. 6 paper The 'last hero', congratulations to whoever wrote this.

We and the whole world greatly sympathize with the royal family at this sad time. As the last hero, can there be a last — such a spirit can never die.

It was Arthur Mee, writing of heroes through the countless ages who said: "They are not dead; they have outsoared the shadows of the night, envy and culumny hate and pain, and that unrest that men miscall delight, can touch them not again.

"They see beyond the vision of our minds, for them the door is opened, the veil lifted, they see the end to which creation moves."

Many veterans in hospitals living out their shattered lives are "Heroes All" perhaps unknown, unsung or remembered, as well as all mentioned in the editorial.

No doubt the world has a lot of heroes the world will never know. God bless them all.

Royal Oak comments perpetuate distortion

I believe that recent comments on the Royal Oak industrial zoning only perpetuate the long history of distortion and confusion on this important issue.

Planning does not mean zoning for industry when a customer is knocking on the door — it means making provision for land-use needs 10, 20 or more years ahead of that need. If that fundamental had been understood by Saanich council 10 years ago, the present controversy over Royal Oak would have been avoided.

The additional 60 acres in Royal Oak still leaves Saanich with miniscule provision for industry; a total of some 500 acres or about two per cent of our total area of 42½ square miles. The suggestion that all local service industry can locate in Central Saanich is a political expedient which ignores both basic economics and sound planning principles.

A democratically determined majority of Saanich residents favors industrial zoning at Royal Oak. The well-orchestrated and politically-tuned opposition of area residents has received long and careful consideration by council who have worked hard to resolve those objections and assemble a compromise program.

It is claimed that property values in the area have been depressed by this rezoning and by industry already in place. In fact a recent survey of house resale values clearly showed a value appreciation equal to or higher than other areas of Saanich.

The extremely handsome price offered for the Hudson property is a case in point. Many claims have been made that industrial zoning will generate massive traffic problems and require the widening of Glanford Ave. In fact, residential zoning suggested by ratepayer groups would generate a greater traffic intensity, particular during evenings and weekends — the times of greatest hazard.

The truth is that no community group in Saanich wants industrial zoning in the neighborhood. Nor do they want — in most cases — commercial or retail development or pumping stations or townhouses or duplexes or condominiums or small houses or gas stations and so on.

Nevertheless it is council's responsibility to determine what reasonable provision should be made for all land-use needs and then to plan accordingly.

Most of us respect the hard work and sustained effort made by the Royal Oak Ratepayers Association which has contributed positively to the current plan but their work is done and the decision has been made so let's get on with it.

The Royal Oak political football has been kicked around long enough. This is no time for new players to arrive on the scene with the idea of starting the ball game all over again.

Dual needs of man pointed out in letter

Audrey Campbell has perceptively commented on my letter of Aug. 30, suggesting as she does that ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova's refusal to accept asylum in the West was based not so much on her preference for the Communist way of life, but "solely on fear of possible disgrace and harassment to her dearly loved family."

My intent in commenting on this incident was not so much to criticize the West but to draw attention to the dual needs of man: to expand his consciousness to embrace a whole (the metaphor of socialism); to individuate his personality to discover a uniqueness (the metaphor of capitalism). It is quite obvious the freedom to transcend these metaphors (and thus fulfill the metaphysics of our chromosomes) is more manifest in America than in the U.S.S.R.

Organic farming show applauded

I was quite elated as a result of listening to a CBC radio program, Radio Noon, on which the future of farming was aired — interested because it is such an important subject and also, well documented.

The American government have issued a directive to have pesticide verses organic farming researched. Much was covered in the program relating to all aspects of our life affected by the present situation, i.e. consumers, farmers, field workers and monopolies.

Canada was mentioned as being interested at the farmers' level (and as far as I can see, at the consumer's level). The farmers are seeking information from established organic farmers because it is unavailable at government levels.

I am sending a copy of this letter to the CBC to ask them to run the program again at a different time so more people can hear it; also, a TV program would find ready viewers.

Only those guilty to pay premiums

I would like to clear up a misunderstanding regarding the Insurance Corporation's FAIR Program contained in a letter from Clarence Goode of Victoria, recently published in your paper.

If a collision claim is made by someone it means that damage has been done to his own vehicle that he, himself, caused, not someone else. If someone else caused the damage that person's insurance policy would pay.

Mr. Goode is quite erroneous in stating that a "completely innocent" person would have to pay the accident premium. Only drivers and vehicle owners who cause accidents will pay the accident premiums.

Error on the rails

The article about Prince Rupert by Evelyn Kiernan in the Aug. 31 Colonist was quite interesting. However, the lady must be kidding when she says: "It is also the western end of Canadian Pacific Railway."

We lived for 18 years in Smithers, which is situated about halfway between Prince George and Prince Rupert, on the same railway as Prince Rupert and it is definitely not the CPR but the Canadian National Railway.

Alberni auditorium rental still filled with controversy

I have been asked to write to the Colonist, as a representative of the Alberni Valley Overture Concerts Association, so that our members might be brought up to date regarding our stand on the ADSS auditorium rental controversy.

We are presently winding up to launch what may be our final season of concerts, and are very concerned about the future existence of our association here and that of the other groups threatened. We have, and continue to, oppose the fact that the ADSS auditorium has suddenly been made into such a costly commodity for its various user groups.

We attended a meeting with city council April 9 when we, as part of these groups, arranged to voice our disapproval and alarm.

We, along with others, then attended a meeting with School District No. 70 on May 15. There we did our best to make it clear that we were alarmed that the first proposal to turn over the rental of the auditorium was to be put into the hands of the parks and recreation commission without any public input.

It was decided that the proposal would be reevaluated and again submitted. We were assured that next time we would be invited to add our thoughts on the proposal and help in its formation.

The third meeting of consequence we attended was with the joint board of School District No. 70 and the parks and recreation commission.

We feel that we made ourselves as clear as possible at that time that the categories of fees to be charged were inadequate because they were too few and all-conclusive and we were very uncomfortable with the sudden large rental increase.

Our auditorium, our only available facility for large concerts in this valley, is suddenly being converted into a money-making operation and those who would bring entertainment to the Port Alberni audiences are being told that they must finance the auditorium's upgrading.

We are keen to see our auditorium used to its fullest potential and to eventually have the necessary renovations done, but we feel that the present proposal for its use asks that this be done much too quickly and at too much cost to its users. There is not much use, after all, in having an auditorium which no one but large, out-of-town promoters can afford to use.

In comparison with some other facilities used by other communities which also sponsor Overture Concerts Association performers, our auditorium is suddenly grossly more expensive.

On top of this, we are asked to defend ourselves against people who see no difference between us and the promoters of a rock concert. It seems sad that one must attempt to define the term "quality" to people only interested in "quantity."

We are as yet unsure of the full implications of this proposal on our operating budget and are going ahead with what may be our final series of concerts. We hope it will be our best so far, even if it may be our last.

Toronto trading

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market lagged Monday despite large gains in real estate and construction shares.

Analysts said real estate stocks have been growing steadily for several months as investors nose out real assets as a hedge against inflation.

The real estate and construction index reached an all-time high.

But oil and gas, propelled by Dome Pete's announcement last week of an oil find in the Beaufort Sea, surpassed Friday's record high by 7.26 points.

Harry Rannala, an analyst with Walwyn Stogell Cochran Murray Ltd., said Nu-West Developments stimulated buying in real estate and construction with its announcement that it will sell 725 acres of land near Calgary. It said it expects to realize a $10 million profit.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — News of oil and gas discoveries spurred a slow advance on Wall Street Monday despite gloomy economic predictions from the White House and the Federal Reserve.

The stock market is trying to sneak back up, said Charles Jensen of MKI Securities. But Nancy Teeters, a member of the Federal Reserve board of governors, was less optimistic.

She said the nation will go through "a small recession" followed by a slow recovery, and added the outlook for inflation and unemployment is "truly discouraging."

At the White House, Press Secretary Jody Powell said the Carter administration doesn't expect inflation to reach acceptable levels by year-end.

Dome Petroleum's major oil discovery in the Beaufort Sea continued to buoy many energy issues.

Mobil, which Monday announced an oil find off Indonesia rose 1⅝ to $47½.

Few favor higher rates

By CANADIAN PRESS

Most business leaders and economists reacted as expected Monday to record high bank interest rates, saying they will do more harm than good.

"It is certainly going to cool off the mortgage market," remarked Doug Peters, economist at the Toronto Dominion Bank.

Others said the high rates would restrain consumer spending, hurt corporate profits and long term-borrowers, and have a negative impact on capital investment by industry.

The only enthusiastic note came from Andrew Kniewasser, president of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada, who said the rate is not a sign of weakness "but another indication of the government's intention to proceed with good economic management of the country."

The interest rate flurry followed a move Friday by the central Bank of Canada in raising its prime lending rate by half a per cent to 12¼ per cent.

On Monday, Canada's chartered banks quickly followed suit, raising their prime rates — the ones they charge to their blue-chip corporate borrowers — to a record 13 per cent.

The chartered banks also increased interest on non-chequing bonus savings accounts by one-quarter of one per cent to 10¼ per cent, retroactive to Sept. 1.

This rate will increase a further one-quarter of one per cent to 10½ per cent, effective Oct. 1.

In addition, the Bank of Montreal announced a corresponding increase for its small business rate to 13 per cent.

Other bank rates, including mortgages and those affecting the newly-introduced daily interest savings accounts, are under review.

Peters said mortgage rates now are likely to go up because "there hasn't been nearly as much slack in the mortgage market as a year ago."

At least two major banks reacted by raising their mortgage rates Monday in the range of 12 to 13 per cent.

Mortgage rates have not moved up as much as bank prime rates which means they are currently out of line with the market.

"Until recently, there has been quite a bit of excess funds in the mortgage markets," Peters said. "But these excess funds are no longer there and the pressure will be on to get that rate up."

Gold on rebound

NEW YORK (AP) — Gold prices rebounded Monday on major bullion markets, while the U.S. dollar slipped in Europe but finished mixed in late New York trading.

In London, gold finished at $335.875 in fairly slow trading, compared with Friday's closing of $332.50. That was a record closing for the London market, but well short of the all-time trading high of $341.75 reached last Thursday in Zurich.

Rates for the U.S. dollar as of 4 p.m. in New York included: 1.8093 West German marks, up from 1.8075; 4.2185 French francs, down from 4.2230; 1.6273 Swiss francs up from 1.6255; 220.95 Japanese yen, up from 220.90; 1.1630 Canadian dollars down from 1.1662.

Land price ups BCRIC budget

By GEORGE GIBSON
Colonist business editor

VANCOUVER — The oil and gas business is booming and that division of the multi-armed B.C. Resources Investment Corp. is being pushed to keep abreast of the times. Robert Currie, Calgary, vice-president for BCRIC's oil and gas division, said here at a press briefing Monday that his budget has already been increased from $8.5 million to about $11 million for 1979 and he is getting his arguments together to ask corporation directors for more than the current five-year budget allows.

When BCRIC was launched, the B.C. government parcelled off 2.3 million acres of wildcat property, valued at about $41 million to get the enterprise off and running. The prospectus issued prior to the mammoth shares distribution also said that $55 million had been set aside for the next five years to maintain the operation, which for the first few years at least, will required buying more and more land and entering farm-in agreements with other oil and gas firms.

"We've had to up our bids by about 25% to keep up with the escalating prices," Currie admitted.

He further said that the corporation has been unsuccessful in some of its bidding during government land sales because it and partners didn't have the information that the successful bidder was using. He also reminded his listeners that the highest bid isn't necessarily the winning bid in certain sale situations.

However, BCRIC now has the wherewithal to handle any budgetary increases that might be required. Besides its $151.5 million in assets held prior to the share distribution, it can count on the $487.5 million raised during that distribution and the kitty is growing by about $1 million per week with interest.

Currie said that the corporation has added about 100,000 acres to its holdings in land sales in B.C. and Alberta. About two-thirds of that total, he said, are in B.C.

Currie admitted that one day the corporation might extend its field of operations beyond Alberta and B.C. borders, has looked at possibilities in Saskatchewan, Montana and Texas and has even "been told about" what he termed "a very interesting thing" in the Australian boondocks.

"Not yet" was the way in which Currie responded to a question about whether or not BCRIC had any plans to take part in possible offshore drilling programs on the west coast.

"We try to give preference to deals in B.C., over the others, however," Currie said, adding that it was simpler matter to put together agreements of all kinds in Alberta. Also, he said, the drilling is easier and can be done all year round for the most part. B.C. is mostly a winter drilling situation.

Updating some of the early drilling programs that BCRIC has been involved with in its first year of operation, the Calgary executive reiterated the news of a gas find in a partnership with Wainoco "good enough to justify further activity on nearby land." He could not, for well security reasons, be more specific.

A partnership on a northern well with Esso was a dry hole, plugged and abandoned, another with Gulf has been drilled but more geological work must be done, with yet another, with Czar Resources, will be part of this winter's drilling program.

BCRIC cannot, under the terms of its incorporation, drill exploratory wells itself on its licenced lands (those granted it by the government), but must take in partners. All of its original 27 blocks of land are now disposed of in that fashion (one of them twice, when an original partner backed down).

"What we're doing is normal activity in our industry," Currie said.

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts Monday at the Calgary public stockyards totalled 139 head, mostly feeder cattle and stock steer calves. There were too few slaughter cattle to quote prices. Feeder cattle receipts consisted mainly of shortkeep feeder steers and stock steer calves. Shortkeep feeder steers sold actively at steady prices. Stock steer calves met a narrow demand at prices slightly lower than Friday's strong prices. Shortkeep feeder steers over 800 lbs. $80-83; good stock steer calves all weights 1.10-1.12; common to medium under 600 lbs. 1.00-1.10.

Enrolment rise first since 1968

Elementary enrolment is up this year in the Greater Victoria school district for the first time since 1968, surprising school officials who had expected it to drop by more than 300 students.

The enrolment figures could mean that the school district is nearing the bottom of its projected enrolment decline several years earlier than expected, school board chairman Carol Pickup said.

The preliminary figures for enrolment show that 13,090 elementary pupils registered in the district, 45 more than last year at the same time. The district had projected an enrolment of 12,740, 305 fewer than last year.

At the secondary level, enrolment this year was 11,052 students, down by 583 from the 11635 who registered last year, but slightly higher than the 11,037 students which the district expected to have.

As a result, the school district has a net loss of 538 students, a difference of 365 students from the 903 it had expected to lose.

School district planner Bob Yates said until the figures were analysed more carefully it would be difficult to determine the cause of the enrolment increase.

A large increase in intermediate grades (Grades 4-7) would indicate higher-than-anticipated in-migration, while more students in kindergarten would suggest that natural population growth in the area was occurring faster than predicted.

Mrs. Pickup said elementary enrolment in the district was expected to bottom out and begin rising again at some point, but the increase this year would indicate the turn-around was occurring about two years earlier than expected.

"This is further proof that we shouldn't look at getting rid of any facilities in the future," Mrs. Pickup, an opponent of school closures last year, said.

The increase in elementary enrolment is the first since 1968, when the district enrolled 19,750 elementary students, and the 583-student decline for both elementary and secondary enrolment is the smallest decline since 1970.

CLOVERDALE-QUADRA

Saanich slaps moratorium on apartments

A two-month moratorium on apartment development in the so-called Cloverdale-Quadra triangle was ordered by Saanich council Monday pending a study of the area by municipal planners.

The decision came moments after aldermen had agreed to refer to public hearing a request to rezone land on Glasgow and Quadra for a 28-unit condominium.

The 75-acre study area is bounded by Cloverdale, Tolmie, Quadra and Cook.

Both the planner and the Advisory Planning Commission recommended rejection of the application until a policy had been established by council for "this very sensitive area."

Assistant planner Allan Hopper said the 1.6-acre site, housing three large homes, is sandwiched between two large apartments.

Considerable concern had been expressed about the impact of large apartment buildings in this part of the municipality without the benefit of an over-all local area plan, he said.

The insensitivity of the zoning bylaw, particularly with regard to apartment development, had been recognized in drafting the official community plan, he noted.

The plan recommended a review of apartment site development standards to improve the quality of site development by a decrease in the floor space ratio and an increase in design requirements relating to height, setbacks, parking and landscaping, he said.

"And this particular application points out the need for such a study."

The majority of trees on the site would be removed and the property terraced to accommodate two large buildings.

In the past decade about one-quarter of the apartment construction in Saanich has occurred in the triangle, and in that time four large apartment buildings have been built in the block for which the rezoning is being sought.

"This has resulted in a high concentration of suites without provision for major park amenities," Hopper said.

Apartments had been built on both sides of Quadra between Inverness and the Victoria-Saanich boundary, but Glasgow still served the purpose of providing access to detached houses at a relatively low density, he added.

The 11 apartments in the area ranged in size from 12 to 108 suites, council was told.

Ald. Sandy Noel said the area between Inverness and Tolmie was already cluttered with apartments and unsuitable for any other type of development.

Ald. Howard Sturrock said he was opposed to holding a hearing on the application until results of the study were available.

Civvy police seek split from CUPE

By DON COLLINS
Colonist reporter

The question of whether 23 Saanich civilian police employees can break away from the Canadian Union of Public Employees to join a police association may have a far-reaching impact when it comes before the Labor Relations Board next week.

Saanich Police Association president Phil Jamieson says the decision could have an important bearing on the provision of emergency services. As members of the police association, the civilian employees would remain on the job to handle such services in the event of a CUPE strike or lockout.

"It may be precedent setting, in that it may show if the intent of the Essential Services Act really is to supply emergency services," says Jamieson.

Maureen Nuttall, president of the Saanich CUPE local involved, agrees there could be a precedent set if the board allows the switch. But she disagrees that it would mean anything to the supply of essential services, since CUPE members are covered by the act through last year's amendments.

Jamieson says the police association made no attempt to lure the civilian employees into the association, but only responded when they said they wanted to make the change.

"The employees did this on their own," he said. "Our association voted last May to accept them and asked the Labor Relations Board for the necessary change."

But some CUPE officials believe Saanich may simply be the testing ground for something that could grow on a provincial or even national basis.

"It may be no coincidence that Saanich is being tested first when you consider that the president of its police association is also the president of the B.C. Police Association and the Canadian Police Association," one said.

While there is no connection, the move comes at a time when some outside workers in Saanich are petitioning for the right to break away from the 615-member local and form a CUPE local of their own. They are reportedly unhappy with the manner in which the last contract was negotiated.

Still another petition would have the local break from the Joint Negotiating Council which has served as a united bargaining front for five major core area CUPE municipal and school board locals.

The civilians employees involved in the effort to switch unions are clerical workers, radio and computer operators, pound employees and auto mechanics.

Nuttall says they have been paying membership dues to the police association since it accepted them last May, in addition to the dues they will pay to CUPE until the LRB renders a decision.

"CUPE maintains they are properly in our jurisdiction," Nuttall says.

The union has won representation cases in the past involving the police switchboard in Victoria and the status of a mechanic on the Victoria fire department.

The LRB hearing to determine the proper unit for the employees is scheduled for Sept. 19 and 20.

'Do they want old people killed?'

Esquimalt aldermen sympathize with oldsters' delegation

By JIM GIBSON
Colonist reporter

A man with a white cane told Esquimalt's traffic committee of the hazards of crossing Esquimalt Road.

"I've had so many narrow misses it isn't funny," he said.

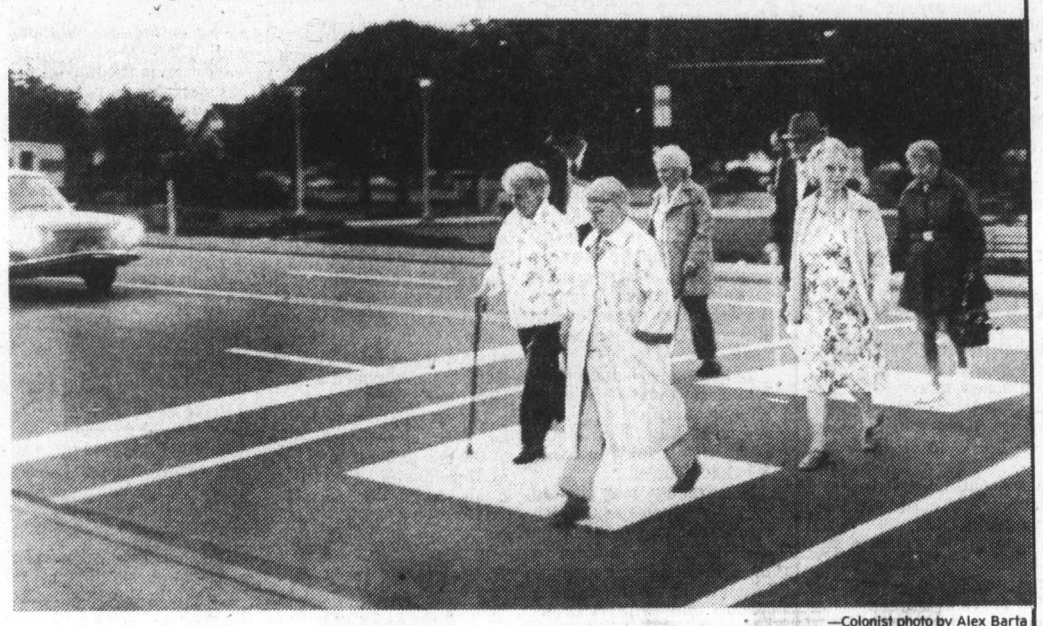

Another elderly man talked of his friends' problems at the Fraser and Esquimalt Road intersection crosswalks, used by many on their way to seniors' activities at the recreation centre.

"Someday we'll be buying flowers for them," said the man who was one of the more than 30 elderly persons attending a traffic committee meeting Monday night.

According to Harold Glover who organized a 139-signature petition demanding traffic lights at the Fraser intersection, Esquimalt Road is "a racetrack."

"Do they want old people killed?

"Do they want children killed?" asked Glover when separate reports from both the police and engineering departments questioned the necessity of traffic lights at that intersection when there were lights one block away in both directions.

Group ventures across Esquimalt Road crosswalk

While the municipal officials wouldn't give support to the seniors' cause, two of the three aldermen on the traffic committee did.

Only Ald. Ken Hill voted against a recommendation for the light as he felt that increased police surveillance should be tried first.

Ald. Larry Mann said that once the increased police surveillance subsided, the problem of speeding cars and passing in the crosswalk would continue.

"It's only going to cost us $2,000 and that's a helluva lot cheaper than paying a constable to stand there," said Mann.

Municipal staff concerns that an additional light would interrupt the traffic flow along Esquimalt Road had little effect on Mann.

"Most of that traffic is from the Dockyard going home to other parts of the city," he said.

"We should look after our own residents first."

Once committee had agreed to a traffic light, Glover then asked if a police man could be provided to see the seniors safely home across the controversial crosswalk after the meeting.

Chief Eric Burton said that one would, but the assigned constable had left the crosswalk by the time the majority of the elderly people reached it.

Council approves squash in winery

Squash will be played in the former Ste. Michelle winery building on Quadra Street, Saanich council decided Monday.

Aldermen approved this form of recreational pursuit in a portion of the building when it gave final reading to a rezoning bylaw.

A racquetball-squash facility complete with lounge and restaurant will be developed in 11,000 square feet of the building. Part of the old winery is now occupied by a bakery and restaurant.

Six racquetball and three squash courts are planned.

Industrial zone stalled for want of approval

Failure of the provincial government to approve several bylaws covering development of a proposed industrial zone at Royal Oak has stalled a Saanich deadline for passage of the bylaws, council was told Monday.

Council had set Sept. 10 as the deadline for obtaining all approvals needed to embarks on first phase of the project.

Aldermen, angry at what they considered government interference, ordered a letter be sent to Highways Minister Alex Fraser demanding to know when they could expect action by his ministry on the documents.

Mayor Mel Couvelier said he could not explain the delay in obtaining approvals, "something which normally takes two or three weeks, not several months as has been the case with these bylaws."

Ald. Sandy Noel said council had been guilty of "stepping on the minister's tail" by asking for a decision by a certain date.

"The greatest delay has been caused by the man who started this whole scheme, and we all know who that person is." (Although he did not identify the person, Noel was believed to have referred to Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis, a former Saanich mayor, who has been outspoken in his criticism of the project.)

Ald. Fred Severson said he hoped political pressure had not been brought to bear on the highways minister by a cabinet colleague on such a matter of prime importance to the municipality.

"I'm very sorry we can't make a decision on the industrial development tonight," he said.

Alderman renews drive for discounts for elderly

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist reporter

"They've worked hard all their lives, and we're enjoying the benefits, so it's about time we repaid them in some small measure."

With those words, Victoria Ald. Robin Blencoe launched his second an appeal to Victoria's business community to give discounts to senior citizens.

The scheme got off to a good start last year. More than 40 businesses offered special discounts to the elderly.

But Blencoe wants that list to grow.

"I'd like to see us reach the 100-mark this year," he said in an interview Monday.

Discounts now available to the elderly range from 10 per cent to 30 per cent. The businesses taking part in the scheme include restaurants, barbers, clothing stores, cleaners, optical firms and tourist attractions.

But Blencoe is still waiting for a breakthrough.

"If we could only get a grocery store to offer some discount to the elderly," he said.

"It doesn't have to pay 10 or 20 per cent. Even a five per cent discount would be a great help," he added.

There also was a need for discounts from tradesmen such as plumbers or electricians, Blencoe said.

To increase the number of merchants taking part in his discount scheme, Blencoe would like to get some help from the community. He wants volunteers to contact businesses.

"Anyone is welcome to help out. Maybe some senior citizens would like to join in the drive, or maybe some young people could spare a few days," he said.

Any business offering discounts to senior citizens will be given a logo for display in store windows or doors.

"I hope the logo will become as well known as the Chargex or Master Charge stickers," Blencoe said.

The discount scheme, he said, also had some incentives for merchants.

"It really works. A lot of merchants have told me that the discount offer brought senior citizens into the store," he said.

Many younger people, he added, patronized stores simply because they were giving the elderly a bit of a break.

Anyone willing to help with expanding the discount scheme, Blencoe said, can reach him at his city hall office. The number is 385-5711.

Contract bid fails

Victoria's 15 municipal electrical workers may be on strike against the city before the end of the week after a reported breakdown in renewed contract talks Monday.

The workers, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, had threatened strike action more than a week ago, but shelved their plans in favor of one last attempt to negotiate a settlement.

Officials of other civic unions said Monday they had been informed that a meeting with city negotiators during the morning had proved fruitless.

Just too much wood in the street names

Wooden you just know? Too many roads of similar name spell trouble.

It did at North Saanich council's meeting Monday when the fire committee objected to giving six streets in a new subdivision just south of Landsend all prefixes beginning with "wood."

The committee's report, read by Ald. Owen Philp, recommended firemen representatives on the committee should be present when streets are named, to help prevent confusion.

In the single subdivision under discussion, the names included Woodcreek Place, Woodcreek Drive, Woodberry Road, Woodberry Place, Woodbine Place and Woodgrove Place.

The recommendation that fire representatives be present was carried, and led to wide-ranging discussion on the subject.

Ald. Jim Cumming suggested the Advisory Planning Commission be present when naming is being carried out.

Ald. Bob Thompson said the idea was to get the "woodfibre" or "woodwhatever" streets all in the same area to help reduce confusion.

Philp observed that all the names of the district's early pioneers had already been used and added a problem was coming soon with more subdivisions being approved.

Cumming said a competition at Parklands high school about 10 years ago came up with a number of names "some good, some not so good" and perhaps the idea could be tried again.

Mayor George Westwood noted that Mountbatten was already in vogue in Victoria in the wake of the viscount's death in an Irish terrorist attack.

Clerk-administrator Ted Fairs said the post office had a list of names reserved for North Saanich to prevent duplication with other streets and roads in the Capital Region, and if new ones were to be chosen, "we should say we don't want their list any more."

Thompson said some of the names vetted at the last meeting were more like southern California in their approach.

A motion to invite the APC to submit a new list of names was approved, with Ald. Ed Farthing opposed. He did not explain why.

Judge reaffirms coach's sentence

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Controversial basketball coach Bobby Knight, back home in Indiana, had his six-month sentence reaffirmed Monday after he refused to appeal his conviction of assault against a Puerto Rican police officer during the Pan-American Games in July.

The Indiana University coach, who said Sunday that he has no intention of ever returning to Puerto Rico, formally was sentenced by District Judge Rurico Rivera. Knight also was ordered to pay a $500 fine, the maximum for a misdemeanor charge. Both the sentence and fine originally were announced when Knight was found guilty in absentia Aug. 22.

The judge issued an arrest order. It was not expected, however, that Puerto Rico, a United States commonwealth, would attempt to extradite Knight back to where he coached the U.S. basketball team to a gold medal in the Games.

When the sentence was handed down last month by Rivera, he gave Knight two weeks to show up in court to file an appeal. The judge ordered the sentence imposed Monday since Knight failed to appear.

Eskimo cheques snatched

EDMONTON (CP) — Police have arrested a man who made off with Edmonton Eskimos' souvenirs Monday — about 20 football players' pay cheques. The cheques have a total value of about $18,000 but team officials stopped payment on them.

An Eskimo official said said the cheques, prepared after Sunday's game against Saskatchewan Roughriders, were sitting on the edge of a secretary's desk when a man walked in, swept them off the desk and left the building. Staff membersgot the licence number of a vehicle and the man was soon arrested by police.

NHL officials get boost

TORONTO (CP) — National Hockey League referees and linesmen have won a 25 to 30-per-cent increase in total benefits in a new three-year contract with the league. The new deal was announced at a news conference Monday by NHL president John Ziegler and John McCauley, president of the Officials Association.

Ziegler said the 25 to 30-per-cent increase means that the lowest paid official now will earn $25,000 a year and the highest paid will get $60,000.

A major change in the contract means that all officials now are covered by the collective bargaining agreement with a salary scaled based on years of service in the NHL. Under previous agreements, each referee and linesman signed an individual contract with the league.

Heart attack proves fatal

BURNABY (CP) — Mervin Adams, 59, coach of the Australian women's field hockey team, died here Sunday a week after suffering a heart attack. Adams, of Perth, Australia, had coached the team to a fourth place finish at the women's field hockey championships played here last month.

He was born in India, where he first learned field hockey, and became involved with the Australian men's national team in 1973. He coached that team to a silver medal in the 1976 Olympic Games held in Montreal and last June became coach of the women's team.

Shoemaker rides double

DEL MAR, Calif. (AP) — Canadian-owned Table Hands, with 48-year-old Bill Shoemaker scoring his second major triumph of the weekend, won the $162,520 Debutante Stakes for two-year-old fillies at Del Mar on Sunday.

Shoemaker also rode three-year-old Spectacular Bid to a victory Saturday in the $300,000 Marlboro Cup at Belmont Park, New York, as Bid won $180,000.

New land speed mark set

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (Reuter) — Hollywood stuntman Stan Barrett raced across the salt flats in his rocket on wheels Sunday to set a world land speed record of 1,021 kilometres an hour (638.637 miles). Barrett, 36, broke by more than 11 kmh (seven miles) the previous highest speed for a manned wheeled vehicle of 1,010 kmh set by Gary Gabelich in 1970.

Barrett's triumph was marred when four members of a television crew apparently flew too close to his vehicle in a helicopter. Rocket fuel was blown on the men by the blades of the helicopter and they were taken to a hospital suffering from fumes, officials said.

Allison breezes to win

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Bobby Allison took the lead early in the race and held it nearly all the way as he breezed to victory in the Capital City 400 Grand National stock car race. Allison outduelled defending champion Darrell Waltrip through the middle stages of the race and then pulled steadily away at the end over the half-mile track.

Waltrip, the Grand National point leader who had the lead briefly under a caution flag, finished second and was the only driver in the same lap with Allison at the finish. Ricky Rudd was third, followed by Dale Earnhardt, Cale Yarborough and Richard Petty.

Rookie holds off veterans

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rookie Rusty Wallace held off veterans Joe Ruttman and A. J. Foyt to win the Governor's Cup 250-mile United States Auto Club stock car race Sunday. Wallace, driving a 1979 Pontiac Firebird, finished three seconds ahead of Ramo Stott who drove a 1978 Chevrolet Camaro.

The victory, Wallace's second in as many USAC stock races, earned him the winner's share of a $43,500 purse before a crowd of 13,478. Wallace recently won a 150-mile USAC stock race on the dirt track at Du Quoin, Ill.

Unger
... Islanders interested

Unger will test equalization rule

TORONTO (CP) — Free-agent centre Garry Unger of St. Louis Blues says he will take legal action to test the National Hockey League's equalization rule, which he alleges is restricting his move to another team.

Lawyers for the 31-year-old veteran informed the NHL, the NHL Players Association and the Blues on Monday of the lawsuit pending against them, saying that Unger has rejected St. Louis's final contract offer.

The lawyers, Norman Caplan and Arthur Kaminsky, said New York Islanders are interested in acquiring Unger but are reluctant to sign him unless their compensation to the Blues is spelled out beforehand.

The NHL's equalization rule calls for "fair and equitable" compensation to a club that loses a free agent to another team.

"If Islanders went ahead and signed Garry," the lawyers said, "they would face arbitration to decide what is fair and equitable compensation, and they do not want to place themselves in that position."

In was binding arbitration that sent Dale McCourt, an outstanding young centre, from Detroit Red Wings to Los Angeles Kings after the Wings signed goaltender Rogatien Vachon. Several court actions later, the transaction was settled and McCourt remained with Detroit.

St. Louis has offered Unger a two-year contract worth $150,000 a year — about 20 per cent more than he made on his six-year contract that expired June 1.

Unger, considered the NHL's most eligible free agent, has 377 career goals and 352 assists.

He has played in a league-record 883 consecutive games.

Sox stop Orioles but Yaz hitless

Boston Red Sox finally beat Baltimore Orioles but the Fenway Park fans were denied a piece of baseball history Monday.

Jim Rice tripled and drove in two runs and Fred Lynn hit two doubles and scored twice as the Red Sox edged the Orioles 3-2 in an American League game played before a crowd of 30,618.

But the win was little consolation for the fans. They've watched their Red Sox lose 16 of 22 games, including three straight to the Orioles on the weekend, and were on hand mainly to see veteran favorite Carl Yastrzemski get his 3,000 hit.

Yastrzemski made hit 2,999 in a 16-4 loss to the Orioles Sunday but he went hitless in four at-bats against Dennis Martinez Monday. Yastrzemski grounded out three times and struck out once.

Lynn doubled home a first-inning run and Rice followed with a sacrifice fly which scored Rick Burleson. In the third, Rice tripled in Lynn, who had doubled.

Bob Stanley, 15-9, allowed only four singles as the Orioles scored both their runs on double-play grounders, in the fourth and fifth innings. Stanley left after issuing a leadoff walk to Terry Crowley in the ninth, with Dick Drago finishing up.

Defeat ended the Orioles win streak at seven games.

The Boston fans get another chance to honor Yastrzemski's No. 3,000 today as the Red Sox host New York Yankees.

Western leaders California Angels were idle Monday and second-place Kansas City Royals split a doubleheader with Minnesota Twins, winning 6-5 and losing 5-2, to remain four games behind the leaders.

Falcons turn interception into winning touchdown

Atlanta Falcons, who made it to the National Football League playoffs last year and survived in the first round, are one of eight clubs away to a 2-0 start and on top in the National Conference West.

Their second win came Monday night when a fourth-quarter interception set up the touchdown which brought a 14-10 win over Philadelphia Eagles, who were looking for their first 2-0 start in 18 seasons.

Free-safety Tom Pridemore ran 20 yards after his interception to leave the Falcons 17 yards away from the Philadelphia end zone. Quarterback Steve Bartkowski was sacked for a six-yard loss after getting his club to the nine-yard line, but he came back with a 14-yard pass to Wallace Francis and then carried over on a quarterback sneak.

Last year in the playoffs, Bartkowski threw a fourth-quarter scoring pass to Francis for a 14-13 triumph.

Falcons, who opened their season with a 40-34 overtime win over New Orleans Saints are the only unbeaten club in their division. The Flyers share second place in the National Conference East, led by Dallas Cowboys.

The Cowboys are 2-0 more out of habit than anything else. They sneaked by St. Louis Cardinals 22-21 on a late field goal in their opener, and struggled again Sunday before finally vanquishing San Francisco 49ers 21-13.

Roger Staubach's first two touchdown passes of the season made the difference. O.J. Simpson returned to the San Francisco lineup and while he scored the 49ers' only touchdown, he managed to rush for only 43 yards.

But things haven't changed for Pittsburgh Steelers, who bested the Cowboys in the last Super Bowl game. The defending champions did have trouble with New England Patriots in their 1979 opener, but on Sunday they manhandled Houston Oilers 38-7 in what was more a replay than a rematch of the American Conference playoff final last year.

The Pittsburgh defence, which sacked quarterback Dan Pastorini five times and intercepted him three times, also held Earl Campbell to 38 yards rushing, the lowest total in the rushing champion's short pro career.

There was action on and off the field for the resurgent Patriots on Sunday. Quarterback Steve Grogan, whose poor passing was blamed by some reporters for the Pittsburgh loss, responded by passing for 315 yards and five touchdowns in a 56-3 rout of the New York Jets.

Grogan, who was taken out in the third quarter, wasn't directly involved in a post-game clubhouse hassle which Monday brought an apology from Patriot-cornerback Raymond Clayborn.

Clayborn, who refused to grant interviews because of what he considered unfair reporting on the Pittsburgh game, is said to have stuck a finger in Will McDonough's eye after an exchange of words. The burly Boston sportswriter responded with a punch to the face which sent Clayborn sprawling.

Other Sunday newsmakers:

● Roland Hooks scored on two, 32, four and 28-yard runs to lead Buffalo Bills to a 51-24 rout of the Cincinnati Bengals;

● Dan Fouts threw three touchdown passes as San Diego Chargers brought Oakland Raiders back to earth with a 30-10 spanking. The Raiders had opened with a surprise win over Los Angeles Rams;

● Walter Payton scored 43 and 26-yard touchdowns in rushing for 182 yards and leading Chicago Bears to a 26-7 trouncing of the Minnesota Vikings;

● Brian Sipe threw the last of his three touchdown passes only 52 seconds from time to bring Cleveland Browns a 27-24 decision over Kansas City Chiefs;

● Bob Griese had two scoring passes to make the difference as Miami Dolphins scrambled to a 19-10 win over Seattle Seahawks, who haven't yet come up with the magic of last season;

● Tampa Bay Buccaneers, who came into the league with the Seahawks in 1975, made it two for two by topping Baltimore Colts 29-26 and share the lead in the National Conference West with the Bears.

In other games Sunday, Green Bay Packers defeated New Orleans Saints 28-19, the Cardinals came from behind to beat New York Giants 27-24 and Washington Redskins rallied to take Detroit Lions 27-24.

Young Scot set to try U.S. tour

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — Sandy Lyle, the European Open golf champion, is anxious to test his skill against U.S. golf stars on their home territory.

The 21-year-old Scot, who won the $35,000 first prize with a final round of 65 for a five-under-par 275 total Sunday, led the rest of the field by seven strokes in the $250,000 event. He is hoping that the success will gain him an invitation to the 1980 Masters tournament at Augusta, Ga.

If so, he will use his new Ryder Cup status to play in three U.S. tour events immediately before the Masters.

Lyle's runaway victory was a perfect sendoff for the European Ryder Cup team that was scheduled to leave today for Greenbrier, W.Va.

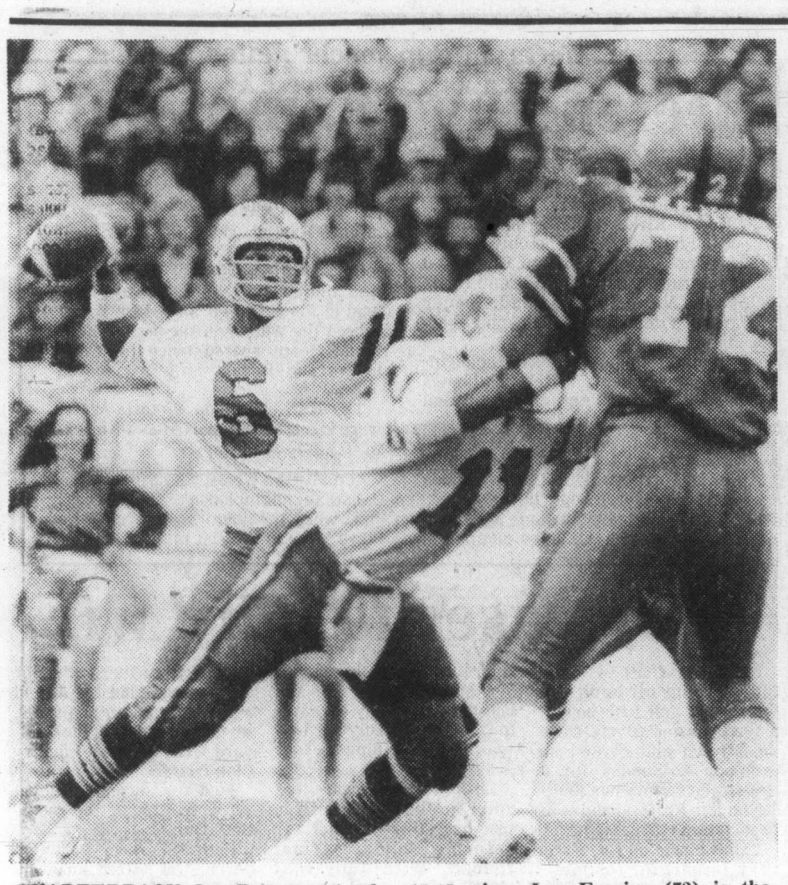

"This is the best team we have ever sent to try and win the trophy," said European captain John Jacobs. "Severiano Ballesteros (of Spain) is the most gifted young golfer I have ever seen and although we have a young side it is not young in experience.

"Now Sandy Lyle has shown what he can do and we have great hopes this time."

South African Dale Hayes and Peter Townsend of Britain shared second spot in the tournament with two-over-par 282s.

Ballesteros finished in a three-way tie for sixth at 284. Last year's champion, Bobby Wadkins, and fellow American Larry Nelson were tied for 15th at 289.

QUARTERBACK Joe Paopao (6) of B.C. gets protection as he drops back to pass during Sunday action in Winnipeg where the Lions emerged with a 17-15 win. Leo Ezerins (72) is the Bomber being impeded by running-back Larry Key (11). Paopao played in place of the injured Jerry Tagge

Lions continue charmed life in stumbling past Bombers

B.C. Lions did it again Sunday, continuing the charmed existence which has them with the second-best record in the Canadian Football League and a Western Conference playoff berth all but assured after nine games.

Forced to go all the way with inexperienced Joe Paopao at quarterback and not making things any easier for him with 10 penalties which cost 104 yards, the Lions somehow scrambled their way to a 17-15 win over the Blue Bombers in Winnipeg.

Victory, their seventh although they are averaging less than 20 points a game, left the Lions with 15 points but still in second place. Edmonton Eskimos remained unbeaten and a point to the good by crushing the winless Saskatchewan Roughriders 40-0.

In Eastern Conference play Sunday, Montreal Alouettes boosted their grip on first place by disposing of the improved Toronto Argonauts 31-11.

Winnipeg winners on July 24 when Bernie Ruoff was wide on a late field-goal try, the Lions never looked like winners this time although they opened the scoring with a field goal and later came from 3-5 to 10-5. But, behind 10-12, they found a way to score a last-quarter touchdown and make it stand up for the points.

It was set up when a Winnipeg pass was deflected and picked off by Kenny Hinton. Then Paopao, who showed poise and a strong arm to balance his inexperience, hit Tyrone Gray with a 29-yard scoring pass.

The play was set up when Mike Nott, who joined the club earlier in the month to replace Paopao as backup quarterback, noted that defence-back Frank Bark was playing the speedy Gray a bit tight. Nott relayed the information and suggested that a hitch-and-go pattern might work. It did, Paopao delivering the ball perfectly when Gray got clear by a step or two.

The Lions weren't home-free by any means, but they settled things with about a minute when a calculated gamble paid off. The Lions were on their 24-yard line in a third-and-one situation but coach Vic Rapp thought going for the first down made for better odds than an against-the-wind punt which would have left the Bombers needing only short yardage for a reasonable chance at a field goal.

John Henry White made the first down, and the Lions still had the ball when time ran out.

Paopao went the distance, completing 13 of 26 passes for 225 yards without being intercepted. His favorite target was Gray, who caught seven passes for 122 yards to leave Rapp with a sticky decision. Gray, a rookie import, has been filling in for Leon Bright but last year's star is due to come off the injured list this week and be eligible to play Sunday against Edmonton.

Eskimos, with no worries about the eventual result, rested veteran Tom Wilkinson and let Warren Moon quarterback the entire game. The second-year pro called a conservative game but it piled up 39 points in the first half and the defending champions eased through the last two quarters.

Jim Germany, who rushed for 145 yards in 20 carries, scored two touchdowns. Canadian-veteran Angelo Santucci, rookie-import Brian Kelly, who caught a pass from Moon, and Moon got the other touchdowns. Dave Cutler converted each time and provided the other five points from three field-goal chances.

David Green led the Alouettes by rushing for 210 yards in 26 carries and scoring a last-play touchdown. The defending division champions rolled up 442 yards, 315 of them by running.

Green's effort gave him 837 yards for the season and boosted his edge as the leading rusher in the CFL.

Victory, second in five days against the Argos, left Alouettes with 12 points.

Rider receiver still in hospital

EDMONTON (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughrider wide receiver Freeman Johns, injured Sunday in his club's 40-0 defeat at the hands of Edmonton Eskimos, is being kept under observation in hospital until at least today.

Dr. Ernie Wiens, of Edmonton's Royal Alexandra Hospital, said Monday the diagnosis of Johns' injuries — concussion on the left side of the head — has not changed, but that Johns is still suffering post-concussion headaches that would make it too uncomfortable for him to travel.

Johns was expected to be released from hospital late Monday and then fly back to Regina.

In his first game Sunday since coming off the injury list, Johns collided with Eskimo defender Joe Hollimon and fell awkwardly. As medical help rushed from both sides of the field he went into convulsions and lost consciousness.

An ambulance took him to hospital where doctors determined he had suffered a concussion and decided to keep him under observation.

Two capture two titles in pistol event

Dr. Bud Wolochow and Major George Eaton were double winners in the 30th annual pistol tournament of the Pacific Coast Rifle Association Sunday.

The standard pistol and centre-fire pistol awards went to Dr. Wolochow while Major Eaton took top honors in the closed nine millimetre and closed aggregate events held at the Victoria City Police Revolver Range.

Art Thomsett won the free pistol competition while George Hutcheon was the tyro standard pistol winner, Jim Lee won the nine millimetre civilian award and Trudy Danard won the women's match.

Royal Roads Military College won the Canadian Armed Forces nine millimetre team event behind the shooting of officer cadets Beavis, Maly and Malatest.

Eva Sennewald was second in the women's match.

Ben runner-up again as Graham prevails

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — On the 17th hole, Lou Graham set up for a tough chip shot when a fan on the hill shouted: "Don't let the pressure get you."

The fan obviously didn't know who he was addressing. The 41-year-old Graham has been playing golf under pressure for a long time, winning more than $1 million in prize money on the PGA tour since 1964.

"That made me more determined," Graham said Sunday after winning the $250,000 Pleasant Valley Classic. "I didn't look up. I just stepped back, looked at my ball and hit right up to the hole."

Then, with a two-stroke lead, the pressure became more intense. As Graham got set for his short putt on the 17th green, he heard a tremendous roar from a huge gallery on the 18th. Ben Crenshaw had finished with a birdie and Graham's lead was cut to one stroke.

"Nobody had to tell me," Graham said. "I knew what had happened. I didn't even turn around to look at the leader board."

Graham played the final hole cautiously, getting down in par by two-putting from 12 feet for his victory, accomplished with a nine-under-par 275.

Crenshaw, a local favorite who made his pro debut here, was a bridesmaid once again — for the fifth time in the last six tournaments — taking runner-up money of $27,000 instead of the winner's share of $45,000.

Graham, who held a two-stroke lead after the second round of the rain-delayed tournament Saturday, fell one stroke back with a par 71 Sunday morning as young Dave Edwards, the 1978 NCAA champion, fired a five-under 66. Then he went to the putting green for practice.

With his putter working, Graham shot a final round of 69, one stroke better than Crenshaw.

Terry Diehl went over par for the first time in the tournament with a closing-round 72, finishing third and earning $17,000. Edwards soared to 77 in the afternoon, ending in a tie for 10th at 282.

About Islanders

Rams trim Dolphins

Surrey Rams put Victoria Dolphins back on the wrong track Sunday.

The Dolphins managed only a pair of singles by Paul Docherty as they dropped a 25-2 decision to Surrey Rams in a Big Four Junior Football League game at Royal Athletic Park.

It was the fourth loss for the Dolphins who were coming off their first victory of the season.

The Dolphins complete their home schedule with a game against Richmond Raiders at 5 p.m. Sunday at Athletic Park.

B.C. tops in youth soccer

BURNABY — British Columbia had little problem winning the Western Canada under-16 soccer championship on the weekend.

The unbeaten B.C. XI wrapped up the title with an 8-3 pasting of Alberta in the final game of the four-team, round-robin tournament Sunday at Swangard Stadium.

B.C. had scored 11-1 wins over both Manitoba and Saskatchewan in earlier games.

Mark Karpun scored four goals in the final game, Paul Askew of Victoria counted twice and Frank Yallop and David Richardson scored once each.

Adam Keith of Victoria is also a member of the team which will play the Eastern champions Sept. 2 at Swangard Stadium.

Bayuk Mt. Brenton champ

Frank Bayuk paid a visit to his old course on the weekend and came away with low-gross honors in the annual Mt. Brenton golf tournament.

The former Mt. Brenton junior who now lives in Vancouver shot rounds of 71 and 72 for a one-under-par 143 and a four-stroke victory in the two-day, 36-hole event.

Aren Fredrickson of Nanaimo finished tied for second at 147 with Grant Milliken of Gorge Vale but won the countback while Dave Mick of Colwood finished fourth with 148.

Jack Simmonds of the host club won the low-net title while Brian Robertson of Nanaimo was second, Jim Eitner of Mt. Brenton finished third and Doug Cleough of Port Alberni was fourth.

Hornets record third win

Saanich Hornets stretched their unbeaten streak to three games and took over first-place in the Vancouver Island Junior "B" Football League Sunday.

Tom Graham scored both touchdowns and Andy Moodie kicked a pair of converts as Saanich edged previously unbeaten Nanaimo Headhunters 14-7 at Nanaimo.

In the other game, Oak Bay Farmer Construction thumped winless Cowichan Timbermen 35-6.

Scott Tuttle scored two touchdowns for Oak Bay, Terry Jones, Mark Edgington and Steve Percival scored one touchdown each and Darren Alexander kicked a single and four conversions.

Saanich	3	2	0	1	5
Nanaimo	3	2	1	0	4
Oak Bay	3	1	1	1	3
Cowichan	3	0	3	0	0

Bantam win for Cowichan

Dale Caronchan scored three touchdowns as Cowichan Chiefs whipped perennial champion Saanich Hornets 38-16 in a Vancouver Island Bantam League football game Sunday at Cedar Hill Park.

The loss dropped the Hornet into a tie for second place with Saanich Vampires who crushed Nanaimo Trojans 45-0 at Cedar Hill Park.

VAMPIRES (45) — Kam Thompson two touchdowns; Neil Hundevad two touchdowns; Brad Stevenson touchdown, two converts, single; Kevin Farmer touchdown; Chuck Partridge convert; Kim Wilhelm convert. NANAIMO (0).

COWICHAN (38) — Dale Caronchan three touchdowns; John Dalaway two touchdowns, four converts. HORNETS (16) — Steve Selina two touchdowns; Ian Woodcock convert; Doug Waldie two-point safety.

Brock and 80-year-old mother on podium

Brock honored

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A 33-foot cabin cruiser and a new car were among gifts showered Sunday on retiring St. Louis Cardinals outfielder Lou Brock.

Brock, who was saluted before a game against Montreal Expos, drew thunderous applause from a crowd of 46,351 during a ceremony marked by the retirement of his uniform No. 20.

The cabin cruiser was a gift from the National League baseball club. A local radio station presented the car.

Those on hand to honor Brock included NL president Charles Feeney, Missouri Gov. Joseph Teasdale, members of Brock's family and Buck O'Neill, the Chicago Cubs scout who signed him to his first major league contract.

"My career has been full of thrills," said Brock, who recently collected his 3,000th career hit. "It has also been full of rewards. I can say that in order to receive the rewards, one must meet the challenge that lies ahead."

Boys hoop clubs need coaches

The Victoria and District Basketball Association is seeking coaches for three of its boys' minor teams.

Spokesman Dave Hutchings says two midget teams (13 and under) and one bantam team (15 and under) need coaches by the end of this month.

He says that the teams generally play one game and have one practice each week.

Anyone wishing to coach can contact Hutchings at 598-1338.

McGavin Cup soccer action

Defending champs out

Gorge went into Nanaimo and knocked off the defending McGavin Cup champions Sunday.

Howie Kirk's penalty goal in the second half provided the only scoring as Gorge edged Nanaimo United 1-0 and earned a berth in the semi-finals of the Vancouver Island Soccer League's annual season-opening tournament.

In other Sunday games of the eight-team tournament, Victoria Athletics downed Mestons Auto Body 5-2 and Cosmo Royals got by Castaways 4-3.

The semi-finals begin Wednesday with Athletics facing Cosmos at 7:15 p.m. at Royal Athletic Park. Victoria Wests play Gorge Sept. 19.

Bob Young gave Mestons a 1-0 lead Sunday but then Athletics pumped in five straight goals, two by Keith Bridge and one each by George Hyne and Murray and Dave McCaig.

Steve Farrell scored the other Mestons goal.

Chris Bridgman, Rudi Kuebler and Ken McFarlane gave Castaways a 3-0 lead in the first half and Mark Wyatt scored the winner in the second half. Brian Heaps scored twice for Castaways and Robert Gutierrez scored once.

The B.C. champion Victoria Wests were incorrectly reported as 1-0 losers to Oak Bay Saturday.

Actually the Wests, who will host the Canadian championships this weekend, were the victors on a goal by Steve Moss in the 81st minute.

Sally eases to third win

DENVER (AP) — Sally Little, reeling off birdies on the second and fifth holes, played conservatively down the stretch and carded an even-par 72 Sunday for a two-stroke victory in a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

"That birdie on No. 2 was very important for me," said Little, who registered her third victory of 1979 and boosted her yearly earnings to $115,000 — easily her best season since joining the tour in 1971.

Little was well aware that veteran Judy Rankin was just one stroke behind her entering Sunday's final round. "With Judy that close, I was very nervous starting out," Little said. "She's such a pressure player. That first birdie really helped calm me down."

The 27-year-old Little hit her approach shot to the par-four second hole just five feet from the hole, and then sank the birdie putt. She added another birdie at the fifth hole, sinking a 20-foot putt.

After that, her lead was never less than two shots.

The slender, blonde South African, who resides in Dallas, led from the start after an opening round 66. She had a three-round total of 209, seven under par on the 6,401-yard Green Gables Country Club course.

Tied for second place at 211 were Rankin and rookie Beth Daniel.

Cathy Sherk of Port Colborne, Ont., fired an even-par 72 and finished alone at 214. She won $3,300.

Gulls win title

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Third baseman Steve Lubratich tripled home the tying run and knocked in the winner as Salt Lake Gulls beat Hawaii Islanders 3-2 Sunday to take best-of-three Pacific Coast League baseball championship in three games.

Champ wins

SEOUL, South Korea (AFP) — Park Chan-Hee of South Korea held onto his World Boxing Council flyweight title Sunday in a bruising 15-round draw with Mexican challenger Miguel Canto.

Can halt baldness Finnish scientists say

LONDON — Two Finnish scientists said they have developed a scalp treatment that can halt baldness and even start new hair growing in many cases.

The scientists, who are putting the treatment on sale in the form of a solution, say that among volunteers who applied it to their scalp for 28 weeks, hair growth resumed in 60 per cent of the cases and hair loss decreased within four weeks.

The claim, however, was greeted with initial reservation by some medical experts.

The product contains a synthetic detergent, which clears away dead hairs and other dirt clogging the follicles — the tiny sacs in which hair grows.

Another ingredient, a compound, then sets in motion a process which allegedly results in the growth of new hair.

Future is now for young net stars

Austin and McEnroe U.S. Open champs

Austin

McEnroe

NEW YORK (AP) — She's 16, quiet, reserved, steady rather than flashy, a sprightly suburban schoolgirl with pigtails and pink dresses.

He's 20, brash, brazen, a shoot-from-the-hip street kid in sneakers with the talent to back up his words.

Tracy Austin and John McEnroe. They are tennis' younger generation, and Sunday they showed a sellout crowd at the U.S. Open that the future is now.

Austin, playing her patient baseline game to perfection and capitalizing on her opponent's uncommonly frequent errors, dethroned four-time and defending titlist Chris Evert Lloyd 6-4, 6-3 to become the youngest champion in U.S. tennis championship history.

Then it was McEnroe's turn, and the outcome was never in doubt. In the first all-New York final in U.S. Open history, McEnroe's strong serve and volley game proved far too effective for Vitas Gerulaitis. McEnroe won 7-5, 6-3, 6-3, to become the youngest winner of the men's singles title since Pancho Gonzalez, who was 19 when he won in 1948.

Both singles winners earned $35,000 from the total prize money of $563,600.

When it was all over, McEnroe heaved his racket into the air, his ruddy face contorted in ecstacy. He had proven himself a champion before an ornery hometown crowd that earlier in the two-week event had cheered his every fault.

"This is by far the biggest win I've ever had, especially because this tournament is practically in my backyard," said McEnroe, who lives with his family in Douglaston, about 10 minutes from the National Tennis Centre in Flushing Meadow.

"I didn't think I got nervous at matches, but these last two have really been something. I was so nervous it was a joke."

McEnroe, the No. 3 seed, had a tumultuous road to the finals. Two of his opponents defaulted. His second-round match against Ilie Nastase was a circus, an unruly crowd holding up play for 15 minutes and forcing the removal of umpire Frank Hammond.

Saturday he faced Jimmy Connors, the defending champion who had beaten McEnroe in straight sets in the same circumstances a year ago.

McEnroe knocked off Connors 6-3, 6-3, 7-5 and rode that high into the final against Gerulaitis. "I'm sorry I had to beat Vitas, because he's a friend of mine," said McEnroe. "But I'm glad he went out there and played lousy."

Actually, Gerulaitis — the No. 4 seed who grew up in Brooklyn and Howard Beach and now resides in nearby Kings Point — didn't play that badly; McEnroe played that well.

Of 15 service games, McEnroe was broken only once. The rest of the time he dominated play with his brilliant net game. Gerulaitis, whose strength is his speed and agility, was simply no match for McEnroe's power.

After Gerulaitis scored his only break to even the first set at 5-5, McEnroe broke right back and then held to close out the first set. From that point on he dominated the match, assuring himself the title by winning five games in a row from 4-3 in the second set.

The match was a calm one, with few disputed calls by either player. The record crowd of 18,288 — boosting the tournament total to a record 305,311 — cheered for Gerulaitis until the end, but McEnroe said he didn't mind. At least they didn't boo him.

"I think they were pretty fair," he said. "They clapped when we both hit good shots. Obviously they rooted for Vitas because they wanted to see a longer match."

Austin displayed patience beyond her years against Lloyd, hanging five feet back of the baseline and returning everything hit her way. Her strategy was to keep the ball in play and let her opponent make the mistakes, and since Lloyd was unable to mount any formidable attack and committed numerous unforced errors, it worked to perfection.

Austin closed out the first set with her third service break, then put herself firmly in command by winning the first three games of the second set.

What did Austin think about becoming the youngest Open champ in history?

"I don't really think about being the youngest — just the champion part."

Canadians find medals scarce

MEXICO CITY — Canada has yet to see gold or silver and has seen very little bronze so far in the 10th World University Games.

A bronze medal in swimming Sunday brought the total for Canada to two after a full week of competition but the men's basketball team was eliminated from the medal chase while Monday the women's team was left with a bronze the only possibility.

The United States did the job on the basketball teams. The unbeaten U.S. men downed Canada 86-76 and moved into the semi-finals against Mexico while the U.S. women defeatad Canada 68-62 and moved into the final.

The U.S. women will play Cuba for the gold medal while Canada faces Bulgaria, a team it beat earlier, in the game for the bronze medal.

Carol Blzejowki sparked a second-half rally that carried the U.S. back from a nine-point half time deficit.

Blazejowski scored 13 of the first 27 U.S. points after intermission to lead the U.S. to a 58-52 afvantage with 6.30 left to play. She finished the game with 19 points.

The U.S. started to chip away at the lead early in the second half and trailed 46-39 before Blazejowski took charge.

Canada was led by Carol Turney Loos of Victoria with 18 points. Bev Smith of Salmon Arm had 14 for the losers, who have a 3-3 record.

The women's 400-metre relay team brought Canada its second bronze medal, finishing behind the U.S. and the Netherlands.

Canada fared poorly in track and field.

Joanne Anderson of Saskatoon managed 3,928 points and Jill Ross of London, scored 3,622 in the pentathlon but both were well behind winner Katerina Smirnova of the Soviet Union with 4,437.

In the men's 100-metre hurdles, Patrick Fogarty of Montreal was eliminated in the semi-finals with a time of 14.1.

Both Sue Bradley of Toronto and Sharon Lane of Ancaster, Ont., failed to qualify for the finals of the women's 100-metre hurdles. Bradley finished seventh in her heat with a 13.99 clocking while Lane was third in 13.43.

The lone other Canadian competitor in track and field was Anne Mackie-Morelli of Vancouver who finished sixth in her 400 metre heat and missed getting into the finals.

With four days of competition remaining in the multiple-sport, biennial games for college-age athletes, the Soviet Union has won 26 gold medals and 56 medals in all.

Vancouver goes bonkers when Whitecaps return

VANCOUVER (CP) — They threw confetti and waved banners, sang songs and screamed over and over again what everyone within earshot already knew — the Vancouver Whitecaps are number one.

Children climbed on their fathers' shoulders to get a better look. Teen-age girls screamed and enthusiasm ran roughshod over police attempts at crowd control.

And the Whitecaps loved every minute of it as tens of thousands of people jammed downtown streets Sunday to cheer Vancouver's first major professional championship team since the British Columbia Lions won the Grey Cup in 1964.

"I expected a reception, but this is beyond my wildest dreams," said Vancouver native Bob Lenarduzzi after he and his teammates, swilling beer and champagne in the backs of pickup trucks, had taken more than an hour to inch their way over a three-kilometre parade route.

"Even if you won the (English) Cup final," said goalie Phil Parkes, "there'd be nothing like this."

The Whitecap wave, which started as a ripple six seasons ago when the club joined the league, hit tidal wave proportions with Sunday's welcome.

The hometown enthusiasm supplied what was lacking Saturday when the Whitecaps beat Tampa Bay Rowdies 2-1 before a mostly hostile Soccer Bowl crowd in East Rutherford, N.J., just outside New York.

The crowd, most of them New York Cosmos fans, were still bitter about the Whitecaps win over the Cosmos in the National Conference final a week before. But despite the boos, the Whitecap wave rolled on.

"I think it worked in our favor," said striker Trevor Whymark, who scored both Vancouver goals. "Because once we got on the field we knew we had to beat Tampa Bay and the crowd as well."

The crowd reaction wasn't the only slight the Whitecaps and their hometown have been dealt during the club's championship drive.

In a pre-season look at the league, Sports Illustrated said of the team: "Having the Whitecaps go all the way would be like a British trade union taking over Buckingham Palace." And during the Soccer Bowl broadcast, ABC television's Jim McKay referred to Vancouver as a village.

The palace is still in royal hands, but the NASL championship belongs to the collection of British and Canadian players that make up the Whitecaps and to their village full of supporters.

Despite police warnings to go downtown instead, about 1,500 people showed up at the airport. The crowd, ignoring normal airport procedure, pushed past barriers and climbed onto luggage carousels, pressing against the door through which the team was to enter. When team-captain John Craven finally came into view with the Soccer Bowl trophy held over his head, the day's chaotic tone was set.

People stood in knots along the 12-kilometre route into the city, waving as the Whitecap bus, escorted by police on motorcyles, sped by with the trophy displayed in its window. Crowd estimates ranged from 30,000 to 60,000.

After the parade, police escorted the team onto a stage at Robson Square. The cheers of the crowd drowned out most of the speech attempts, but it didn't really matter. What Carl Valentine tried to tell them was all they wanted to hear anyway.

"You are the number one fans," he shouted, "and we are the number one team."

Attention Charitable Organizations

The Greater Victoria School Board requires that every charitable organization seeking school involvement in a fund-raising activity first must submit a written request to the Superintendent of Schools. No such activity is permitted without prior written approval by the Superintendent.

The intent of this requirement is to protect the schools from exploitation. Each fund-raising activity must have written approval.

There will be no exceptions to the rule. However, established organizations and their progams can expect routine approval. Others will be investigated and may expect to be asked to produce a federal government charitable organization registration number.

City pair second in double sculls

BLED, Yugoslavia (AP) — Bruce Ford and Patrick Walter of Victoria, who placed fourth Saturday in a double sculls semi-final heat at the world rowing championships with a clocking of 6:34.43, Sunday finished second in the double sculls small final.

They were timed in 6:38.79 and finished more than a second behind the winning U.S. entry.

Canada's only victory came in the coxless pairs small final, Timothy Britton-Foster and Michael Evans pof Woodstock, Ont., besting the second-placeNetherlands pair byalmost four minutes with a clocking of 6:54.64.

Meanwhile, East Germany reclaimed the coxless fours title and came out of the championships with six of the eight gold medals. East german oarsmen also won the coxed fours, the coxless and coxed pairs, quad sculls and eights.

Norway's Frank and Alf Hansen retained the double sculls championship and Olympic-champion Pertti Karpinnen of Finland led all the way in winning the singles sculls in 6:58.27.

Closest of the finals was the coxed pairs, the East Germans finishing only six-tenths of a second ahead of Czechoslovakia in a photo finish.

Disabled students' aid cut—MLA

Victoria MLA Gordon Hanson said Monday that the provincial government had quietly reduced the cash aid to handicapped persons taking post-secondary education courses.

Hanson said the cut was made official July 20 by an administrative order "which cut the amount of direct assistance available to handicapped students and substituted an inadequate loan system."

The MLA said the matter first came to his attention when he was approached by a student suffering a physical handicap and asked for assistance.

"The handicapped pension for a single person is $357 a month, and under the new regulation it must not only cover room and board but also education expenses," Hanson said. "Clearly, that is asking the impossible and the government must reconsider the matter."

The new regulations state that students receiving benefits from the Community Vocational Rehabilitation Services are eligible for aid through the B.C. Student Aid Program "in both loan and grant funds, provided that the full amount of the benefits to be received during the application period is taken into account in calculation of financial need."

Hanson said that regulation meant that where the government used to pay outright for the costs and tuition of a handicapped student, the student now had to obtain a loan to cover those expenses.

"That was horrible enough," Hanson added, "but even worse, the bizarre rules applying to the loans limit the amount available to the student to $300 for tuition and book loans. Anything more than that must come directly out of their pensions."

The new regulations also make it clear that a handicapped student seeking only to improve educational status could lose all educational benefits.

"... Recipients who are in training under their (Community Vocational Rehabilitation) services may continue to receive benefits while undertaking technical or vocational courses leading to employment," the regulations state.

"However, CVRS reserves the right to suspend benefits to any recipient who decides to embark on an educational program which is purely academic in nature or will not improve appreciably the student's chance of employment at the end of the year."

The exceptions to that rule will be students who have received special approval from CVRS to pursue their studies. They "may receive aid" to fund direct educational expenses, but even that aid is strictly limited.

Included in the aid would be the actual tuition fees, plus a maximum of $200 for books and instruments, plus between $3 and $7 a week for transportation, depending on whether the student lived on or off campus, and $19 a week for miscellaneous expenses.

The new rules state that "even though the applicant's assessed need under BCSAP's normal policies may be higher, the award released to the student may not exceed the total of allowable educational costs listed above."

It adds in the next clause: "If, for some reason, a CVRS client receives more student aid than is required to meet allowable educational costs, the excess may be deemed by CVRS to be maintenance and may be deducted from the applicant's benefits in an amount to be determined by CVRS."

Hanson said that however carefully the regulations were worded, they meant cutbacks for the handicapped student. "The Social Credit administration is just making it harder for handicapped persons to take post-secondary education courses."

He noted that educational loans to single parents on social assistance were not generous, and were "deliberately limited below actual need, yet they can reach $1,800 for a school year. The more severe limitations placed on handicapped persons are absolutely unconscionable.

"The result of these unannounced changes will be to disentitle handicapped persons from pursuing an education to improve their lot in life."

With all provincial cabinet ministers in Richmond this week for a week-long Social Credit caucus session, there was no immediate comment from Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy, Health Minister Robert McClelland, or Education, Science and Technology Minister Pat McGeer.

Book publishers' financing studied

E.D. Ward-Harris, member of the Greater Victoria Public Library Board and former Colonist Page Five editor, has been appointed to undertake a study into the financial needs of B.C. book publishers.

The appointment was made by Provincial secretary Hugh Curtis.

Ward-Harris is to examine the problems of the industry and make recommendations to the minister.

Morton retires

Provincial chief electoral officer Ken Morton has retired at the age of 63.

His retirement was confirmed Monday with publication of orders-in-council from last Thursday's cabinet meeting.

Morton had been in poor health since a fall at home early this summer.

Assuming his position on a temporary basis will be R.A. Patterson of Victoria.

Morton had been chief electoral officer since 1968.

Space-age TV early

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto men have brought space-age television to the city years ahead of schedule with an aluminum dish about three metres wide.

Engineer Jan Spisar has a television antenna on a conventional tower which brings in 15 conventional channels.

His other antenna, which he built with broadcaster David Brough, brings in 100 channels from three Canadian and four United States television satellites in stationary orbits above the equator.

The Canadian satellites have 12 channels each but only one television service —the CBC's. Other channels carry long-distance telephone calls or sit idle.

However, the U.S. satellites carry TV signals otherwise unavailable to Toronto viewers.

One unit, owned by RCA, has 24 channels and most carry TV signals, including three pay-TV movie services using eight channels, three pay-TV sports channels, a children's network, a religious network and a channel providing live coverage of the U.S. Congress.

Brough said he found the aluminum dish in Northern Ontario after it had been discarded from a microwave system. A technician's child was using it as a sandbox, and Brough traded a set of swings for it.

Spisar and Brough say most satellites transmit at five watts a channel from about 38,000 kilometres away, so the signals are faint.

The dish collects the signals, focusing them on a receiver in front of it.

The signals are fed into an amplifier, then into a device similar to a cable-TV converter, which changes them into regular channel frequencies used by television sets.

Spisar and Brough say they built their receiving unit for about $4,000.

Federal rules state that no one may use such equipment without a licence, and individual viewers are not eligible for licences.

LOS ANGELES (CP) — The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will present the National Film Board of Canada with a tribute next month to mark the board's 40th anniversary.

The Canadian consulate-general here will be co-host for the tribute Oct. 29, consisting of a reception followed by a screening of Oscar-winning board films.

The board has won 35 Oscar nominations, five Oscars and more than 1,600 other awards in international competition.

Lou Grant, Taxi honored in scattered Emmy shows

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lou Grant, Taxi, Friendly Fire and Roots II were selected as the best television programs of the past year Sunday at the 31st Emmy Awards show.

In a surprisingly compact program—almost the announced 2½ hours—the Television Academy scattered Emmys to a variety of winners. No program won more than two.

The acting winners included Ron Leibman, Mariette Hartley, Ruth Gordon and Carroll O'Connor.

Marlon Brando won an Emmy for his supporting performance in Roots II. Presenter John Ritter said, "I'm sure if Marlon Brando were here, he would want to thank the Academy. Perhaps not."

Brando declined his Oscar for his role in the film, The Godfather, in 1973.

Bette Davis won the best lead actress in a limited drama or special for her role in Strangers: The Story of a Mother and Daughter.

The best lead actor in a limited drama or special was Peter Strauss for his role in The Jericho Mile.

ABC, which televised the awards, collected the greatest number: 13. CBS followed with 10, NBC with five, PBS with three and one syndicated.

Leibman, star of the cancelled Kaz series and Mariette Hartley, the bride of The Incredible Hulk, were hailed as best actor and actress in a drama series.

"Here it is Sunday night and Kaz isn't pre-empted," said Leibman with a note of irony about the rocky career of the CBS television series. The show failed to earn a renewal because of poor ratings.

President Carter appeared live from the White House on the Emmy broadcast to pay tribute to Don Harris, Robert Brown and Bill Stewart, television reporters killed on assignment in the last year.

"Their gift to us was knowledge," said the president. "In Guyana and Nicaragua these three men were our witnesses and they were our martyrs."

The widows of the three men were in the audience.

For the second consecutive year, Kristy McNichol scored as supporting actress in a drama series—Family. Stuart Margolin, the nefarious Angel Martin of The Rockford Files, was named best supporting actor in a drama series.

Old-timer Jackie Cooper was named best director of a single episode in a drama series for the pilot segment of The White Shadow.

CBS News anchorman Walter Cronkite was handed the second annual Academy Governors Award by his NBC counterpart, John Chancellor. His appearance attracted the first standing ovation of the evening and the usually unflappable Cronkite seemed close to tears.

Another emotional moment came with the appearance of Erik Estrada as an awards presenter. The star of the series CHiPs was making his first public appearance since his near-fatal motorcycle accident during filming of the action series.

Alan Alda set a new style for award winners by performing a cartwheel in the aisle on his way up to the stage.

Scared Straight, in which real life convicts try to dissuade young offenders from a life of crime, scored as outstanding information program. The syndicated documentary's victory may be the first time that any attraction has won an Emmy and Oscar in the same year.

IWA urges job safeguards

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbians should demand that the government adopt legislation that would require companies using provincial resources to guarantee a certain number of jobs, Jack Munro, western regional vice-president of the International Woodworkers of America, said Monday.

Munro, whose union represents 50,000 woodworkers in Western Canada, told his regional council's annual convention that such contracts would make corporations think twice before exploiting B.C.'s resources.

Munro criticized Forests Minister Tom Waterland for lack of legislation on log usage and disclosed that the IWA officers have just approved a new policy on protecting B.C. forests, which they say are being depleted too rapidly.

He said it was a "disgrace that our most valuable natural resources are assigned to be exploited by private companies who give no guarantee whatever about employment."

The IWA leader said the proposal calls for legislation requiring companies to sign contracts guaranteeing the jobs.

The number of jobs and the length of the contracts could be made the subject of negotiations with the production union involved in a particular industry. Layoffs could then be controlled by these negotiations instead of companies having the unilateral right to order layoffs, Munro said.

During the week-long convention, delegates will debate a resolution from their leadership calling for action to deal with hundreds of layoffs in the plywood sector of the industry, Munro said.

Combat forces put to the test

About 40,000 Canadian and U.S. armed forces personnel will take part in a two-week exercise this month off Canada's West Coast.

Also taking part in Kernel Potlatch 11 will be 150 aircraft and 45 ships.

The exercise, the largest ever held on this coast, is designed to test and evaluate joint continental defence procedures. The two countries have a mutual defence agreement signed in 1946.

Canadian and American troops will make an amphibious landing on the northern tip of Vancouver Island, and the combined naval and air force will practise manouvres.

Vice-Admiral Kinnaird McKee, commander of the U.S. Third Fleet, will be in charge of operations with various phases under the tactical command of Rear-Admiral Michael Martin, commander of Canada's maritime forces Pacific.

In preparation for the exercise, about 900 members of the Victoria and Calgary-based Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry leave next week for final drilling with the Americans at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Ride 'em Rombough the best

Ray Rombough, 43, a bus driver with B.C. Hydro in Victoria, outmanoeuvred 53 other bus drivers to win the fifth annual B.C. bus roadeo Sunday.

Rombough, who says he would rather drive a bus in city traffic than his car, said the roadeo obstacle course closely approximated tough driving on the job.

"It probably simulates all the phases you go through in a day's work," he said. "The only thing you don't have to put up with is the public."

Rombough was awarded seven trophies and $500 and expenses paid to the American Public Transit Association roadeo in New York City in October.

D'Addario Linda D'Addario Linnda Durre Linnda Durre

Linnda's spirit in her name

By NOEL OSMENT
Colonist-Copley News Service

People change their names for any number of reasons. Some present long and complicated personal reasons, some want their names Americanized, some adopt a family name to continue a line or because of deep affection for a predecessor.

One woman recently took a name her friends have called her for years, and, in a few cases, new names are adopted because of sex changes.

Linnda Durre fits into the complicated personal reasons category. April 20 was a bad day for Linnda, or Linda, as her name was then.

"There was something very wrong. Something bigger than me," she recalls. So she called George Dillinger, a psychiatrist in Del Mar, and told him, "I have a feeling it has something to do with my name."

Dillinger agreed. "Your name is blocking your energies — you're out of sync," he told her.

She didn't want a radical name change and wanted to keep her own initials, so Dillinger said he would make a list of names for her to choose from. Two days later, he had the list ready, and she ended up with Linnda Durre — usually spelled with an accent over the final 'e.'

Dillinger told her that since she had made a rather drastic name change — from D'Addario to Durre — she would experience some immediate small changes, but since the overall change wasn't so great, there would be no major changes for six months.

He told her that she must immediately set about using her new name — changing documents, stationary, business cards, etc.

"You have to make the name work for you spiritually, make the name energy work for you," he told her.

"Three days later," she says, "my body felt like a live wire. I felt as if I had put my finger in a socket, and I began having psychic experiences and strange coincidences began occurring."

Until early in 1977, Linnda, who is a family therapist, would have rejected most of this out of hand.

She's been a lifelong achiever — in high school, she says, she was an "ace," honor roll, student leader, cheerleader — and she attacked college studies with equal enthusiasm, getting her B.A. in early childhood development, and reveling in the challenge of working for her doctorate in psychology.

The publication of her dissertation on sexual relations between therapists brought her some fame — an appearance on a 60 Minutes segment on the subject and the forthcoming publication of a book about it — and jobs as a consultant on cases involving suits against therapists.

She is currently writing two screenplays, and a television series she created several years ago was purchased, although never produced.

During the '70s she was active in the women's movement. She was one of the founders of the San Diego, Calif., Action NOW chapter (no longer in existence) and campaigned actively for the abortion amendment.

She had firmly rejected the spiritual aspect of life at around the age of 15, when she threw off her Catholic upbringing.

"What I did, was throw out the baby with the bath water," she says. "I revolted against the church when a teacher stated that the whole purpose of a woman's life was to have children."

By 1976 she knew of Dillinger, that he was a psychiatrist with impressive credentials and with a reputation for unorthodox but strangely effective curative powers. When she met him at a social event that year, she thought, "I'm not ready for you yet, but someday I will be."

"In early 1977, while I was working on my dissertation (at California School of Professional Psychology), I found I was physically exhausted. I was going from 6 a.m. to 2 a.m., working on papers, my dissertation, going to classes, holding down two jobs and trying to maintain some social life, but this was the way I had been living since 1973. I had always had a high metabolism and could do this. But, suddenly, I was even drinking coffee to keep awake and taking naps on the kiddie cot at the elementary school where I had a job."

After $300 worth of physical examinations and a diagnosis of "dissertation blues," she was ready to go to Dillinger.

He changed her diet, put her on megadoses of vitamins — and the improvement was immediate, she says.

She took a course from Dillinger, who, in turn, had studied with a student of Tibetan mysticism, and her mind became open to the idea that everyone has a major life lesson.

She also learned about Circadian cycles — individuals' biological cycles as related to the solar system, using a different numerology system than used in astrology.

Her Circadian reading, done by the Tibetan student and interpreted by Dillinger, told her her strengths and weaknesses, and helped provide her with a guide for living. Thus, she was not surprised to learn that the numerology of her name put her out of phase with her Circadian.

Does she really believe in all of this?

"I know it has worked for me," she says.

"And just think, if I've been able to do all I have by my age (31) with a name blocking my energies, what will I be able to do now?"

Although Linnda's father at first felt her new name was a slap at the family, he came to accept it after letters and phone calls, and now addresses her mail with her new name.

"But, then, they're a traditional family, who had been through all kinds of changes with me — feminism, discussions over the Vietnam War, seeing me on national television news protesting the bishop's stand on abortion, and vegetarianism. As I pointed out to my father, if I had married a man named Jacques Durre and had kept my name, he would have called me a women's libber."

ann landers

Dear Ann Landers: I need someone who can be objective. I can't. Mostly I feel guilty because I wasn't a better wife. I am also filled with rage.

I was married to a handsome man, very outgoing and well liked. I was just the opposite. I let "Dick" know I was doing him a favor when I accommodated him sexually, because I never got anything out of it. I did "bedroom duty" when he asked, but as the years went by he asked less and less.

Three months ago, after 28 years of marriage (no children), "Dick" died suddenly of a heart attack. I learned last week that he had kept a mistress. The woman was an executive in a large firm. I'm sure the affair was one of long standing.

The way I found out about it was strange. I discovered a key in my husband's wallet. It had an address tag attached, so I went to see where it led. When I walked into a love nest, I was shocked. No one was at home — so I looked around. I found receipts for gifts he had bought her and letters he had written when he was away on trips. His pictures were all over the place.

I didn't touch a thing — just left. The woman has no idea I was there. Now I am torn between wanting to tear her hair out for stealing what belonged to me, and tearing out my own hair for being so blind.

"Dick's" mother is still living, and I don't want to ruin his reputation. What should I do? — No Identity Please

Dear No I.D.: Do nothing. Say nothing. It's a tall order, but no good would come of exposing the past.

If you need to vent your anger (or expiate your feelings of guilt), talk to a professional counsellor — preferably a person who did not know "Dick" or you.

Dear Ann Landers: I hate to be a pig, but I need two things from you. First, your definition of "class," which my mother clipped out and pinned to the kitchen bulletin board. It stayed there for nearly six months.

I also need your definiton of "love." I carried that one in my wallet for almost two years. Then somebody stole my purse.

I realize my chances for getting both requests granted are one in a million, but I have nothing to lose except a 15-cent stamp. — Denver.

Dear Den: Here are both definitions. I'm glad you asked. It made my day a lot easier.

CLASS

Class never runs scared. It is sure-footed and confident that it can handle whatever comes along.

Class never makes excuses. It take its lumps and learns from past mistakes.

Class knows that good manners are nothing more than a series of petty sacrifices.

Class bespeaks an aristocracy unrelated to ancestors or money. A blueblood can be totally without class, while the son of a Welsh miner may ooze class from every pore.

Class can "walk with kings and keep its virtue and talk with crowds and keep the common touch." Everyone is comfortable with the person who has class because he is comfortable with himself.

LOVE

Love is friendship that has caught fire. It is quiet understanding, mutual confidence, sharing and forgiving. It is loyalty through good and bad times. It settles for less than perfection and makes allowances for human weaknesses.

Love is content with the present, it hopes for the future, and it doesn't brood over the past. It's the day-in and day-out chronicle of irritations, problems, compromises, small disappointments, big victories, and working toward common goals.

If you have love in your life, it can make up for a great many things you lack. If you don't have it, no matter what else there is, it's not enough.

Manners take on new dimensions

By DEBORAH HAND
Colonist-Monitor Service

BOSTON, Mass. — In 1922, when Emily Post wrote her first book on etiquette, it was important for a "well bred" woman to know the right way to pick up her teacup.

Today, the modern businesswoman is more likely to want to know how to pick up the tab.

To Elizabeth Post, Emily's granddaughter-in-law and successor as America's expert on etiquette, good manners are much more than knowing how to get along with hats and gloves and teacups. Good manners are knowing how to get along with each other.

Manners change as our lifestyle changes, Mrs. Post says. And the advent of women in the business world is adding a new dimension.

A businesswoman herself, Mrs. Post is director of the Emily Post Institute in New York, N.Y. In addition to revising Emily Post's Etiquette, she writes a syndicated column, Doing the Right Thing. she has also published three books of her own, with a fourth on entertaining, to be published in 1980.

In an interview Mrs. Post answered these questions about manners for today's business world:

Q. Has the women's movement changed our manners?

A. Inevitably it has. The good thing about it, I believe, is that women feel a lot freer to do courteous things for men now, that they didn't do before — to hold their coats for them, for instance. I think you see a lot more women doing that kind of thing. Even sharing expenses, paying checks. I think this is good. Although you may lose a little of the Sir Galahad kind of courtesy, on the whole, people are using better manners between the sexes than they ever have before.

Q. Do we use different manners in business than in our social lives?

A. Yes. We do have two sets of manners — one for the business world, where women want to be accepted in what was formerly a man's position, and another for more social situations.

Q. What are some of the special manners for the businesswoman? For instance, when does a woman executive shake hands with a man?

A. A businesswoman should act the same way a man would. If a client or customer comes into her office she should rise and offer her hand. A secretary, however, wouldn't necessarily rise when someone comes in, although a personal secretary might, especially if it's a visitor she knows or an important client.

Q. What about outside the office, say, at a convention?

A. The woman should still offer her hand. Often men don't know whether to or not, and when the woman does it, it's easier for everybody.

Q. Should women still let men hold chairs and open doors for them?

A. Certainly. If the man wants to, I see no reason why not. But I don't think women should demand it. There's an old saying that courtesy should be expected but never demanded. I think that's very true.

Q. What do you do if you have to work with a man who doesn't like doing business with a woman?

A. The best way to deal with that is to try to have someone else handle it. That might not be possible, of course, if you have a small department and there is no one else available. Then, there might be nothing you can do other than ignore his behavior and concentrate on the business.

Q. How should a businesswoman answer her own phone?

A. The best way is just to answer with her name, when it's her own phone in her own office. It's the most helpful thing she can do. A secretary should give the name of the company without her name.

Q. How do you handle picking up the check when you've asked a client to lunch but he feels uncomfortable about your paying the tab?

A. The first thing is to make it clear when you invite him that it is your invitation. That is, your company's invitation — you are not paying for it. If it's made clear, most men will not be embarrassed. If your company is a large one, you might be able to go to a restaurant where they have a charge account. Then there's no bill presented at all.

If it isn't clear when you get to the restaurant, you can speak to the head waiter when you go in and say you want the bill given to you or sent to your company. If the bill is brought to the table, then you have to be firm. Say, "My company is paying, it's not me, and we really would like to take you to lunch." Then pay with a credit card, not cash. It seems to be much less embarrassing than getting out cash.

Q. What should a businesswoman do if she's with a group of men and they want to pick up her tab?

A. She should try to pay her own bill. She can remind them that her company is paying her expenses. If they're really insistent, she should not make an issue of it. There's no point in being so aggressively liberated that it's embarrassing for everybody.

Q. How about on a date — should a woman pay her own way today?

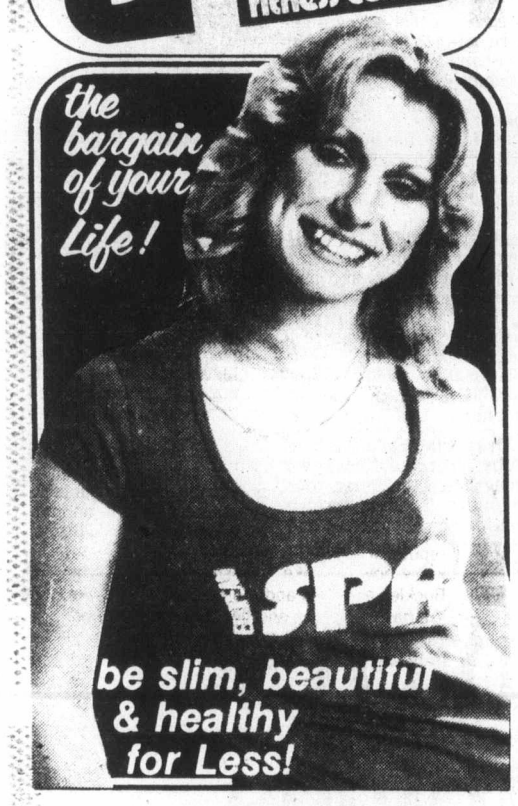

A. I do think today, that with women earning as much money or more as the men they're going out with, they should share expenses if they're going with each other regularly.

It also depends a little on how the date comes up. If it's just sort of, "Let's go to a ball game" or something, well then maybe you both pay. But if he actually comes and says, "I'd like to take you out to dinner," then I think he should pay.

Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Donohue: I was interested in a statement I read that emphysema can be inherited and that not all emphysema patients are those who smoked heavily. Can you elaborate? — Mrs. T.C.

I believe I did mention in a recent column that a certain type of emphysema may be inherited and the person afflicted have no history of smoking. It may occur in some people who are born missing a particular enzyme in their blood — "alpha-1-antitrypsin." This apparently makes them more susceptible to the lung problems. Little is known about its relationship to emphysema. Studies have show that if both parents lack the substance the chances are greater that their offspring will also. It is a rare condition. Most people with emphysema do not have the deficiency.

However, it is suspected if a person with emphysema reports no history of smoking or other lung pollution.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What does bright red blood in the stool mean?—M.M.

It means you should be examined promptly. Bright red indicates bleeding in the rectal area or very low in the large bowel. This may be harmless bleeding from hemorrhoids or other rectal disturbance, or it may be more ominous. Dark stool, on the other hand, can mean bleeding farther up in the digestive tract. Bleeding from the stomach area produces a black stool.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it true that stones can be removed in the body by crushing them? Is this new? Can it be done for bladder stones? — M.V.

Sounds crude, but that's how it's done. Not new. It's been around for years. A special instrument is used to do the crushing and removal. It's done in the urinary bladder.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I get little blood marks on the surface of my skin. Not a lot, just a few here and there. I have been told this is caused by a lack of vitamin C, so have started taking massive doses. Should I be looking for other causes?—M.M.

You certainly should be. Medicine is just not this simple, or rarely is. If you are getting a rounded diet of the major food groups you cannot blame a deficiency of vitamins for your skin symptoms. The problem more likely lies in the blood itself — something such as a low platelet level. It is true that a C deficiency can be involved, but that is too thin a reed to place much faith in unless such a deficiency is actually determined. Be examined to find out just what is amiss.

Dear Dr. Donohue: If a woman is taking birth control pills and misses a period should she discontinue them? I am thinking ahead, since I just started with the pills. My problem is that my periods were always a bit irregular in the past, so how would I know when I should stop the pills?—Mrs. T.X.

Discontinue the pills if you have the slightest indication that you are pregnant. That includes missing a period, which must always be taken as evidence of pregnancy until shown otherwise. Some women find that their periods get more regular with the birth control pills.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it really true that too much sunning causes premature aging of skin? I find it hard to believe.—P.N.

It's true, especially for women with fair complexions.

Dear Dr. Donohue: For my biology class I am supposed to find out why a boy's voice goes through a change at a certain age. Can you help me? — R.K.

I'm probably late for your paper. I get many letters from youngsters asking me to help them write term papers and reports. I decline, chiefly because of the time delay involved between their writing and my answer, and also because it's best to do your own research. Yours is an interesting question, though.

Puberty is accompanied by a sudden spurt of physical growth in boys and girls, with the girls coming a bit earlier and not at quite so fast a rate as boys.

In any event, this growth is in the vocal cords, too, and those are the structures that determine how your voice is modulated — how your words sound. The sudden change cause all sorts of quavers and squeaks. As soon as the boy learns to control his new "instrument" the voice returns to normal.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What causes post-nasal drip? — J.F.

It's usually a swelling of nasal members from either an allergy or an infection such as a cold. Mucus normally drains from the nose, but if the swelling obstructs the normal passage the mucus takes the only other available route — into the throat and nasopharynx. Your coughing, which you mention in another part of your letter, can be a direct result of this abnormal drainage, especially your long bouts of nighttime coughing — when you are reclining. You need a thorough nose and throat examination.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it necessary to have a tumor on the vocal cord removed? — G.N.

Certainly if it is malignant it has to be removed. Cure rates are high for cancer of the larynx. The most common form of tumor is the so-called "singer's nodule," a benign growth caused by chronic misuse or overuse of the voice. If discovered early, this type of tumor may subside on its own as the person learns to use his voice properly. Singer's nodule is not limited to singers, though, and not all singers have them.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can an illness cause a woman to skip a period?—L.L.

Yes.

I was rooked—immigrant

Moving expenses demanded

A 56-year-old Victoria resident who is an immigrant from England is accusing the Canadian government of false pretences and says Ottawa should reimburse him for moving costs.

Robin Trevallion, a machinist, said he came to Canada in August, 1978, believing he would be eligible for the full Canada pension after 10 years.

He said he had been assured this by Canadian immigration officials in London and the 159-page booklet Introduction to Canada he received following his final interview with immigration officials in December, 1977.

Trevallion said that based on this assurance, he and his wife sold their home in Cornwall and most of their belongings and moved to Victoria.

However, he said, a few months after arriving in Victoria he learned that residency requirements had been amended July 1, 1977, and as a result he would be eligible for only one-quarter of the pension.

The amendment requires immigrants to have lived in Canada for 40 years before they are entitled to the full pension.

"If I had known that, I would never have bothered emigrating," he said.

"It's pointless now to remain. We could never live on the pension. The only sensible thing to do is return to England."

He said it cost him $6,000 to move to Canada including solicitor's fees, medical examinations, packing expenses and air fares.

Another $2,000 will be spent resettling in England, he said.

"I think the least the government can do is compensate us for our costs."

Trevallion said last fall he sought the help of Allan McKinnon, Progressive Conservative MP for Victoria, who appealed to then health minister Monique Begin.

He said Begin said she could do nothing because she did not have the power to change the law.

She said it was unfortunate the booklet did not contain the amendment and a new edition was being printed and would be available soon.

Following election of the federal Conservative government in May, McKinnon, named defence minister, was approached again. But in a letter dated Aug. 21, he said that "while Health Minister David Crombie gave the most sympathetic consideration possible . . . the fact is we can't change the law, and must adhere to the regulation. The minister has no power to make any exceptions."

Trevallion said he can accept the law but not the government's neglect in advising immigrants of the changes.

He said copies of the same booklet still were being distributed at immigration offices.

How long alseep? Tindall asks Blair

Victoria Ald. William Tindall wants to know how long Esquimalt Ald. Colin Blair has been asleep.

Blair had attacked Victoria Visitors Information Centre president Ed Higgin for planning to ask municipalities to increase their grants to the centre.

"There is nothing new in that. Higgin made that very clear when he began his term as president of the visitors centre," Tindall said.

This year, the visitors centre operated with a budget of about $195,000. Of that, $45,000 came from municipal grants, with Victoria and Saanich paying the greater part.

Tindall said Higgin wasn't quite correct when he said membership dues accounted for about $150,000. That figure, said Tindall, included the proceeds from the sale of trade dollars.

Tindall conceded it would be difficult to argue that Victoria didn't benefit more from the tourist trade than other municipalities.

And that's why the city was quite prepared to pay more than Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Tourism, he said, was so important to the city that Victoria council would have to consider footing the grant bill alone if the other municipalities decided to pull out.

"Tourism will do nothing but grow, and it must be promoted," he said.

Severe winter kills seedlings

Last year's severe winter killed about 20 per cent of tree seedlings sown outdoors by the B.C. Forest Service, reducing the expected yield from 100 million seedlings to about 80 million.

Capacity production in the seeding program is a vital part of the forest service's endeavors to sustain maximum yield of choice timber in B.C.

But silviculturists are looking at the brighter side.

Dave Armit, manager of nursery operations, said the key Interior nurseries had reported satisfactory development of seedlings in this, their second growing season.

"Considering the extremely severe winter conditions which caused heavy losses and damage to nurseries, vineyards, orchards and agricultural operations all along the Pacific coast, we could easily have lost the entire crop.

"Instead there is still at least 75 per cent and possibly as much as 85 per cent of the original sowing which will be available for planting out," Armit said.

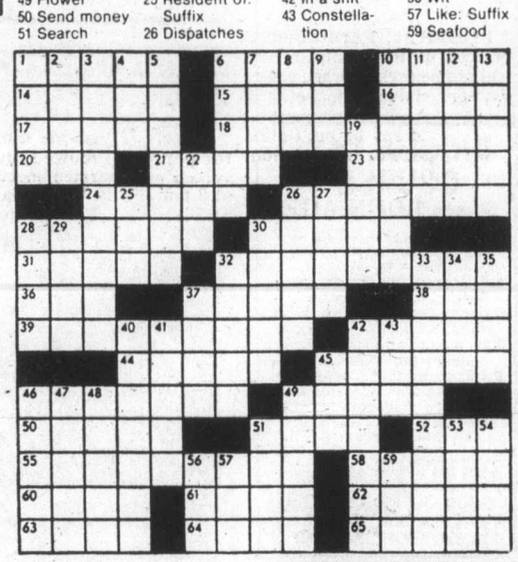

Field-sown seed is sown in carefully-prepared beds in eight nurseries in B.C., among them ones at Duncan and Campbell River.

Opening lead: King of hearts.

Declarer had a favorable opinion about how he bid and played today's snappy game. And when he played to score 10 tricks, he knew that he deserved them.

Note South's choice of bids over North's takeout double. First, he bid a four card suit while concealing a five card suit and, second, he jumped a level of bidding with "only" 10 high card points. What kind of bidding was this?

"Accurate," one might reply. In response to takeout doubles of one major, one should lean heavily towards bidding the other major. And as far as jumping a level of bidding, a one spade response could have been made with a very poor hand.

Therefore, the jump response to a takeout double shows an invitational hand and the only forcing bid becomes a cue bid in the suit in which the opponents opened the bidding. Circumstances do often alter cases!

West took two high hearts and shifted to a club. Dummy won and the king and nine of trumps revealed the bad trump break. Now declarer could not afford to draw the trumps. Had he done so, he would never have enjoyed a diamond, his 10th trick.

After winning the second lead of trumps, declarer led a low diamond towards dummy. West won the ace but there was no defense.

Declarer won the next lead, safely drew the outstanding trumps and the defenders were held to three tricks while declarer scored his excellent game.

Nazis missed the duke

Adolf Hitler ordered his secret service to kidnap the Duke of Windsor, later King Edward VIII, in 1940, the diary of the Nazi leader's spy chief shows. Extracts from Walter Schellenberg's diary, published in the Bonn newspaper Welt Am Sonntag, said the Nazis planned to abduct the duke in Portugal and take him to Spain and persuade him to denounce the British royal family. The plan failed.

American movie actress Jean Seberg was driven to madness and destroyed by the FBI because of her support for black power movements, her second husband said Monday in Paris. French author Romain Gary made the accusation at a news conference after police reported that an autopsy showed the 41-year-old actress killed herself with an overdose of sleeping pills. Miss Seberg's body, with a suicide note, was found in her parked car Saturday.

They might have been discussing an upcoming concert by the latest rock star. "I think he's groovy," said 18-year-old Rosalie Shanks, "I'm booking myself in for it." Added boyfriend John Donohue, "I think he's magic." The new teen idol—Pope John Paul II. And the "concert"—a special mass for teenagers in Galway, Ireland.

A golden bracelet and few belly-dancing lessons substantially enriched a new Cairo hospital Monday—courtesy of Farrah Fawcett. She was coaxed onto the dance floor at the hospital fund-raiser and, wiggle for wiggle, she followed the lead of Nagwa Fuad—the country's leading belly-dancer. Farrah then auctioned off her bracelet for $8,000.

The fans loved punk rocker Patti Smith—but they didn't like the giant American flag that was part of her act, and even her rock version of the communist anthem Internationale couldn't cool their ire. The result Sunday in Bologna, Italy, was a bottle-tossing riot that left the flag in shreds, 100 windows broken and the playing field wiped out at the stadium where her concert was booked.

Word of Bob Dylan's conversion to born-again Christianity has been out for some time. Now, from Nashville, comes his newest album to affirm it. The king of the protest balladeers of the '60s has nine new tunes on Slow Train Coming—all of which serve as his testament. The opening number says, "Everybody's got to serve somebody—the devil or the lord."

The world has a brand new watermelon-seed-spitting champ—a dark horse who Sunday toppled the reigning king by firing a seed 48 feet, two inches in competition at Pardeeville, Wis. Terrance Millar, a mathematics professor, dethroned Dennis Schultz, whose 47-foot-six-inch record has held since 1973.

President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines will not be present when his younger sister, Elizabeth, 54, marries an Australian businessman Wednesday. Sources close to the family in Manila said Marcos disapproves of his sister's marriage to Lou Rocka, 54.

A man who paddled down Mount Everest in a kayak says getting there is the hard part. "Once you get to the top, it's great—it's downhill all the way," said Dave Manby in Seattle.

Two Edmonton news photographers assigned to take pictures of the evacuation of the Mill Woods subdivision after a pipeline rupture were convicted Monday of obstructing police. William McKewn of Edmonton Report magazine and Bill Brennan of United Press Canada, both 30, were fined $100 each.

Pierre Camu, who recently resigned as chairman of the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC), has been appointed president and chief executive officer of March Shipping Ltd.

It may take him two weeks to do it, but dancing teacher David Waddle plans to waltz across Texas, just as the country song by Ernest Tubb suggests. The 26-year-old college country music dance instructor has chosen one of the narrowest parts of the state—the Panhandle.

Vanished dealer mystery

TORONTO (CP) — Fred Johnsen, the millionaire businessman abducted from his city home last month, appears to have as much mystery to his life as to his disappearance.

Johnsen, 44, went to his door on Aug. 28 where a man asked him to sign some papers, then produced a gun and forced him into a car.

Since that day, there has been no word of Johnsen, no word from his kidnappers and no ransom demand.

As Johnsen's life becomes public, a confused picture emerges of the man who left his adopted parents behind in a tight-knit Danish community in New Brunswick and headed for Toronto in 1958.

Starting as a car mechanic, Johnsen rose to be a high-profit entrepeneur who wheeled and dealed in Canada and the United States.

But by the time he disappeared, Johnsen and Lisa, 39, had just moved into their third Toronto home—a $400,000, eight-bedroom stone mansion.

Secret energy report urges oil price hike

OTTAWA (CP) — A confidential government report on energy security and self-sufficiency, ordered by Prime Minister Clark, recommends immediate and more rapid increases in domestic oil prices.

The report, prepared by a special 32-member caucus of Conservative MPs who worked through the summer, was discussed by Clark's inner cabinet as they grappled with energy policy at their Jasper, Alta. strategy session last month.

A spokesman for Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn said Monday the findings of the interim report are under review. Hnatyshyn is to receive the committee's final report by the end of the month.

The committee also recommends the "recycling of petro-dollars into the national economy" by the creation of a Canadian energy bank financed in part by annual, billion-dollar, low-interest loans from the Alberta Heritage Fund.

The funds would be used entirely towards the financing of projects aimed at achieving energy self-sufficiency by 1995. The energy bank would be run by a board of federal and provincial directors.

The committee also made the following recommendations while stating that provincial jurisdiction over resource ownership should be honored:

—The price of oil should never exceed 95 per cent of the average Chicago price.

—All production from heavy oil and oil sands deposits should be sold at present world prices, as should production from frontier regions. Reasonable increases would be allowed;

—Natural gas should continue to be priced at, or lower than, 85 per cent of the value of oil until the end of 1984 and should then be moved into line with oil prices over the following five years;

—Funds from the federal share of higher oil prices should be used to defray the cost of oil imports into Eastern Canada and for specific tax incentives for oil and gas exploration and for unconventional production.

Hnatyshyn has not yet announced whether a scheduled increase of $1 a barrel Jan. 1 will go ahead. Most observers expect the government to announce a larger increase.

The committee says the government has four choices. Adjust oil prices to reflect the inflation rate, maintain the present policy of slowly increasing prices, swiftly increase the price and follow with gradual increases above the inflation rate or selectively increase the price of certain oil products, such as gasoline.

The report says higher oil prices will encourage the substitution of other fuels, especially if natural gas prices remain below oil prices.

Unsettled times for high court

OTTAWA (CP) — Unsettled describes the state of affairs as the Supreme Court of Canada prepares for its fall session opening Oct. 2.

With just three weeks to go before the high court starts another round of appeals, there has yet to be named a replacement for Mr. Justice Yves Pratte, who resigned for health reasons earlier this year.

But more serious is the health of 67-year-old Chief Justice Bora Laskin. Heart ailments have had a noticeable effect on Laskin, and news of his abdominal surgery in Vancouver in late August was a better-kept secret than some of the judicial decisions the court makes.

With the exception of the chief justice's own office, no one in Supreme Court was aware of the operations.

And a spokesman for Justice Affairs Minister Jacques Flynn said the minister wasn't aware of the operations until informed by a reporter Monday.

"You would think someone would have told us," said the spokesman. "The minister would probably have sent flowers, or at least been in touch with the chief justice."

The spokesman said a replacement for Mr. Justice Pratte would be named "in a few weeks," certainly before the court reopened.

He said that should present no great hardship for the Supreme Court justices.

But the uncertainty of the health of the Chief Justice is another matter entirely. It brings up the question of a successor to Laskin and whether the top job at the court would be filled by a judge already on the bench or a newcomer.

There have been reports that Mr. Justice Jules Deschenes of the high court of Quebec is being wooed, not only as replacement for Mr. Justice Pratte but also as chief justice in Ottawa.

The Flynn spokesman would say only that "a short list" of Quebec lawyers and judges had been prepared, and not whether Deschenes' name was on it.

When Laskin himself was elevated in 1973 over more senior judges of the Supreme Court to become chief justice, it was a precedent that reportedly rankled those who were passed over.

INTRODUCING
CANADA'S GOLD MAPLE LEAF

30 mm diameter 1 troy oz. 999 pure gold

Perhaps the purest gold coin you can buy.

Now, from the world's third largest producer of gold, comes a new bullion coin that allows you to build your own gold reserves. The Gold Maple Leaf.

Issued by the Royal Canadian Mint, with the authority of the Government of Canada, the Gold Maple Leaf sets new standards in purity. One troy ounce: 999/1000 fine. As a legal tender coin, the Gold Maple Leaf is unique in that it contains nothing but gold.

This extraordinary issue of five million coins is being distributed world-wide over three years, and will utilize most of the gold production of Canada for that period.

The program symbolizes a commitment by the Canadian Government to the increased development of its natural wealth, especially gold.

The value of the Gold Maple Leaf coin is related directly to the price of gold, as reported in your daily newspaper.

The official distributors in Canada are The Bank of Nova Scotia and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. But you can also obtain coins through selected banks, trust companies, investment brokers, and coin dealers.

We invite you to do so.

Firms fight 45-acre lot rule

Both sides won preliminary skirmishes Monday in B.C. Supreme Court in an action by two private companies against the Capital Region District.

Mr. Justice Thomas Berger ruled that Finlayson Arm Tree Farm Ltd. and Transtide Industries Ltd. could proceed in their action by way of petition rather than writ of summons.

But he agreed that the Capital Region District had the right to ask the companies for particulars of their case, to file its own pleadings, and that there should be a pre-trial procedure called examination for discovery.

The two companies seek a court declaration that a subdivision bylaw adopted April 24, 1974 is invalid because it is beyond the power of the regional board to enact and because it was adopted in bad faith.

Finlayson Arm Tree Farm Ltd., whose president is Leonora Hamil of Sidney, owns 2,000 acres in the Highlands district. Transtide Industries Ltd., whose president is Kenneth Christopher Boyd of Duncan, holds an agreement to purchase the land.

In material filed at the Law Courts, the companies say the province made the area a 10-acre minimum for subdivision in 1967, but the regional district later changed this to 45 acres in one part of the zone while keeping 10 acres in the other part. Because of this, it was claimed that it was unfeasible and impossible, practically, to subdivide Finlayson's land.

Earlier this year, the regional board gave first reading to a bylaw to amend the subdivision regulation to change the 45-acre restriction to 10 acres, but this was rescinded June 27.

Regional district lawyer Peter Freeman argued that the companies were not entitled to seek relief by proceeding by petition rather than by writ of summons. The companies were also well outside time limits set by the Municipal Act.

But Malcolm McMicken, representing the companies, said he was bound to proceed by petition because of the rules of the Supreme Court.

Berger said the petition procedure could be allowed under the Judicial Review Procedure Act.

Freeman then asked the court to consider the lengthy delay since the 45-acre restriction was brought in, and asked for a pre-trial examination for discovery "so we know the case we have to meet."

He said it was not clear from affidavits just what constituted acts of bad faith.

McMicken replied that there was no allegation of bad faith in one of the grounds under which the subdivision restriction was being challenged—that the regional board didn't have the authority to do it in the first place.

That part of the case didn't require pre-trial procedures. The bad faith, he said, consisted of a desire to freeze the land. He said the regional board could regulate subdivision, but not freeze it effectively from development with an enormous minimum of 45 acres.

No date has been set for the trial.

Smash-and-grab nets jewelry haul

Thieves got away with watches and charms in an early-morning smash-and-grab Monday at Rose's Jewellers, 1317 Douglas.

The thieves used a piece of concrete to break windows and get at the display items.

Saanich police believe juveniles were involved in a break-in Sunday night at A & M Grocery, 77 Sims, because cigarettes and chocolate bars were recovered near the scene. Police asked anyone with information on the 8:30 p.m. incident, to call them at 388-4321.

Vandals were blamed for approximately $900 damage done Saturday to Colquitz Junior High. The building and a canoe inside were damaged.

A juvenile has been charged in a Sunday night break-in at the Victoria West Community Centre and two juveniles were charged with breaking and entering and wilful damage in connection with the shooting out of windows at a home in Sidney and damage to B.C. Hydro property at Durrance Lake. The same pair have been charged with car theft by Central Saanich police.

A break-in was also reported Sunday at Turner's Coffee Shop, 1909 Birch.

Provincial Court

A 42-year-old man who was given six months in jail Friday, received another eight-month sentence Monday in Victoria provincial court.

George Garry Brown, also known as Garry George Brown, changed his pleas to guilty on charges of driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 and driving while his licence was suspended.

He had been sentenced Friday by Judge Fred Giles on charges of impaired driving and failing to appear in court and was given concurrent sentences of six and two months.

In connection with Monday's changes of plea, crown counsel Wayne Smith told the court Brown was apprehended in the Millstream Chevrolet lot last Thursday shortly before 1 p.m. Subsequent breath tests resulted in two readings of .15.

It was the sixth drinking-driving conviction for Brown since 1971. He was first convicted Dec. 6, 1971 in Winnipeg for driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 and fined $200. On Jan. 26, 1973 in Vancouver, he was fined $250 for impaired driving. Following that, he was convicted Oct. 24, 1977 in St. Catharines, Ont., for impaired driving, drawing a one-month sentence, convicted again on July 5 this year for impaired driving in Victoria, when he received a 21-day sentence, and last Friday for impaired driving, when he got the six-month term.

Smith said he was suspended from driving after the July 5 conviction.

Judge Blake Allan handed out an eight-month term for the over .08 and six months on the driving under suspension, but made both sentences concurrent with the ones he is now serving.

ANOTHER MAN who was given a six-month jail term last Friday for a drinking-driving offence gave the court an incorrect address.

Neville Henry Brydges, 48, was given the sentence for his sixth such offence.

However, the address of 716 Haliburton which he gave to the court was not his residence.

A 19-YEAR-OLD Canadian forces man was fined a total of $150 after pleading guilty to two weapons offences.

David Earl Gonin, of 1414 Hillside, pleaded guilty to possession of a restricted semi-automatic rifle which was sawn off shorter than the minimum 16½ inches allowed and to having a restricted weapon in his car without a proper conveyance permit.

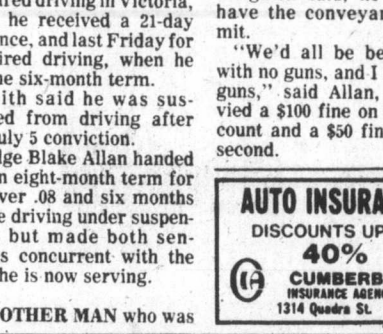

Crown counsel Don Laughton said a sawed-off rifle was found in Gonin's residence during an Aug. 27 search by police, who obtained a search warrant.

The day before, Esquimalt police searched Gonin's vehicle, which was in the Junior Ranks Club parking lot at CFB Esquimalt, and found a .22-calibre rifle and .22-calibre pistol in the trunk and a 12-gauge shotgun in the car. While Gonin had a permit to possesse the pistol, Laughton said, he did not have the conveyance permit.

"We'd all be better off with no guns, and I mean no guns," said Allan, who levied a $100 fine on the first count and a $50 fine on the second.

M. V. Chesnut's Garden Notes

If there is anything I loathe and detest, it is my alarm clock. I love my bed, and especially when it is time to get up, so the harsh and raucous call of that infernal clock is even more unwelcome than was reveille in the army.

Notwithstanding my intense dislike for early rising, I do make it a practice occasionally to haul myself reluctantly out of a warm bed around sunrise and go padding around the garden barefoot and in pyjamas, just to see what it looks like at such an unholy hour.

Two things make the effort worthwhile — the birds and the dew on the cobwebs.

You see and hear a lot of the shy kinds of birds at sunrise — shy kinds which never seem to come around during the day. I am no bird-watching addict and I don't suppose I could name more than about a dozen of the commonest kinds, but I do get quite a kick out of observing the shy manners and glorious coloring of these sunrise visitors. They seem to sing more freely, too, in the early morning than during the day.

At this season of the year particularly, a dawn patrol around the garden made before the sun dissipates the dew will reveal the exquisite delicacy of the cobwebs on the lawn and between the branches of the shrubs and small trees. Each dainty web, in early morning, is bejeweled with myriads of glistening crystal drops.

The thousands upon thousands of these webs, which can only be seen when the dew is on them, will give you some idea of the spider population in our gardens. And as there are no vegetarian spiders — all of them are hunters and trappers of living prey — you begin to realize what a powerful ally we have in the spider for the control of insect pests. I doubt if any of our miracle sprays could save us from being overrun by insects if our friends, the spiders, ever decided to go on a sit-down strike.

Those heavy dews of late summer which garland the spider webs with glittering diamonds can be mighty useful, especially in a dry year, for putting weight on the leafy crops like lettuce, spinach, celery and cabbage. For some of our other crops, though, dew can cause trouble.

With marrows, pumpkins, cucumbers and squash, heavy dew sets up conditions favorable for the development of rot diseases; usually starting at the point where the fruit rests on the soil.

The dew condenses on the surface of these fruits and runs down to the underside, and as a result, the bottom of the squash or melon never gets a chance to dry out.

The best way to deal with this problem is to slip something under each developing fruit to keep it off the ground. This could be a shingle, a tile, a flat rock, a piece of board or what have you. If possible, arrange things so you can turn the squash or pumpkin right over occasionally — be careful not to kink the stem — so that all parts of the fruit will be exposed to the sun and ripen evenly.

This is especially important in crops which are to be stored for winter use, for squash or pumpkins will not keep in storage unless fully ripened, and such maturity is even more important with the ornamental gourds.

Bush-type tomatoes have a tendency to trail their fruits on the ground, and these too will rot under heavy dew conditions. The easy way to manage these non-staking tomatoes is to shove a good armful of straw around and under the spread of the branches of each tomato plant to keep the fruit up off the ground.

If slugs are prevalent in your garden, better scatter a few slug bait pellets on the soil surface before you spread the straw, otherwise they will climb the plant and gnaw holes in the shoulders of the fruits.

Jack Smith

A yellowed clipping of Leeside, a column written for the Los Angeles Times in the '30s and '40s by Lee Shippey, has been sent to me by a reader, Pearle Otsea, with kindly hopes.

"I found it in an old scrapbook," she writes. "I thought it might comfort you to know that Lee Shippey ran the same risks as you do in quoting from memory. . ."

The clipping is undated, but it appears to have been written just after the Second World War. The date is irrelevant, since the problem Shippey explores is timeless. He has misquoted Shakespeare, and a reader has called him on it.

"Guess I'll either have to quit quoting Shakespeare or move to some other paper the readers of which are not so well read," he says. "Other day I accused Immortal Bill of saying, 'There is a destiny that shapes our ends, rough-hew them as we may,' and here comes Bob Hutton to defend his idol, and bluntly says: 'Not Shakespeare but some obscure Times bardolater used them lines. What Shakespeare said was, 'There's a divinity that shapes our ends, rough-hew them how we will.' "

"I had to go to the dictionary," Shippey says, "to learn that a bardolater is one who worships a bard idolatrously. I learned a lot of Shakespeare when in high school and haven't read any since, so I guess this obscure bardolater had better quit relying on a rusty memory."

Indeed I am comforted to know that in Shippey's day, as in mine, the readers were vigilant, and no error was so minor or obscure that it would not be noticed by someone out there. As embarrassing as this tireless policing can be, every writer needs it, or he would soon grow careless, soft and slovenly.

I think I have rarely misquoted Shakespeare, since his lines are so easy to look up. But recently I did something worse. I misquoted my friend Sara Boynoff Coonrade in quoting her misquote of "How are the mighty fallen," from the Holy Bible. She was angry with me, as well she might be. You have no right to misquote a misquote.

My error-watchers have been especially vigilant these past few days, or perhaps I should say they have had easy pickings. For example, in writing of the new Susan B. Anthony dollar I said someone had given me one of them three or four months ago, and also I noted that an eagle was on the "obverse" side.

"How could you have a Susan dollar for three or four months," asks Joe Kopsho, "when they weren't available until July 2?" All I can say is that it seemed longer than that.

"With an eagle on the obverse and Susan's portrait on the 'head' side," Kopsho goes on, "is she riding the eagle? Head equals obverse." Somehow I had the idea that the obverse side was the opposite of the head. That was an error of simple ignorance, one of those freak misapprehensions that people inexplicably hold and nurture all their lives.

Even more readers questioned my story about the cub reporter who found herself unable to write the lead paragraph of a news story in three lines, as required by the editor, until a drunken reporter at the next desk leaned over and told her, "Widen the margins." She then lengthened the lines, and she was able to get her four lines into three.

"American Heritage Dictionary defines margin as the blank space bordering the written or printed area on a page," writes Frank Joseph Rossiter. "Hence, if the cub reporter had widened her margins the typed area would be compressed into less space and cause more lines. Ergo, she should have narrowed her margins."

Robert Lee, who was closely acquainted with the reporters of that era, makes a less didactic but more personal observation: "I enjoyed your piece about the late, great Sparky Saldana, but I am confused by the bit about widening margins. I have high regard for your accuracy and I am sure you correctly quoted the anonymous drunk reporter who told the girl cub reporter to 'widen her margins' in order to keep her lead to three lines. When you widen the margins you shorten the typed line."

Lee is right, and I thank him, for guessing that the helpful drunk actually did say "Widen the margins." It is also true that the young lady, though she had been a secretary before she became a reporter, seemed to know at once what he meant. She narrowed her margins, and solved her problem.

I suspect that many of us might say "widen" instead of "narrow" when we meant to widen the lines of writing. Perhaps it is a faulty idiom, like the hideous "I could care less," which is now so commonly used when what is meant is "I couldn't care less.

In any case, I have been telling that story for years, and never before has anyone observed that "widen your margins" was indeed exactly the opposite of what was meant.

I burden the reader with these trifles because, in the first place, I could care less. Also, I will be leaving for England shortly, and I don't want to leave any loose ends behind. I want to enjoy the trip fully, untroubled by unrepented sins. As Mrs. Browning said, "Oh, to be in England, now that autumn's there."

She wrote most of Browning's stuff, you know.

Sydney Harris

Things I Learned En Route to Looking Up Other Things:

● That our earth receives only about one five-billionth of the total energy given off from the sun into space — this minuscule percentage, however, is sufficient to sustain all forms of life on our planet.

● That in every century since the time of William the Conqueror (1066), England was engaged in a war somewhere in the world for 56 of each 100 years. (Spain's record of warfare is even more checkered.)

● That a single rye plant has more than 13 million rootlets with a combined length of nearly 400 miles. (The fine root hairs number about 14 billion and would stretch almost the distance from Pole to Pole.)

● That the combined waters of all the other Great Lakes could easily be held within the basin which contains Lake Superior alone.

● That the force of gravity, though irresistible in one sense, is nevertheless by far the weakest known force in nature.

● That on a hot day, a single birch tree can absorb as much as 400 quarts of moisture. (And the leaves of an ordinary sunflower will transpire in a day as much water as a man perspires.)

● That last year the 44 Florida medical societies, with 12,000 members, disciplined only five doctors. (So much for "self-regulation.")

● That Einstein was never awarded the Nobel Prize for his theories of relativity. (He received it, belatedly, for his paper on "the photo-electric effect.")

● That the blue whale's tongue alone weighs some 5,000 pounds. (And its stomach can hold 2,000 pounds of food at one time.)

● That 158 governments have been wrangling about a new international Law of the Sea for the last five years without any basic agreement. (Meanwhile, new disputes and conflicts are running far ahead of the conference meant to resolve them.)

James Bacon's Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Wonder if Duke Wayne knew he was baptized a Catholic in his final days by an actor-turned-priest?

The Rev. Robert Curtis, the Paulist priest who gave Duke the last rites of the Catholic Church, graduated from the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York and did some time in the theatre before joining the seminar.

Producer Bill Sargent is a busy, busy man. Still counting the $20 million he made from the original, he recently opened Richard Pryor is Back Live in Concert all over the country.

Then on Aug. 31, he shot the Broadway hit Knockout in one day. And, on Sept. 21, he opens Sammy Davis Stops in World at a big Atlantic City premiere. Sammy will be appearing in person at the Boardwalk at the same time.

Received this letter regarding the recent column in which I mentioned that Trevor Howard and I looked all over Venice one afternoon for the Grand Hotel.

"The Italians, as you know, never tear down. They remodel and rename. Both the Grand and the Regia hotels have disappeared, but the buildings are still there."

Glad that's settled. It was enough to drive Trevor to drink.

Romance never dies, even when you approach Medicare age.

When Phyllis Diller, who admits to 62, opened the other night at the Red Barn in Houston, William Desmond Ryan, her suitor, sent her 25 dozen flowers.

Among them were three dozen anthuriums, which had to be flown over from Hawaii.

Phyllis said she couldn't get in her dressing room. It looked like the Slumber Room at Forest Lawn.

39 PERSONALS

WOULD LIKE TO MEET AN ATtractive, unattached, quiet sensitive nonsmoking girl, midtwenties, who is intelligent, possess a good sense of humour, and takes pride in her personal appearance and physical condition. I'm a gentle person, reasonably attractive. University educated, and in late twenties. I avoid loud aggresive people and am not overly concerned with money. I prefer quiet moments engaged in constructive conversation to wild parties, excessive drinking and dancing. I believe in the phylosophy of deserada and teachings of the Bible but am not a fanatical evangelist or church goer. I no longer believe in pre-martial sex and don't wish to date anyone with an overly promiscuous past, but realize we all make mistakes which can build character. I believe a relationship should be based on mutual love, trust, and respect and problems should be quietly discussed. If you would like to date a person who possess these qualities, please send a photo, honest letter and address to Victoria Press Box 197. I will send you same, and if agreeable we will meet for dinner. Matrimony eventual object if compatable.

ARE YOU A STEP-PARENT?
IS YOUR PARTNER THE STEP-PARENT OF YOUR CHILDREN?
Is there tension in your family because you have not all grown up together? Help for couples in which one or both partners are step-parents. Call Faith Magwood, 598-5121, Ministry of Human Resources, Capital Region.

IF YOU ARE PLANNING TO BE married early in 1980 and you would like your wedding to be 'the talk of the town', we would like to hear from you. A unique opportunity to receive an expense paid wedding on stage...from invitations to the reception to the honeymoon! Selection by a panel of judges; wedding to take place January 20, 1980. Please send name, address and photo of bride and groom to Box 1220, Victoria, V8W2S5.

ACTIVE WIDOWER
Would love to make the acqaintance of a compatible unattached woman with just normal hangups for a lasting relationship. I may spoil you, but will give full trust and respect. Non-drinker. Victoria Press Box 219.

DIVORCED GENTLEMAN, mid-fifties, administrative position own home, wished to meet academic or professional lady who is slim, non-smoker up to age 47, for lasting relationship. Victoria Press Box 215.

TIRED OF WAITING; healthy, active, unattached, tall male, mid 30's, looking for nice looking healthy outdoors minded, mature female for meaningful relationship. Victoria Press Box 225.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION

AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Victoria record among worst

Truancy fines urged in report

Inconsistent attendance policies may be responsible for a high rate of absenteeism among Greater Victoria schools, and a stronger stance, including fines for parents of students who do not attend, is warranted, a report to the school board says.

Submitted by schools superintendent Allan Stables, the report on pupil attendance says that when compared with the six other largest school districts in the province, "our attendance rate in every category is among the worst."

PART OF THE PROBLEM, the report suggests, is that while the board policy says the board will suspend students who are absent too frequently, the board does not back up schools which act accordingly, and gives schools flexibility in developing educational philosophies which could affect attendance.

Absenteeism is also affected by a Public Schools Act regulation which requires Grade 11 and 12 students to attend only classes in which they are registered. Students excused from attending school for this reason are counted as absent.

Absentee rates for district high schools last year ranged from a low of 7.2 per cent at Cedar Hill Junior to 14.9 per cent at Victoria High. In general, the senior high schools had the worst attendance (averaging 11.6 per cent), followed by junior highs (9.2 per cent) and junior-senior high schools (8.5 per cent).

AMONG ELEMENTARY schools last year, Strawberry Vale had the best attendance record (4.2 per cent) and Sundance the worst (12.9). The average for elementary schools was 6.2 per cent. The report notes that an absenteeism rate of about 4.5 per cent is the minimum that can be expected, because some absenteeism can be attributed to illness.

Other observations in the report are that absenteeism is on the increase in Canada and the United States; more students are absent at the end of the school year than the beginning; Monday is the worst day of the week for absenteeism, followed by Friday; boys have better attendance than girls in junior high, but worse in senior high; students who live with both parents, who are in university-oriented programs, who take part in school activities, and who are high achievers, are less likely to be absent than those who are not.

Travel time to school, or size of school is not related to absenteeism; working through parents to approve attendance is usually futile; and the person most influential in changing attendance patterns is the school principal, the report says.

ABSENTEEISM REPRESENTS a financial and educational cost to the school district and community, the report says.

"If we have a 10-per-cent absentee rate, then we are using 10 per cent of $42 million of our operating costs to educate those who are not present. This is, in a sense, a $4.2 million loss."

Pupils who are not present do not receive an education to which they are entitled; teachers' patterns of instruction are interrupted as they are forced to cater to students who are behind; and the community is affected by losses through adolescent loitering and misbehavior.

WHILE THE BOARD policy on attendance is strict, holding out suspension from school as a penalty for absenteeism, the board is often critical of principals who suspend pupils for non-attendance, the report says.

The report notes that successful attendance-improving strategies do exist. Among them are more consistent policies which are clear, well-publicized and enforced; better followup of absent pupils; transfer to other positions for principals who are not able to control attendance; and annual reports on attendance from both schools and the superintendent.

The report recommends that the board review its policies, establish a committee of teachers and administrators to work on the problem of absenteeism; receive annual reports on attendance, and announce its intention to use, as a last resort, court action (with a maximum $10 fine for each day of absence) against parents whose children are absent; and suspension of pupils whose absence "injuriously affects" the behavior of other students.

Alderman wins praise

Talk cooled grad pranks

A bright idea by North Saanich Ald. Bob Thompson all but eliminated the usual vandalism that goes with graduation parties in 1979.

Mayor George Westwood commended Thompson for going to Parklands Senior Secondary just before the school breakup and appealing to their sense of citizenship in not defacing property with "Grad '79" signs and other pranks.

Thompson said he told the grads that the last time he was in a principal's office "I left the school shortly afterward, and I think they identified with me."

He added the students even formed their own policing team to prevent vandalism.

"There was only one incident during the graduation period and one since it was reported in the press, but I think that was probably a graduate from some other year."

Later in the meeting, Mayor Westwood reported on a vandalism prevention seminar he attended at last week's Union of B.C. Municipalities meeting in Vancouver.

He said Victoria had managed to prevent the destruction of metal signs by mounting them on ⅜-inch plywood, and he asked clerk-administrator Ted Fairs to pass the information on to the works yard.

Other strategies were getting the co-operation of the media, and careful environmental design.

"One case in Vancouver involved a high-rise with no playgrounds nearby. The top floors of the building became a playground and were practically destroyed," he said.

"In another area, there was a McDonald's, a liquor store and a school adjacent to one another, which naturally led to problems."

Westwood noted that the school curriculum was being altered in Grades 3 to 6 to cover respect of property and general citizenship.

"One way to reduce vandalism is to get athletes such as the B.C. Lions—if they ever win another game—or soccer players, to go around to the schools preaching good citizenship."

Tables comparing the vandalism rates in municipalities with programs to those without showed a remarkable reduction when efforts were applied intelligently, the mayor said.

UVic program lures experts

"Each of our visitors enjoys a truly international reputation in his own field of research," said Dr. I.D. Pal, acting dean of arts and sciences at the University of Victoria in announcing this year's visit of nine distinguished scholars under the Lansdowne Endowment Fund.

The fund by which the visitors will address lectures and special seminars and interact fully with students and faculty was created from the sale of the Lansdowne campus to the province for $4.5 millon with the stipulation that the interest from the money be used for "academic enrichment" at UVic.

Scheduled among the guests is Dr. E.D. Golberg who visited UVic for a seminar in the 1978—79 academic year and initiated the Mussel Watch, an international co-operative program in environmental toxicology based on mussels, oysters and bivalve molluscs as natural contaminant filters. Golberg, known to marine biologists around the world as Mr. Mussel, is a visiting professor in biology and a chemistry professor with the Scripps Institution of Oceanography at the University of California in La Jolla and will spend a week on the UVic campus beginning Jan. 28.

Other guests include: Dr. H. Scott Gordon, visiting professor in economics and philosophy from the University of Indiana and Queen's University in Kingston. Ont.

NURSING DIRECTOR NAMED

Dr. Dorothy Kergin will replace Dr. Isabel MacRae in January as the new director of the nursing school in the faculty of human and social development at the University of Victoria.

Kergin, a recognized leader in Canadian nursing and currently president of the Canadian Association of University Schools of Nursing and a member of both the Ontario and the Canadian Public Health Associations, assumes the role following the resignation of MacRae, who left the post to become a professor of nursing at the University of Toronto.

BCBC walkout on horizon

By DON COLLINS
Colonist reporter

Unless there is some development in the meantime, more than 1,100 B.C. Buildings Corp. employees will be on strike by next week.

While the B.C. Government Employees' Union has not said when it intends to serve the mandatory 72-hour strike notice, it was known plans were being laid for a walkout in several days time.

Highly placed union sources also confirmed that the BCGEU was prepared to pay BCBC strikers as much as $200 a week.

The same routine could be in store for some 360 employees of the B.C. Systems Corp., second of the two crown corporations now locked in contract disputes with the 46,000-member union.

The BCBC employees last week voted 96.6 per cent in favor of striking and the union says it has little doubt those at BCSC will follow a similar pattern when they vote Wednesday and Thursday.

Talks between the union and BCBC broke off Aug. 30. Six days later negotiations with the systems corporation suffered the same fate.

The second dispute has developed into a name-calling battle between BCGEU general secretary John Fryer and Ross Cameron, the former president of the Victoria Firefighters Union who now heads the BCSC bargaining team in his management role with the corporation.

The union has accused Cameron of planning for the training of management "strikebreakers" and of "reckless" bargaining behavior which it says was the main cause of the breakdown.

Cameron, who earlier accused the union leadership of trying to get him fired, said Monday that Fryer was guilty of "character assassination" and attack by innuendo as a result of a press release last week. The press release levelled those charges and others against him without identifying him by name.

In his own defence, he provided the copy of a letter he has sent to BCGEU staff representative Maureen Headley in which he listed what he said were impossible last-minute demands by the union. In addition, he said the letter was checked individually by fellow members of his bargaining team to make sure it was accurate.

He says the union made it clear:

- It would not accept any of the remaining management proposals;
- It would insist on the entire package in the tentative master agreement covering some 40,000 BCGEU members;
- Would demand that the corporation agree to all union proposals, without proposing any amendments or exchanges;
- Would also insist that the corporation develop, and submit for union approval, special benefits appropriate for data processing professions.

Cameron says talks broke off before the corporation could amend earlier offers —part of which would include increases of eight, six and two per cent in a 26-month contract.

He said Fryer was wrong when he said BCSC had originally offered only 4½ per cent. He said the offer was a base rate increase of 4½ per cent, plus three per cent as a bonus for maintaining or improving productivity.

There was little doubt that all employees affected would qualify, Cameron said.

K.R. Robinson, BCGEU communications officer, noted that the corporation offer depended on provisos that would vary the contract in important respects from the master agreement.

"What this corporation and BCBC are trying to do," Robinson said, "is maintain independence from the public service at the expense of the employees."

The union has said it has a $10-million strike fund, and Cameron said Monday members have been told they will receive full pay if they go on strike.

"He (Fryer) is buying a strike vote. He wouldn't get a strike vote if it weren't for this."

Robinson said Cameron was wrong about the full salary payment.

The plan was to pay $200 a week.

Go given for dam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Senate Monday approved completion of the Tellico Dam in Tennessee, a project stopped for five years by the presence of the two-inch snail darter fish.

The provision ordering the Tennessee Valley Authority to complete construction was contained in a $10.8 billion appropriations measure for energy and water development projects.

Teen computer whiz probably alive—dad

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — The father of a missing teenage computer whiz says he believes his son is alive but may have been injured in games with "far out" groups whose members may be concealing his whereabouts.

James Egbert, a Dayton, Ohio, optometrist, Monday described his 16-year-old son, James, as a youngster susceptible to the lure of the off-beat. He questioned whether Michigan State University officials supervised him closely enough.

Egbert also questioned the campus police investigation into the boy's disappearance, but added, "I'm not really looking to cause problems. I'm just concerned with trying to get my boy back."

The precocious 16-year-old sophomore computer science student was last seen Aug. 15 in a dormitory cafeteria.

A weird fantasy game Egbert played, called Dungeons and Dragons, remained a major focus of investigators' attention despite a week of frustration.

The elder Egbert, who came to Michigan with his wife to discuss the case with investigators, said he did not believe his son committed suicide or that the disappearance was a hoax.

"If some of these far-out groups were playing some sort of game or acting out some of this stuff and he got hurt," the father said, it would be easy to see how a cover-up could materialize.

It would be "a panic-type situation," he said. "They get together as a group and say, 'Hey, we're not going to say anything to anybody.'"

William Dear, head of a Texas-based investigative team hired by Egbert's parents, said he was returning to Dallas to follow up on a promising lead. He said the informant was unwilling to contact him in Michigan for fear of "repercussions" if the conversation should be monitored by police.

Dear said the tipster "acted like a go-between" for someone investigators had dealt with earlier.

Campus police said they were asking Wisconsin authorities to determine whether young Egbert was in the city of Kenosha Aug. 16 to 19 for a Dungeons and Dragons convention.

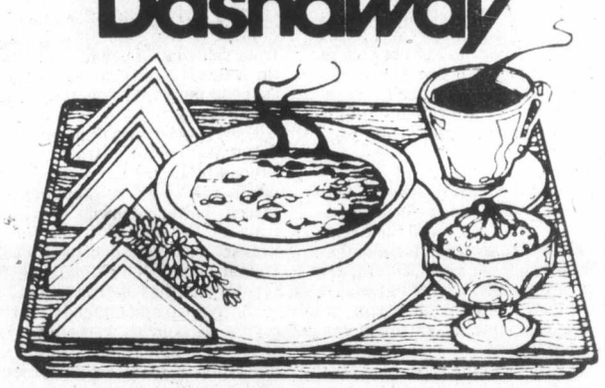

Dear also said investigators received a bizarre letter bearing Egbert's initials which had strong religious overtones, hinted at the author's homosexuality and discussed dying to punish Satan. The note was not in Egbert's handwriting, however.

Egbert was known to be involved with campus homosexual groups, and investigators have suggested a possible link.

U.S., Soviets hush talks on combat unit in Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union began Monday what U.S. state department officials say might be a protracted series of negotiations over Soviet combat troops in Cuba.

State Secretary Cyrus Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin conferred for nearly two hours in their opening session. Afterwards, the state department refused to discuss the meeting, declining even to offer the normal diplomatic characterization of meetings, such as "useful" or "candid."

Department spokesman Tom Reston said the two men would meet again today or Wednesday.

The talks began after Vance and Stansfield Turner, director of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, had met in a closed-door session with members of the U.S. Senate armed services committee.

The U. S. said Monday night that a Soviet denial that it has combat troops in Cuba was "not a helpful contribution to the resolution of this problem."

A terse statement by the U.S. state department commented on an editorial in the Soviet Communist party daily Pravda which said Soviet military personnel were merely training Cubans how to use Soviet equipment.

The exchanges followed the Vance-Dobrynin meeting.

Earlier a state department spokesman commented that the United States held by its view that Soviet combat troops were in Cuba and that the fact a further meeting was scheduled indicates the matter is not resolved.

"The question of the Soviet unit in Cuba is under discussion in diplomatic channels and we will make no comment on the content of these discussions," the department statement said. "As to the editorial in Pravda, it is not a helpful contribution to the resolution of the problem."

The Soviet Communist party newspaper said that for 17 years—dating back to the Cuban missile crisis of 1962—there had been a training centre in Cuba at which Soviet troops taught Cuban forces how to use Soviet-supplied military equipment.

The newspaper gave no figure for the number of Soviet troops on the island, but added: "It is absolutely clear that neither by its size nor by its functions does or can the Soviet military personnel in Cuba present any threat to the United States or to other states."

Pravda said the Carter administration knew the true facts about the Soviet presence in Cuba but had avoided explaining it, choosing instead to make statements "calculated to add fuel to the fire."

Moscow Radio said the Soviet Union "emphatically rejected the story that Soviet combat units have appeared in Cuba."

The broadcast added: "Neither the numerical strength nor the functions of the Soviet personnel have changed all these years. All the claims about the arrival of organized Soviet combat units in Cuba are utterly without foundation."

British Leyland orders cutback

LONDON (Reuter) — British Leyland, the country's ailing motor giant, announced plans Monday to close 13 plants and axe 25,000 jobs in a drive to improve efficiency.

Leyland chairman Sir Michael Edwardes told union leaders representing the state-owned company's 165,000 workers that the future of 36 other plants was also being considered.

He said he was taking the steps because of a general worsening in the firm's trading outlook. The closures, which will be spread over two years, come on top of a reduction in the workforce of almost 18,000 since January.

LEYLAND WAS SAVED from collapse in 1975 by a massive injection of money by the government.

Persistent labor problems and low productivity have led to calls from both management and government for drastic streamlining of the company.

The first plant to close will be the Titan bus factory in London with the loss of 650 jobs. Twelve other car, bus or engine assembly plants face part or total closure.

Last April, Edwardes announced that in 1978 Leyland lost $1 billion in sales and trading profits through industrial disputes and production stoppages.

INITIAL UNION REACTION to the closure announcement was one of shock and anger.

Derek Robinson, a senior union organizer at one of Leyland's Birmingham plants, said the plan was "disastrous for British Leyland and for the British motor industry in general."

Ferry workers refuse overtime

By DON COLLINS
Colonist reporter

Ferry workers have been instructed by their union to refuse overtime work during crucial contract talks, a move that is said to have cancelled at least one late night sailing.

An extra sailing scheduled to leave Swartz Bay for Tsawwassen at 11 p.m. Sunday was reported to have been cancelled because of this.

Informants said Monday that some cars were already aboard the ferry when the decision was made, and had to be driven off. Others were reportedly waiting in line to board the vessel.

Under terms of the last contract, the ferry workers have the right to refuse overtime work except in cases of emergency.

"But what they seem to be doing now is forbidding extra sailings," said one source from the corporation's inner circle.

"The ferry corporation is in business to transport people, not for the convenience of the work force."

Said one ferry union official: "It's ridiculous. They know this is the position we are taking. So, the situation shouldn't have been allowed to develop. The cars should never have been allowed past the ticket booths."

The stand is being taken at a time when negotiators from the B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union and B.C. Ferry Corp. are meeting under a blanket of secrecy with industrial inquiry commissioner Clive McKee.

McKee was appointed last week by Labor Minister Allan Williams in the latest effort to avert a strike by the 2,600-member union.

He was given 14 working days—longer if necessary — to try to work out a settlement through non-binding recommendations. His first meeting with negotiators was Friday and talks have continued through the weekend and Monday. Those involved have been respecting McKee's decision to place a news blackout on the meetings.

The union would have been in a legal position to strike after Williams reported late Thursday that mediator Fred Geddes had withdrawn, but decided to withhold such action—at least until it was able to ascertain if any progress could be made through meetings with McKee.

A half-day strike Thursday between Nanaimo, Horseshoe Bay and the Gulf Islands was not sanctioned by the union.

It has been blamed on rank-and-file radicals from the political left. However, politics are also said to be involved in an internal struggle that reaches all the way up to the union's leadership.

The last contract expired July 31. Wages, sick leave and use of casual labor were listed as the major issues when talks broke off.

U.S. reassures NATO nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, trying to calm Western European fears stirred by former U.S. state secretary Henry Kissinger, on Monday reaffirmed its commitment to the defence of Europe.

In a statement ordered by the White House and issued under the name of State Secretary Cyrus Vance, the administration said it is determined "not only to maintain the strategic balance but also to hold a capacity for flexible response . . . to any attack, at any level of intensity, against us or our allies."

Kissinger, in a conference in Brussels, Belgium, last week, suggested that the U.S. commitment to defend Europe was becoming questionable because of expanding Soviet military power.

He said the only retaliatory option the United States might have in some crises would be to incinerate Soviet cities in an all-out nuclear exchange that would also be the end of U.S. civilization.

His statement caused a stir in Western Europe and prompted the administration's reply, officials said.

BRABOURNE SURVIVORS BACK IN U.K.

LONDON (Reuter) — Lord and Lady Brabourne, survivors of the terrorist bomb explosion that killed Earl Mountbatten, left hospital in the Irish republic on Monday and were flown to Britain.

Lady Brabourne, Mountbatten's daughter, has been admitted to a London hospital for treatment of an eye injury and a broken leg.

Lord Brabourne, a film and television producer, is in another London hospital in satisfactory condition.

The Dowager Lady Brabourne, Timothy's twin brother Nicholas and a 15-year-old Irish youth Paul Maxwell, died with Mountbatten in the explosion of his fishing boat off the County Sligo coast. The provisional Irish Republican Army has admitted responsibility for the blast.

It's a miracle, says scientist

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The 16th century painting of the Virgin of Guadalupe, revered by millions of Latin American Catholics, may indeed be of miraculous origin, a University of Florida biophysicist said Monday.

In the U.S. Guadalupan Project Report soon to be sent to Mexican authorities, Philip Callahan, one of two scientists who analyzed the painting in Mexico City, said he could find no scientific explanation for it.

"The whole gist of the story as far as I am concerned is the original painting is miraculous," Callahan said.

According to tradition, the Virgin Mary appeared to a poor Indian named Juan Diego on Dec. 9, 1531, told him to go to the bishop of Mexico City and ask that he build a shrine to her on a hill just north of the city.

The bishop balked and Mary, who appeared again, had Juan Diego deliver flowers to the bishop. The Indian wrapped the flowers in a tilma, an Indian cloak made from cactus fibers and tied around one shoulder.

When the bishop unravelled the tilma, according to the story, the image of the Virgin Mary was on the tilma. It is preserved to this day in a bullet-proof glass case in a shrine in north Mexico City.

"The tilma should have rotted 20 years after it was painted," he said.

Rhodesia: Price is blood

LONDON (AP) — Black nationalist guerrilla leaders faced officials of the Zimbabwe Rhodesian government Monday at the opening of British-sponsored constitutional talks widely billed as a last chance to avert widespread war in southern Africa.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington urged both sides in the Zimbabwe Rhodesia struggle to reach a compromise, saying "the price of failure would be further prolonged bloodshed."

Carrington asked them to focus on a new constitution for Zimbabwe Rhodesia that will decrease the power given to the white minority, which accounts for 230,000 persons out of a population of 7.2 million.

"I believe the people assembled in this room have it in their power to end the war," said Carrington, serving as conference chairman. "I do not believe the people of Rhodesia will readily forgive any party which deprives them of this opportunity to settle their future by peaceful means."

The conference, called by Britain, brought together Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo of the guerrilla Patriotic Front alliance with members of Zimbabwe Rhodesia's government, led by Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the breakaway British colony's first black prime minister, and including Ian Smith, his white predecessor.

Nkomo and Mugabe have waged a seven-year guerrilla war against the Salisbury regime from bases in Zambia and Mozambique. More than 18,000 persons have died in the fighting.

The talks opened on schedule, but there was an immediate squabble over seating arrangements and a refusal by guerrilla leaders to attend a British welcoming reception for the two sides.

"We felt we could not at this time distinguish the color of the tea we might have tonight from the blood of women and children which the puppet regime of Muzorewa and Smith are shedding at this very moment," said Edison Zvobgo, a spokesman for the Patriotic Front.

QUINCY, Fla. (UPI) — Because her husband failed to pay a $3.05 tax bill in 1975, Hattie Mae Kenon has lost the frame house the couple built with earnings from years of toil in the tobacco fields.

"I cried some and I prayed some," the 63-year-old black woman said when she learned that John Barrow, a Callahan real estate broker, had bought the tax certificate, making him the owner of the home where she had raised seven children and looked after her mentally disabled husband.

"This is the onliest place we have and it really hurt to know we were going to lose everything we had," she said. Mrs. Kenon expressed a fear that eviction would mean her husband will have to go back to the state mental hospital where he has been treated off-and-on for 20 years.

Barrow took advantage of a state law that lets an individual buy another person's property from the county tax collector, if the taxes on the property are not paid within two years of when they were due.

Barrow bought the tax certificate by paying the $3.05 in taxes one month after the original April 1976 deadline for payment passed.

He waited three years, one more than the and in July 1979, bought the tax deed making him the legal owner of the house. It cost him a total of $107, representing back

Refugee tide on rise again

HONG KONG (UPI) — Jammed with 604 Vietnamese refugees, a motorized junk chugged into Hong Kong late Monday, despite Hanoi's two-month-old pledge to end the mass exodus of boat people.

They followed by only a few hours another group of 289 Vietnamese boat people, including 124 children, to bring the day's total to at least 893.

Hanoi promised at the July 20-21 Geneva conference on Indochina refugees to close off the mass exodus of its citizens and the flow of boat people was noticeably reduced for several weeks.

But in recent weeks, U.S. Navy ships and planes and merchant vessels operating in the South China Sea have rescued an increasing number of Vietnamese and more and more boat people have arrived safely in Southeast Asian ports.

The single group of 604 refugees was by far the largest known to have fled from Vietnam since the Hanoi government promised to stem the flow.

Hong Kong officials ordered the junk to halt outside the colony's main harbor while authorities began an investigation on the circumstances under which it left Vietnam.

It's kind of a drag

At speeds where mechanical brakes just can't do the job, drag chutes are the only answer. So at the annual Big Brothers soapbox derby trials in Mississauga, Ont., Michael Morrison had things under control. Trouble was, he couldn't use it in competition because it might interfere with other racers.

Hunger strikes spread in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — A series of hunger strikes in Chile that began a week ago spread Monday on the eve of the sixth anniversary of the military regime led by Gen. Augusto Pinochet.

The fasts began Sept. 3 in Catholic churches in three cities to pressure the government to reveal the fates of arrested persons who disappeared following the violent Sept. 11, 1973 military coup that overthrew President Salvador Allende.

Among the strikers are 13 youngsters—nine girls and four boys ranging in age from 12 to 22 years—who occupied the Danish embassy in Santiago a week ago.

In Santiago, 34 other persons, the majority of them women, were fasting in four churches. They were accompanied by 11 others in the industrial city of Concepcion, five in the seaside resort of Vina del Mar, and three more in a church in the northern city of Antofagasta.

All of the strikers, including the youths, say they are relatives of some of the 650 persons estimated to be missing by the Catholic Church.

More than 100 Catholic priests and nuns of various nationalities declared a 48-hour solidarity fast in a downtown church on Sunday night. A priest in the group said they totaled 108 persons but Carabineros police put the number at 130 priests, nuns and laymen.

Around 50 students from the Catholic University were on a 24-hour solidarity hunger strike Monday which they said "could be extended." Sixty Chilean intellectuals and artists were also on a 24-hour abstention in still another church on Monday.

The government announced Monday that it was studying legal action to take against 35 persons who were arrested for staging a solidarity march with the strikers on Saturday night.

Among those arrested was an American resident in Chile, Helen Hughes O'Brien, who works as an ABC Radio correspondent and for a local Catholic Church refugee organization.

Foreign ministry sources said there had been no answer from the Danish government to an official protest the military government filed in Copenhagen last Friday. In the note, Denmark was accused of "interfering in the internal affairs of Chile" by allowing the strike inside the embassy.

A news dispatch from Copenhagen published Sunday in Santiago said the Danish government would seek the mediation of United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim to stop the strike inside the embassy.

Stakeout nets 13 guerrillas

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Police in Saragossa and Barcelona arrested 13 of Spain's most wanted urban guerrillas Monday in a major roundup of left-wing leaders, the interior ministry said.

The ministry said the arrests were "the hardest blow struck" at the Oct. 1 Anti-Fascist Resistance Groups and its political arm, the Reconstituted Spanish Communist party.

GRAPO has claimed responsibility for 28 of Spain's 105 political assassinations this year. Its victims included a supreme court judge, a general, eight people killed in the bombing of a Madrid cafe and 16 police and civil guards.

Among the guerrillas arrested were half of the 12-member Political Commission—the top leadership of the party—and seven of the 12 members of its central committee, the ministry said.

The ministry said the arrests, the result of extensive investigation, stakeouts and shadowings of the suspects, marked the biggest roundup ever of GRAPO leaders.

The ministry said investigators found 10 hideouts used by the organization—one in Barcelona, two in Saragossa and seven in Madrid.

Journalist shot, wounded after parley with criminal

PARIS (AP) — A journalist with the Paris daily Minute was shot and wounded Monday after keeping an appointment with Jacques Mesrine, France's most wanted criminal, police said.

Jacques Tillier, 32, said he met Mesrine and an associate in a Paris bar and went with them in a car to a woods near Creil outside the city.

The gangster and his accomplice then stopped the car, beat up the journalist, yelled insults at him, took his clothes off and shot him three times with a pistol, Tillier told police.

Although orginal reports said Tillier's wounds caused him to slip into a coma, police later reported he was only slightly injured in the nape of the neck, the cheek and shoulder.

Police believe the attack was meant as a warning to the publisher of Minute, which has been developing a story on the criminal.

Mesrine is wanted in Canada in connection with the 1973 slaying of two game wardens and for escaping from prison. He is also wanted in France for escaping from prison, several armed robberies—including a raid on the Deauville gambling casino—and a kidnapping.

Arms talks rated flop by ex-aide to Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former Carter administration disarmament aide, Leslie Gelb, said Monday that three decades of arms control negotiation with the Soviet Union had "essentially failed."

In an article published by Foreign Policy magazine, Gelb offered his own prescription for revamping the American arms control coalition, emphasizing small but achievable steps in arms control, rather than dramatic efforts.

"Arms control has essentially failed," said Gelb, one of the Carter administration's most articulate arms-control advocates. "Three decades of U.S.-Soviet negotiations have done little more than to codify the arms race.

"To be sure, some agreements have been good or useful—such as the anti-ballistic missile treaty, S.A.L.T. II, and the limited test ban treaty—but even they rest on tender supports."

Gelb's article was prepared for the quarterly magazine long before the current crisis over Soviet troops in Cuba threatened to delay the Senate debate on ratifying the S.A.L.T. treaty with Russia.

Gelb headed the state department's bureau of political-military affairs from 1977-1979. He told UPI he decided to resign because of physical exhaustion and frustration.

Gelb was frequently included in U.S. delegations which accompanied Secretary Cyrus Vance on his S.A.L.T. negotiating missions with Soviet leaders in Moscow and Geneva.

"In this stage of Soviet-American relations," Gelb said, "it may be wise to think of arms control negotiations essentially as confidence- and stability-building exercises.

"They cannot be overplayed, overloaded or overextended. They should be conceived and carried out as an integral part of U.S. foreign and defence policy, tailored to fit the over-all state of the political relationship with Moscow."

Gelb said arms control proposals should "not get far ahead" of the general state of U.S.-Soviet relations. Proposals should "be fashioned to move in small steps" which could be achieved promptly. Talks should aim at finding an over-all balance in the arsenals of the superpowers, and negotiations should stress arms stability and prevention of unpleasant surprises in the weapons the other side develops.

"For example," Gelb said, "the idea of the MX, a land-based mobile intercontinental ballistic missile system, should not be completely dismissed by arms controllers, especially if it can be shown that this would in fact increase the survivability of ICBMS and not just lead to instability through increased Soviet and American war-fighting capabilities."

"It might also be shown how the MX could aid rather impede further efforts to achieve stability."

Frederic flexes growing muscle

MIAMI (UPI) — Frederic became a hurricane for the second time Monday and promptly began picking up muscle as it moved into the Gulf of Mexico. Forecasters said they were uncertain where the storm was headed.

An air force hurricane hunter plane located Frederic's centre 240 kilometres west-southwest of Key West, Fla. In slightly more than four hours, its sustained winds increased from 120 to 130 kilometres an hour.

"Further intensification is expected," the National Hurricane Centre said.

Frederic was moving northwest at eight kmh and was expected to maintain that course and direction through the night.

But forecaster Miles Lawrence said, "Slow moving storms imply that steering currents are weak and such storms are subject to erratic motions. Frederic is no exception. . ."

Cast members perform Venezuelan folk piece during recent medley

Group heading for Comox Valley

Up with People for people

COURTENAY — An international group known as Up with People will perform Sept. 22 at 8 p.m. in Vanier high school.

The group, which tours the world and has singers and musicians from all over, is sponsored by the Vanier school.

Choir and band members remain for a period of one year, paying a $4,800 fee, which includes music tuition, food and accommodation as well as costumes.

All the individual is required to pay is personal items and spending money.

The group, a non-profit, nondenominational society,travels world-wide, stressing audience participation and people participation through host families.

Members of the choir or band are chosen each year to act as public relations officers.

After screening and selection in home towns, members move to Tuscon, Arizona, where training takes place and the group is broken into several casts. Each cast consists of about 120 people.

Some 7,000 a year apply but only one-third is accepted and only 400 to 500 actually make a cast.

One cast is going to Spain, Holland and Germany while another has toured Alberta, is now doing B.C. and will continue through Washington and Oregon.

The cast will also travel to South and Latin America as well as Mexico.

The music of Up with People celebrates the brotherhood of man and attempts to instil a sense of hope among the members of the audience.

The two-hour performance is a sequence of international folk songs, a medley of hit tunes and original music.

The show is intended to be family entertainment and audience participation is invited by clapping of hands and when choir winds its way through the audience.

Up with People pursues two basic goals: To build bridges of understanding and communication among peoples, cultures and countries, and to give young people a learning experience that not only broadens the intellect but matures the person.

During the year of travel, members meet heads of business and of state and families where they stay.

The experiences are supplemented by formalized learning opportunities that can earn college credits.

More than one-half of the cast members are from the U.S. and the average age is 19. However, students do come from other countries.

In the past 10 years, Up with People has travelled to more than 42 nations and performances have ranged from small villages to international centres of finance and industry.

Cast members travel about 32,000 miles a year, in many cases by bus.

Up with People operates on an annual budget of about $5 million.

It is raised from performances and sales, student fees, gifts, grants and investments and royalty income.

People in the Comox Valley who wish to play host to a member should contact Vanier school and ask for either Ellyn Herrick of Lisa Bauche.

Intermediate care

New Hospital for Cowichan ready by 1981

By DEREK RHIND
Colonist correspondent

DUNCAN — A $3 million intermediate care hospital is expected to be in operation in the Cowichan Valley by 1981 and local taxpayers will not be expected to pay an extra cent by way of direct taxation.

Tenders on the 100-bed facility will be called early this fall, "perhaps by the end of September," says Margaret Robertson, president of the sponsoring Cowichan Intermediate Care Society.

"I would estimate construction costs of the facility to run somewhere in the neighborhood of $3 million, but local taxpayers will not be asked to bear the cost," Robertson said.

She said that initial funding for construction, the $70,000 purchase price of land and architects' fees will come in the form of a bank loan guaranteed by Canadian Mortgage and Housing Corp.

The loan, as yet undetermined, will be repaid over a 25-year term at two per cent interest from provincial grant costs and patient fees of $6.50 daily.

Robertson said she will be asking the municipality of North Cowichan, of which she is an alderman, and the Cowichan Valley Regional District Board for money to hire a secretary for the society and the municipality for a grant in lieu of taxes.

Construction of the hospital, which will be built on a four-acre site next to St. Peter's Church, Quamichan, will take about one year.

The facility will be named Cowichan Lodge, includes a large lounge, day care sleeping rooms, beauty parlor facilities, hobby rooms, connecting rooms for husband and wife patients, patios and a fenced area.

"This hospital will be the only intermediate care facility between Victoria and Nanaimo, and as early as 1974 there were an estimated 94 valley residents needing this type of care," Robertson said.

"In the Cowichan Valley, we have over eight per cent of the population over 65 years of age and by 1981 we will have approximately 4,700 people of this age.

"Intermediate care is a new concept but it is estimated that at least one of every 50 people will eventually require such care," Robertson said.

Cowichan Lodge will provide a homelike environment so residents will not feel they are in an institution, and will "foster qualities of security, independence, social interaction, dignity and stimulation to the senses."

"It is extremely important also that residents maintain a tie with the community. We could not have this facility without the senior governments' participation, but we need the backing of the organization within the community," the intermediate care society president said.

Robertson was hopeful that valley organizations and services clubs will help to provide the necessary extras to help the elderly keep active and happy, such as raising funds to furnish a room, TVs and some therapy equipment.

Robertson said she was happy that earlier difficulties concerning the site had finally been resolved, and that the society had finally been able to secure the four-acre Maple Bay Road site, when the owner had reduced his price by $10,000.

She said the owner of the property, Stan Blaine, also owned another four acres of land opposite the Queen of Angel's school, next door to Cowichan Lodge's future home.

"If this becomes available at a future date, I hope it will be purchased not by the provincial government, but by the municipality, so that a future public health and mental health building can be erected there," Robertson said.

Crash is fatal

PORT ALBERNI — Joseph Kreke, 36, of North Battleford, Sask. was killed Sunday in a helicopter crash northwest of this Vancouver Island community.

RCMP said that Kreke, an employee of Apex Helicopters of North Battleford, was alone in the helicopter, which was carrying a load of lumber. Police said the lumber broke loose and a vibration that followed caused the helicopter to disintegrate in the air.

One-man picket at drug centre

NANAIMO — A one-man picket line kept some day shift employees away from the Brannen Lake drug treatment centre Monday.

John Higenbottam, director of the centre, said that the placard-bearing protester appeared about 7 a.m. at the front gate, after most of the staff had reported for work.

The picketer was apparently a disgruntled ex-employee of the B.C. Buildings Corp.

Brannen Lake officials were hoping late Monday to receive a cease-and-desist order from the B.C. Labor Relations Board.

In the meantime, arrangements were made for day shift staff to remain and maintain operations of the province's 150-bed heroin treatment centre.

At present, there are about 20 patients at the controversial facility which opened five months ago.

Season-opening session today

History woos Parksville group

The District 69 Historical Society in the picturesque community of Parksville will be holding the first meeting of the upcoming fall season today at the town office at 7:30 p.m.

Anyone interested in the history of the district is invited to attend either as a visitor of as a prospective member.

A highlight of the summer months was participation by some members of the society in the visit of the Provincial Museum Train at Qualicum Beach.

Past president Graham Beard took part in the official welcome with Qualicum Beach Mayor Art Skipsey, and the society was invited to staff the sales counter on the train for the two days.

This proved to be a rewarding and enjoyable experience and provided an opportunity to display the small pictorial history of Parksville entitled Parksville Then and Now, which has been a society project this year.

An outstanding archeological display provided by Graham Beard at the sales counter on the train was acclaimed by officials as one of the best seen on the Island.

Peggy Nicholls arranged other displays such as photographs and posters for the society presentation.

Meanwhile on the west coast of Vancouver Island, a New Westminster firm has been awarded a $488,551 contract for fishing harbor improvements in the city of Port Alberni.

In making the announcement, Erik Nielsen, federal minister of public works, said that Fraser River Pile Driving Co. Ltd. had submitted the lowest of five bids in response to a public call for tenders.

The highest bid was $632,954.

The contract calls for the addition of floatage in the harbor, with this contract being for Phase 5 of a general harbor improvement program.

The work should be completed early in January of 1980, with the whole project under the supervision of the Public Works Canada Pacific region office in Vancouver.

Quick action sought

Alberni trustees watch enrolment plunge

By JOHN HENDERSON
Colonist correspondent

PORT ALBERNI — Trustees of School District 70 are going to review all information dealing with the ramifications of declining enrolment in the district.

Board chairman June Kearney has noted that any decisions on major changes dictated by this decline must be made by the end of this month.

"We're on public record to provide at least one year's notice of any school closure or other changes affecting the pupils and parents of the district," she told the board, "so if we are going to take any action, we must review all the input we have to the present and make our decisions at the next board meeting."

There had been some discussion at board meetings held last spring of the possibility of closing up to three elementary schools in the district, and reaction from the parents of the children affected had been immediate and negative.

THE BOARD HAD ASSURED parents opposing the closings that no sudden action would be taken, regardless of this year's enrolment figures.

District superintendent of instruction Al Robinson reported to last week's meeting that 7,595 students enrolled in the district schools last week, down from the 7,942 who registered in the month of September last year.

He estimated that the final full-time student enrolment would be about 7,400. Enrolment at the kindergarten level was 453, down from 511 last year.

Total enrolment could be down nearly 10 per cent, the figures indicated.

Teaching staff as of the beginning of the school year stood at 425.6, he reported, just one-half unit down from the budgeted projection.

Due to the decreased enrolment, he said, it was doubtful if it would be necessary to fill in the discrepancy.

ROBINSON NOTED THAT IT had been considerably less difficult to recruit the necessary teaching staff this year, and that for the first time the district had been able to hire its full complement of music instructors.

"The large urban areas don't seem to be gobbling up the teaching graduates in certain specialized fields the way they have in the past," he said.

He also reported that there had been 23 pupils enrolled in the district's new French immersion classes at Eighth Avenue elementary school. There still remained some problems with the busing of these pupils to the school.

In oher business, the board passed a motion to employ one additional staff member for a trial period of one month to the grounds keeping staff, with the explicit duty of cleaning up the litter around Alberni district high school, and any other schools that could be included.

CHAIRMAN KEARNEY POINTED out that the board had been subject to a good deal of public criticism on the litter conditions at Alberni High, and this was an effort to deal with it.

She did not consider it a permanent solution to the problem, however.

"If we merely pick up after the students, they will never lose their habit of littering on the school grounds, or elsewhere for that matter.

"It seems to be a universal problem, and I don't know what the answer is, but I still consider that it would be better to stimulate a habit of not littering than to merely accept it and pick up after them."

Considerable discussion took place on the replacement of the oil heating system in the E. Godson Memorial School in Bamfield with an electric system, at an estimated cost of $15,000.

The administration had recommended the conversion due to the withdrawal of oil supplies to the school by Chevron Oil, which closed its supply depot in the village last spring.

BOTH TRUSTEES JOHN Langmead and Linda Jackson argued that the board had never been advised of the comparative costs of such a move and the hooking up of the school to other oil supplies still available in Bamfield.

Langmead also wished to see a more comprehensive breakdown of the costs involved in the $15,000 total on terms of any outside contracting being done.

Chairman Kearney, however, ruled any such motion on the subject, and even a motion to accept the recommendation, out of order, on terms of the minutes of the board meeting held July 3.

She quoted from these minutes the fact that the board had given the excutive the directive to investigate, cost out and take action on the school's heating system according to the situation.

"THIS IS IN FACT NOT a recommendation, and that word shouldn't have been used in the executive report," she said.

"The conversion is, as I understand it, actually underway, and if we had any questions about it, they should have been expressed at the July meeting.

"The only action we could take now would be to rescind the original motion to go ahead with it, and I'm sure we would agree that this would be completely unfair."

SECRETARY-TREASURER JOHN Wright assured the meeting that comparable costs and several other factors involved in the decision had been "thoroughly investigated," and he was satisfied that the conversion was the most efficient move and that the costs were "at a minimum" in consideration of the insulation and other work which would be done at the same time.

"The only factor that remains unresolved is the sharing of the costs with the ministry and this, too, is in hand," he said.

Disabled students' aid cut—MLA

Victoria MLA Gordon Hanson said Monday that the provincial government had quietly reduced the cash aid to handicapped persons taking post-secondary education courses.

Hanson said the cut was made official July 20 by an administrative order "which cut the amount of direct assistance available to handicapped students and substituted an inadequate loan system."

The MLA said the matter first came to his attention when he was approached by a student suffering a physical handicap and asked for assistance.

"The handicapped pension for a single person is $357 a month, and under the new regulation it must not only cover room and board but also education expenses," Hanson said. "Clearly, that is asking the impossible and the government must reconsider the matter."

The new regulations state that students receiving benefits from the Community Vocational Rehabilitation Services are eligible for aid through the B.C. Student Aid Program "in both loan and grant funds, provided that the full amount of the benefits to be received during the application period is taken into account in calculation of financial need."

Hanson said that regulation meant that where the government used to pay outright for the costs and tuition of a handicapped student, the student now had to obtain a loan to cover those expenses.

"That was horrible enough," Hanson added, "but even worse, the bizarre rules applying to the loans limit the amount available to the student to $300 for tuition and book loans. Anything more than that must come directly out of their pensions."

The new regulations also make it clear that a handicapped student seeking only to improve educational status could lose all educational benefits.

"... Recipients who are in training under their (Community Vocational Rehabilitation) services may continue to receive benefits while undertaking technical or vocational courses leading to employment," the regulations state.

"However, CVRS reserves the right to suspend benefits to any recipient who decides to embark on an educational program which is purely academic in nature or will not improve appreciably the student's chance of employment at the end of the year."

The exceptions to that rule will be students who have received special approval from CVRS to pursue their studies. They "may receive aid" to fund direct educational expenses, but even that aid is strictly limited.

Included in the aid would be the actual tuition fees, plus a maximum of $200 for books and instruments, plus between $3 and $7 a week for transportation, depending on whether the student lived on or off campus, and $19 a week for miscellaneous expenses.

The new rules state that "even though the applicant's assessed need under BCSAP's normal policies may be higher, the award released to the student may not exceed the total of allowable educational costs listed above."

It adds in the next clause: "If, for some reason, a CVRS client receives more student aid than is required to meet allowable educational costs, the excess may be deemed by CVRS to be maintenance and may be deducted from the applicant's benefits in an amount to be determined by CVRS."

Hanson said that however carefully the regulations were worded, they meant cutbacks for the handicapped student. "The Social Credit administration is just making it harder for handicapped persons to take post-secondary education courses."

He noted that educational loans to single parents on social assistance were not generous, and were "deliberately limited below actual need, yet they can reach $1,800 for a school year. The more severe limitations placed on handicapped persons are absolutely unconscionable.

"The result of these unannounced changes will be to disentitle handicapped persons from pursuing an education to improve their lot in life."

With all provincial cabinet ministers in Richmond this week for a week-long Social Credit caucus session, there was no immediate comment from Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy, Health Minister Robert McClelland, or Education, Science and Technology Minister Pat McGeer.

Book publishers' financing studied

E.D. Ward-Harris, member of the Greater Victoria Public Library Board and former Colonist Page Five editor, has been appointed to undertake a study into the financial needs of B.C. book publishers.

The appointment was made by Provincial secretary Hugh Curtis.

Ward-Harris is to examine the problems of the industry and make recommendations to the minister.

Morton retires

Provincial chief electoral officer Ken Morton has retired at the age of 63.

His retirement was confirmed Monday with publication of orders-in-council from last Thursday's cabinet meeting.

Morton had been in poor health since a fall at home early this summer.

Assuming his position on a temporary basis will be R.A. Patterson of Victoria.

Morton had been chief electoral officer since 1968.

Adventure from Nahanni

Islander risked headless horror and survived it

In the early 1900s prospectors said the South Nahanni River held gold: it flowed into the Northwest Territories from the fabulous Yukon.

But for years no one travelled up the South Nahanni.

Early in the century, five men tried and never came back. Two of them were found without their heads. Throughout the North, the region became known as The Valley of Vanishing Men, the River of Mystery, or simply as Headless Valley.

THEN, in 1927, two men arrived who heard the tales but went up the Nahanni anyway. At the Hudson's Bay trading post at Fort Simpson, locals poured a round of whisky and bade them farewell, predicting that next spring it would be time for another search party.

The men came back, having opened up the river to full-scale prospecting that began in 1929.

Albert Faille, legendary trapper, prospector and explorer, has died.

THE OTHER man, Raymond Patterson, lives in retirement at 2685 Queenswood in Victoria at age 81 and remembers the summer of 1927 well.

Patterson, educated at Oxford and three years a trainee at the Bank of England, came to Canada as a homesteader. A little bent with age now, his eyes dim but his memory clear, he recalled in a recent interview how he set out on the Nahanni without any training in white-water canoeing.

"The South Nahanni was just a straight dotted line on the map in those days," he said. "Nobody could tell you anything about this river, so I went to see for myself. I learned as I went. I had to."

HE STEPPED over to a corner of the study in his secluded home and fetched a paddle carved by Faille when his last store-bought one was shattered on a rock.

"It's long and sturdy," he said. "You needed that for fending off the cliffs when the river wanted to take you somewhere you didn't want to go.

"The islands were the trickiest parts because you'd get fast water going down both sides flush up to the canyon walls. They were a problem all right."

THE RUGGED landscape Patterson survived in 1927 was designated the first World Heritage Site last Tuesday, in a ceremony in which United Nations flags were unfurled atop a cliff in Nahanni National Park on the Yukon-N.W.T. border.

Access into the Nahanni remains so difficult that only a handful of officials attended the ceremony at Virginia Falls, N.W.T., 2,000 kilometres north-northwest of Victoria.

PATTERSON travelled up the river in 1927 in a canoe he alternately poled and pulled against the current, never knowing what he would find around the next bend.

Meanwhile, Faille was making his way in a canoe powered by a 3½-horsepower outboard engine.

"In the fast water he had the edge," Patterson recalled, "but in the shallower stuff I had the better going because I poled; and we'd take turns passing each other up the river, occasionally camping together for a day or so, then going our own ways."

Sometimes they sat together around a campfire, the only men in an uncharted wilderness, and talked of those who had come up the river before them but had never gone back down.

The McLeod brothers, Willie and Frank, died on the river sometime between 1904 and 1908 along with a third member of their party, Robert Weir. The skeleton of one of the brothers was found without a skull.

SIX YEARS later, the headless remains of adventurer Martin Jorgensen were found 110 kilometres upriver from the McLeods' last camp. About the same time, a trapper froze to death while trying to winter on the Nahanni.

Patterson said he and Faille saw little point in discussing the deaths.

"We decided we could handle whatever it was and that was that."

Some of the deaths were strange but the discovery of headless remains is easily explained, he said.

"If you died in your sleeping bag there today, the bears and wolverines would get in there and toss the corpse all over the place.

"IT NEVER worried me being alone in the Nahanni. It never worried me about the McLeods being killed either. I camped where they died, and you know what? I had a good night's sleep."

Patterson later wrote a book called The Dangerous River in which he dismissed the legends as the work of men with good imaginations and said the deaths were caused by a harsh environment where a single mistake can cost a life.

The book, published in 1956, became a world best-seller and was translated into several foreign languages. Publishing rights are now held by Gray's Publishing, 455 Cromar, and the book is still in print.

PATTERSON said it would be true to say he made more money out of the book than he ever did prospecting.

After a lifetime ranching near High River, Alta., Patterson and his wife sold up in 1946 and moved, first to Shoal Harbor in North Saanich, and in 1962 they purchased their home on Queenswood.

He and his competitor and longtime friend failed to discover any motherlodes, although the Canada Tungsten Ltd. Mine on a Nahanni tributary near the Yukon-N.W.T. border may be directly attributed to their trail-blazing efforts.

"We found copper ore but it was pockety and too remote to make mining economic," he said.

And the gold?

"If anybody found it, it's been lost again and may be still there," he said.

Industrial site:

Saanich ready to plead case before premier

Saanich council may consider an appeal to Premier Bennett if the highways ministry responds negatively to plans for an industrial site at Royal Oak, Mayor Mel Couvelier said in an interview Saturday.

Bylaws governing zoning changes, creation of a specified area and a $4 million loan authorization need only government approval before council gives final reading. Council has set a Sept. 10 deadline for passage of the bylaws.

Couvelier said he was concerned Highways Minister Alex Fraser had indicated more time would be needed to study traffic problems associated with the proposed development.

"He's had lots of time to act, he's had the proposal on his desk for several month," Couvelier said.

"We may take our case to the premier, but that's a decision council will have to make based on what happens at Monday's council meeting."

The ministry, he said, doesn't want access from the 90-acre site, which will span both sides of Glanford Avenue, impeding traffic on the Pat Bay Highway "and neither does Saanich."

Couvelier said Saanich's stand is that the Quadra Street overpass would have to be made into a "full cloverleaf" to enable traffic to enter the highway.

"The ministry is fully aware major structural changes will have to be made to the overpass before much longer. It's inevitable."

Couvelier said he discussed the issue last week with Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis.

(Curtis, the area MLA, has been outspoken in his criticism of the proposed development. He feels a suitable industrial zone already exists at Keating Cross Road.)

"Some of the information I gave the minister was new," Couvelier told the Colonist. "I couldn't tell whether it changed his thinking."

He added:

"I believe that if it had been up to the ministry staff to make a decision it would have been reached by now. But it's in the hands of the politicians.

"And I'm satisfied the matter has been discussed by cabinet and a decision is imminent," he said.

Fraser, who visited the site last week with the ministry's chief engineer, isn't yet convinced the increased traffic created by the light industrial zone would be compatible with the highway traffic.

The minister is expected to consider a staff report on his return to Victoria later this week.

U.S., Soviets hush talks on combat unit in Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union began Monday what U.S. state department officials say might be a protracted series of negotiations over Soviet combat troops in Cuba.

State Secretary Cyrus Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin conferred for nearly two hours in their opening session. Afterwards, the state department refused to discuss the meeting, declining even to offer the normal diplomatic characterization of meetings, such as "useful" or "candid."

Department spokesman Tom Reston said the two men would meet again today or Wednesday.

The talks began after Vance and Stansfield Turner, director of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, had met in a closed-door session with members of the U.S. Senate armed services committee.

The U. S. said Monday night that a Soviet denial that it has combat troops in Cuba was "not a helpful contribution to the resolution of this problem."

A terse statement by the U.S. state department commented on an editorial in the Soviet Communist party daily Pravda which said Soviet military personnel were merely training Cubans how to use Soviet equipment.

The exchanges followed the Vance-Dobrynin meeting.

Earlier a state department spokesman commented that the United States held by its view that Soviet combat troops were in Cuba and that the fact a further meeting was scheduled indicates the matter is not resolved.

"The question of the Soviet unit in Cuba is under discussion in diplomatic channels and we will make no comment on the content of these discussions," the department statement said. "As to the editorial in Pravda, it is not a helpful contribution to the resolution of the problem."

The Soviet Communist party newspaper said that for 17 years—dating back to the Cuban missile crisis of 1962—there had been a training centre in Cuba at which Soviet troops taught Cuban forces how to use Soviet-supplied military equipment.

The newspaper gave no figure for the number of Soviet troops on the island, but added: "It is absolutely clear that neither by its size nor by its functions does or can the Soviet military personnel in Cuba present any threat to the United States or to other states."

Pravda said the Carter administration knew the true facts about the Soviet presence in Cuba but had avoided explaining it, choosing instead to make statements "calculated to add fuel to the fire."

Moscow Radio said the Soviet Union "emphatically rejected the story that Soviet combat units have appeared in Cuba."

The broadcast added: "Neither the numerical strength nor the functions of the Soviet personnel have changed all these years. All the claims about the arrival of organized Soviet combat units in Cuba are utterly without foundation."

British Leyland orders cutback

LONDON (Reuter) — British Leyland, the country's ailing motor giant, announced plans Monday to close 13 plants and axe 25,000 jobs in a drive to improve efficiency.

Leyland chairman Sir Michael Edwardes told union leaders representing the state-owned company's 165,000 workers that the future of 36 other plants was also being considered.

He said he was taking the steps because of a general worsening in the firm's trading outlook. The closures, which will be spread over two years, come on top of a reduction in the workforce of almost 18,000 since January.

LEYLAND WAS SAVED from collapse in 1975 by a massive injection of money by the government.

Persistent labor problems and low productivity have led to calls from both management and government for drastic streamlining of the company.

The first plant to close will be the Titan bus factory in London with the loss of 650 jobs. Twelve other car, bus or engine assembly plants face part or total closure.

Last April, Edwardes announced that in 1978 Leyland lost $1 billion in sales and trading profits through industrial disputes and production stoppages.

INITIAL UNION reaction to the closure announcement was one of shock and anger.

Derek Robinson, a senior union organizer at one of Leyland's Birmingham plants, said the plan was "disastrous for British Leyland and for the British motor industry in general."

Ferry workers refuse overtime

By DON COLLINS
Colonist reporter

Ferry workers have been instructed by their union to refuse overtime work during crucial contract talks, a move that is said to have cancelled at least one late night sailing.

An extra sailing scheduled to leave Swartz Bay for Tsawwassen at 11 p.m. Sunday was reported to have been cancelled because of this.

Informants said Monday that some cars were already aboard the ferry when the decision was made, and had to be driven off. Others were reportedly waiting in line to board the vessel.

Under terms of the last contract, the ferry workers have the right to refuse overtime work except in cases of emergency.

"But what they seem to be doing now is forbidding extra sailings," said one source from the corporation's inner circle.

"The ferry corporation is in business to transport people, not for the convenience of the work force."

Said one ferry union official: "It's ridiculous. They know this is the position we are taking. So, the situation shouldn't have been allowed to develop. The cars should never have been allowed past the ticket booths."

The stand is being taken at a time when negotiators from the B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union and B.C. Ferry Corp. are meeting under a blanket of secrecy with industrial inquiry commissioner Clive McKee.

McKee was appointed last week by Labor Minister Allan Williams in the latest effort to avert a strike by the 2,600-member union.

He was given 14 working days—longer if necessary — to try to work out a settlement through non-binding recommendations. His first meeting with negotiators was Friday and talks have continued through the weekend and Monday. Those involved have been respecting McKee's decision to place a news blackout on the meetings.

The union would have been in a legal position to strike after Williams reported late Thursday that mediator Fred Geddes had withdrawn, but decided to withhold such action—at least until it was able to ascertain if any progress could be made through meetings with McKee.

A half-day strike Thursday between Nanaimo, Horseshoe Bay and the Gulf Islands was not sanctioned by the union.

It has been blamed on rank-and-file radicals from the political left. However, politics are also said to be involved in an internal struggle that reaches all the way up to the union's leadership.

The last contract expired July 31. Wages, sick leave and use of casual labor were listed as the major issues when talks broke off.

U.S. reassures NATO nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, trying to calm Western European fears stirred by former U.S. state secretary Henry Kissinger, on Monday reaffirmed its commitment to the defence of Europe.

In a statement ordered by the White House and issued under the name of State Secretary Cyrus Vance, the administration said it is determined "not only to maintain the strategic balance but also to hold a capacity for flexible response . . . to any attack, at any level of intensity, against us or our allies."

Kissinger, in a conference in Brussels, Belgium, last week, suggested that the U,S. commitment to defend Europe was becoming questionable because of expanding Soviet military power.

He said the only retaliatory option the United States might have in some crises would be to incinerate Soviet cities in an all-out nuclear exchange that would also be the end of U.S. civilization.

His statement caused a stir in Western Europe and prompted the administration's reply, officials said.

BRABOURNE SURVIVORS BACK IN U.K.

LONDON (Reuter) — Lord and Lady Brabourne, survivors of the terrorist bomb explosion that killed Earl Mountbatten, left hospital in the Irish republic on Monday and were flown to Britain.

Lady Brabourne, Mountbatten's daughter, has been admitted to a London hospital for treatment of an eye injury and a broken leg.

Lord Brabourne, a film and television producer, is in another London hospital in satisfactory condition.

The Dowager Lady Brabourne, Timothy's twin brother Nicholas and a 15-year-old Irish youth Paul Maxwell, died with Mountbatten in the explosion of his fishing boat off the County Sligo coast. The provisional Irish Republican Army has admitted responsibility for the blast.

It's a miracle, says scientist

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The 16th century painting of the Virgin of Guadalupe, revered by millions of Latin American Catholics, may indeed be of miraculous origin, a University of Florida biophysicist said Monday.

In the U.S. Guadalupan Project Report soon to be sent to Mexican authorities, Philip Callahan, one of two scientists who analyzed the painting in Mexico City, said he could find no scientific explanation for it.

"The whole gist of the story as far as I am concerned is the original painting is miraculous," Callahan said.

According to tradition, the Virgin Mary appeared to a poor Indian named Juan Diego on Dec. 9, 1531, told him to go to the bishop of Mexico City and ask that he build a shrine to her on a hill just north of the city.

The bishop balked and Mary, who appeared again, had Juan Diego deliver flowers to the bishop. The Indian wrapped the flowers in a tilma, an Indian cloak made from cactus fibers and tied around one shoulder.

When the bishop unravelled the tilma, according to the story, the image of the Virgin Mary was on the tilma. It is preserved to this day in a bullet-proof glass case in a shrine in north Mexico City.

"The tilma should have rotted 20 years after it was painted," he said.

Rhodesia: Price is blood

LONDON (AP) — Black nationalist guerrilla leaders faced officials of the Zimbabwe Rhodesian government Monday at the opening of British-sponsored constitutional talks widely billed as a last chance to avert widespread war in southern Africa.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington urged both sides in the Zimbabwe Rhodesia struggle to reach a compromise, saying "the price of failure would be further prolonged bloodshed."

Carrington asked them to focus on a new constitution for Zimbabwe Rhodesia that will decrease the power given to the white minority, which accounts for 230,000 persons out of a population of 7.2 million.

"I believe the people assembled in this room have it in their power to end the war," said Carrington, serving as conference chairman. "I do not believe the people of Rhodesia will readily forgive any party which deprives them of this opportunity to settle their future by peaceful means."

The conference, called by Britain, brought together Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo of the guerrilla Patriotic Front alliance with members of Zimbabwe Rhodesia's government, led by Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the breakaway British colony's first black prime minister, and including Ian Smith, his white predecessor.

Nkomo and Mugabe have waged a seven-year guerrilla war against the Salisbury regime from bases in Zambia and Mozambique. More than 18,000 persons have died in the fighting.

The talks opened on schedule, but there was an immediate squabble over seating arrangements and a refusal by guerrilla leaders to attend a British welcoming reception for the two sides.

"We felt we could not at this time distinguish the color of the tea we might have tonight from the blood of women and children which the puppet regime of Muzorewa and Smith are shedding at this very moment," said Edison Zvobgo, a spokesman for the Patriotic Front.

$3.05 tax bill leaves family without home

QUINCY, Fla. (UPI) — Because her husband failed to pay a $3.05 tax bill in 1975, Hattie Mae Kenon has lost the frame house the couple built with earnings from years of toil in the tobacco fields.

"I cried some and I prayed some," the 63-year-old black woman said when she learned that John Barrow, a Callahan real estate broker, had bought the tax certificate, making him the owner of the home where she had raised seven children and looked after her mentally disabled husband.

"This is the onliest place we have and it really hurt to know we were going to lose everything we had," she said. Mrs. Kenon expressed a fear that eviction would mean her husband will have to go back to the state mental hospital where he has been treated off-and-on for 20 years.

Barrow took advantage of a state law that lets an individual buy another person's property from the county tax collector, if the taxes on the property are not paid within two years of when they were due.

Barrow bought the tax certificate by paying the $3.05 in taxes one month after the original April 1976 deadline for payment passed.

He waited three years, one more than the minimum two years prescribed by law, and in July 1979, bought the tax deed making him the legal owner of the house. It cost him a total of $107, representing back taxes, plus county expenses.

Refugee tide on rise again

HONG KONG (UPI) — Jammed with 604 Vietnamese refugees, a motorized junk chugged into Hong Kong late Monday, despite Hanoi's two-month-old pledge to end the mass exodus of boat people.

They followed by only a few hours another group of 289 Vietnamese boat people, including 124 children, to bring the day's total to at least 893.

Hanoi promised at the July 20-21 Geneva conference on Indochina refugees to close off the mass exodus of its citizens and the flow of boat people was noticeably reduced for several weeks.

But in recent weeks, U.S. Navy ships and planes and merchant vessels operating in the South China Sea have rescued an increasing number of Vietnamese and more and more boat people have arrived safely in Southeast Asian ports.

The single group of 604 refugees was by far the largest known to have fled from Vietnam since the Hanoi government promised to stem the flow.

Hong Kong officials ordered the junk to halt outside the colony's main harbor while authorities began an investigation on the circumstances under which it left Vietnam.
